$376,888 PLEDGED TO RELIEF FUND; CRISIS CAMPAIGN TO BE CONTINUED

Drive Will Be Extended in Effort to Reach Goal of $600,000 — Many Firms and Groups Have Not Yet Reported.

SPECIAL OFFERINGS IN CHURCHES TODAY

L. C. Haworth, Secretary of Capitalists' Committee, Says Present Effort Is Most Important in City's History.

Total gifts and subscriptions of $376,888.07 were announced last evening at Crisis Campaign headquarters as being in the hands of the campaign auditor, following the campaign which began last Sunday, to raise $600,000 for unemployment emergency relief. The campaign, which was scheduled to end today, will be continued into this week.

After the audited total was made up, the committee received the subscription of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and employes, for $8827.

Collections will be taken in the churches today, and those in the congregations will be asked to give to the relief fund, regardless of their previous donations.

J. D. Perry Francis, head of the Crisis Committee, in a written statement, said that all subscriptions now in the committee's hands have been included in the announced figures. There are several comparatively large contributions, and some smaller ones, still expected from business firms which wish to make their lists as large and complete as possible before reporting. The large utility companies and the city, Board of Education and Police Department employes, are among those still to report.

$225,411 From Firms Division.

Mayor Miller, in a statement announced extension of the campaign period, and urged early contributions to close up the fund and end the task of the unpaid volunteer workers in the no-expense campaign, all the proceeds of which go to direct relief.

Of the total announced last evening, the subdivisions were: From firms, executives and employes, $225,411.05; special gifts, $64,[illegible]24.50; women's division, $49,657.20; central division, $20,854; professional division, $7175.87; special headquarters section, $6541.24; miscellaneous, $2923.43.

W. R. King, associate director of the campaign, called attention to the fact that some large contributions of individuals, instead of being shown in the special gifts section, appeared in the list of firms and executives' gifts. Also, several special gifts are credited to the women's division. The firms division is headed by A. L. Shapleigh and Ethan A. H. Shepley, and the women's division by Mrs. Charles M. Rice.

Collector Koeln, explaining the delay in reporting the city employes subscriptions, said the regular payday, this week, was the best time to get subscriptions from the employes in several city departments.

The Larger Contributions.

Some of the larger contributions included in the total, some of which were announced last evening and some earlier, were:

Robert Gaylord, Inc., all executives and employes on 1 per cent basis, $4630.

Carter Carburetor Corporation, employes, $4640.

Mississippi Valley Trust Co., with executives and employes, $8.725.

St. Louis Star, with executives and employes, $4689.42.

Fouke Fur Co., with executives and employes, $3003.50.

J. Kennard & Co., with all employes, $2140.

Otis Elevator Co., with personnel, $908.

National Pet Shop, with all employes, $240.

Some of the organization gifts were: Ben A'Kiba Aid Society, $100; Eastern Star, Magnolia Chapter, $100, and Algabil Chapter, $100; Civitan Club, $50; and American Legion Auxiliary, Walter Runge Post, $5.

Ninety employes of the Westinghouse industries, subscribing on the 1 per cent basis, reported a total of $1900, with more employes to be added.

The women's division of the Statements on Relief Fund By Mayor and General Chairman

STATEMENTS issued yesterday by Mayor Miller and J. D. Perry Francis, general chairman of the Crisis Committee, follow:

A statement:

Sunday marks the closing day of crisis week, but it does not mark the closing day of the crisis campaign. We have only reached the half-way mark in our efforts to obtain $600,000.

Through the excellent co-operation given by citizens of St. Louis during this campaign, we have been able to effect a wonderful organization. We greatly appreciate the assistance given by the workers, who have given unselfishly of their time.

Pledge cards have been placed in the hands of each firm in the city. Therefore, in justice to the many volunteer workers and those who have immediately responded with contributions, we are asking that all do their share and that contributions be forwarded to the Crisis Committee at the earliest possible moment, so the campaign can be closed.

If you have not sent in your contribution, or have not been approached, please do so voluntarily, as this is a no-expense campaign and we do not have a large army of solicitors. It is up to all who have not donated up to the present time to help close this campaign by immediately responding to this request.

VICTOR J. MILLER, Mayor.

To the Men and Women of St. Louis:

There seems to be an impression among some of our citizens that the Relief Crisis Committee has not been giving daily to the press the full amount of subscriptions received.

This is erroneous.

It is true that we have unofficial information of hundreds of subscriptions being made up, but though every effort is being made to secure their prompt delivery to headquarters, they have not yet been received.

The press has been given daily the totals of all subscriptions received, and we will continue to give them these daily totals.

We feel that this is a duty we owe the public.

This is a crisis. It must be met by the public now and not at a later date.

Keep in mind—this committee is merely your agent.

J. D. PERRY FRANCIS,
General Chairman.

LAST OF TREASURES TAKEN FROM TUTANKHAMEN'S TOMB

Howard Carter, Defying "Curse of Pharaohs," Completes Work in Egypt.

By the Associated Press.

LUXOR, Egypt, Feb. 27.—Scorning "the curse of the Pharaohs," which threatens death to disturbers of Egypt's ancient tombs, Howard Carter has just completed the removal of the last of the treasures from the tomb of King Tutankhamen.

It was in 1922, after 16 years of patient and systematic research in the Valley of the Kings, that Carter, in association with the late Lord Carnarvon, discovered an entrance to the tomb.

The cataloguing and removal of some of the treasure were delayed by the death of Lard Carnarvon resulting from a mosquito bite. Superstitious persons pointed to Lord Carnarvon's death as fulfillment of "the curse of the Pharaohs." Later, others of the expedition died.

Carter, however, has remained immune to disaster. The last objects to be taken from the tomb included a camp-bed similar to those used today and a magnificent inlaid chest.

DOROTHY ELLINGSON TO LEAVE PRISON AFTER SIX YEARS

At 16 She Killed Her Mother During Quarrel, Then Went to Dance.

By the Associated Press.

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Feb. 27.—Dorothy Ellingson, who when 16 years old shot and killed her mother during a quarrel over a party and then went to a dance, will leave San Quentin prison Monday, a free woman.

She has served six and one-half years of a 10-year manslaughter sentence. Time off for good conduct allows her to go free.

Described during her trial as a product of the "jazz age" dance halls, she will emerge from prison 23 years old, with $10 in her pocketbook and a one-way ticket to San Francisco, her former home.

On the advice of her father, who formerly was Joseph Ellingson, but who has changed his name, she decided not to tell her future plans.

MARYLAND STATE COMMISSIONER OF BANKS INDICTED

State Senator Who Headed Closed Depository and Four Other Officers Named by Grand Jury.

By the Associated Press.

ELLIOTT CITY, Md., Feb. 27.—State Senator Emory N. Coblentz and State Banking Commissioner George W. Page were among six persons indicted by the Howard County grand jury today on charges growing out of the failure of the Central Trust Co. of Maryland and its 11 branches last September.

The indictments were returned in connection with absorption of the Washington Trust Co. of Elliott City by the Central Trust Co. Judge Francis Neal Park issued bench warrants for the six indicted men.

In addition to Page and Coblentz, the indictments named Charles McMathias, Grover L. Michael and C. Thomas Summers, vice presidents, and S. Elmer Brown, treasurer of the Central. Coblentz was its president.

Charges of malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance were returned against Page, based on allegations he gave false information to the directors of the Washington Trust Co. as to the financial position of the Central, on which the merger was approved.

The other indictments charged Coblentz with having accepted deposits when he knew the Central Trust Co. was unsound, and when he knew it was to close the day after the deposits were made. Others charged conspiracy to defraud depositors against Coblentz and the other officials of the bank.

State's Attorney James Clark said the investigation of the bank here had not been completed with the return of the indictments and that it would be carried on by the incoming jury.

The Central Trust Co. was closed last Sept. 3 and its 11 branches in Frederick, Washington, Montgomery, Howard and Carroll Counties were closed with it. The grand juries of the other counties have been investigating.

After the closing Coblentz attributed the collapse to shinkage of values of the banks' investments, coupled with "unfavorable publicity" received by him in connection with the failure of the F. H. Smith Co., Washington building concern.

SMITH CALLS ON DEMOCRATS TO MAKE DRY LAW AN ISSUE

Former Governor Says Platform Should Contain Comprehensive Plank on Prohibition Stand.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, speaking at the National Democratic Club today, declared that President Hoover "became the dry leader of the country" by his stand on the Wickersham report.

He called upon the Democratic party to write into its platform a "comprehensive and understandable proposal that will command the respect of all thinking people" on the subject of prohibition. Smith condemned "ducking and dodging" the prohibition question. He insisted it is an issue and said "to say that prohibition is not an issue is stupid and I think that the men who say it is not do not believe it themselves."

$132,500,000 BILL FOR FEDERAL ROAD AID PASSES HOUSE

MEASURE NOW GOES TO SENATE

Proponents Say It Will Give Work to 1,000,000— G. O. P. Leaders Oppose It Because of Deficit.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. — The $132,500,000 emergency highway construction bill designed to provide employment and permit states to pursue their road construction programs was approved today by the House. The vote was 205 to 109.

Those voting for the bill were 151 Democrats, 53 Republicans and the one Farmer-Labor member, Kvale of Minnesota. Twelve Democrats joined 97 Republicans in opposing the bill. Crisp of Georgia and Doughton of North Carolina, Democrats, and Hawley of Oregon and Finley of Kentucky, Republicans, voted present.

The measure now goes to the Senate. It was passed after five hours of debate.

The bill permits the states the regular Federal highway aid funds to match the emergency money instead of funds of their own, making $120,000,000 immediately available. The emergency funds are to be repaid out of the regular Federal highway aid allotments over a period of 10 years beginning in 1938.

The sum of $12,500,000 is allotted for roads and trails in national forests, parks, Indian reservations and on public lands.

Proponents said they expected it to provide employment this year for 1,000,000 men.

Republican opponents charged the expenditure should not be made because of the Treasury deficit.

The Democrats countered that the administration had asked for billions of dollars for relief of banks and other financial institutions, but nothing for employment relief.

Denounces "Mob Psychology."

After the vote, Representative Davenport (Rep.), New York, who opposed the bil, said it was necessary "for every Representative in Congress to insist upon putting a check upon the mob psychology which is already started in Congress in the direction of involving the country deeper and deeper in debt, while the sources of revenue are drying up on every hand."

Five amendments to the bill were adopted. Two, by La Guardia (Rep.), New York, provide that the prevailing local wage rates shall be paid and that none of the money be alloted to any state where convict labor is employed directly or indirectly on Federal-state projects.

Another was that of Warren (Dem.), North Carolina, providing that preference be given local labor. Others were by Thomason (Dem.), Texas, that only American citizens could be employed, and by Taylor (Rep.), Tennessee, making the allotments to national parks available to the projected Smoky Mountain National Park, in North Carolina and Tennessee.

An amendment offered by Huddleston (Dem.), Alabama, to appropriate $100,000,000 for direct relief to the unemployed was ruled out of order by Blanton of Texas, who was in the chair.

Says It Will Aid Unemployed.

Warren, a member of the House Roads Committee, opened the debate with an explanation of the bill.

"This is an emergency measure designed principally to help the unemployed," Warren said, "but it also is designed to help the several states to carry on their road construction. This bill when passed will be the first measure approved in this Congress seeking to give a job to a single human being in this country."

Representative Tilson (Rep.), Connecticut, asked why the bill was submitted "when the President or the Budget Bureau had not recommended it?"

"I'll tell you why," Warren replied. "There are 6,000,000 unemployed men walking the streets and the Roads Commitee has evidence before it that this bill will put 1,000,000 men to work.

"Already $109,000,000 has been appropriated for road construction and we are informed that three-fourths of the states are unable to accept it under the 50 per cent requirement of the Federal highway act. It has been conclusively shown that 90 per cent of this

SMALL GARRISON OF CHINESE STILL HOLD POSITION IN KIANGWAN RUINS

Food and Ammunition Sent to Defenders Through Gauntlet of Machine Gun Fire—Reinforcements Arriving.

JAPANESE SEEK TO BREAK "BOTTLE NECK"

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28 (Sunday).—A small but stubborn Chinese garrison still held out this morning in the ruins of Kiangwan, center point of the deadlocked Shanghai-Woosung battle line toward which both Japanese and Chinese were rushing reinforcements in preparation for a decisive battle.

Aided by air and artillery bombardment, the Japanese have made many assaults on Kiangwan and have issued numerous reports of victory, but neither shells nor communiques dislodged the defenders.

The Japanese announced that during yesterday's fighting they finally had succeeded in surrounding the village. Their infantrymen already were in the western end, they said, and were proceeding to mop up the rest of it.

Running Gauntlet With Food.

But at 11:30 o'clock last night this correspondent, who went out to see for himself, learned that the Chinese still held Kiangwan and that the garrison was being supplied with food and ammunition. These supplies were brought in from Miaochungchen to the northwest.

The communication line with the beleaguered garrison was very narrow, and the soldiers bearing food and ammunition ran a gauntlet of machine-gun fire from Japanese positions on either side. But the neck of the bottle still was open.

Japanese airplanes in a new effort this morning to cut this line of contact bombed the area around Miaochungchen, and also the stricken section of Chapei. Fifteen planes took off from the emergency flying field behind the lines and began scattering explosives over the Chinese positions, causing new fires to break out at Miaochungchen.

Help on the Way.

The early morning communique from Gen. Tsai Ting-kai, Chinese commander, said that the Kiangwan garrison still was intact and that help was on the way.

"The Government at Nanking has sent me two more divisions to reinforce the Nineteenth Route army," the communique said, "and this additional force will go into action when the Japanese offensive is renewed."

The harbor master reported early this morning that two Japanese troop ships had arrived off the Woosung forts, 16 miles down the Whangpoo from Shanghai. It was thought that these ships were the first of the great fleet that is bringing heavy reinforcements from Japan.

During the last few days several vessels have arrived with ammunitions and supplies for the Japanese, and on each of them there was a small complement of soldiers. About 1000 men were landed yesterday.

The Japanese Plan.

When the last crowded transport has arrived, the Japanese—unless they change their tactics—will attempt once again to break through the Chinese defenses at Kiangwan and thereby cut off the troops defending the northern end of the Shanghai-Woosung line from the units holding the strong Chinese positions in Chapel. Then the plan will be to conduct separate opera-

ALFONSO CALLS ON SPAIN TO OVERTHROW REPUBLIC

Exiled King Joins Uncle, Alfonso Carlos, in Manifesto; Would Give People Representation.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—Former King Alfonso and his uncle, Alfonso Carlos, traditionalist pretender to the Spanish throne, have issued a call to the Spanish people to overthrow the new republic in Spain, a member of Prince Alfonso Carlos' entourage said tonight.

In the manifesto the former King accepted his uncle as head of the family and proposed restoration of the monarchy as a form of provisional government, which would collaborate with legislative chambers representative of the people, "in giving Spain a truly Christian Constitution."

The two monarchist heads met during a recent visit to Vienna, the spokesman said, when the outlines of the manifestos were drawn up. These were issued through followers before the nephew left recently for Greece. Both held to the principle that everyone must unite "to save Spanish society from the wave of anarchy and communism which has invaded it."

The French Government is not expected to take any action regarding Alfonso's part in the manifesto, unless the Spanish Government raises the issue. Alfonso has established a home in exile in France.

KIDNAPED, RESCUED AFTER SEVEN OF GANG ARE CAUGHT

New York Man Abducted As He Steps Out of Auto on Riverside Drive.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Waylaid by four men on fashionable Riverside drive today, Abraham Rosenberg was kidnaped and taken to a West Fifty-fourth street hotel, where police a few hours later crashed down the door and captured five men whom they accused of abducting him. Rosenberg, guarded by two other members of the gang, was found outside the hotel.

The kidnaping was one of the most daring of recent months. Rosenberg and Eugene Murphy, who police said lived at the hotel, stepped out of Murphy's car at Seventy-fifth street and West End avenue on their way to visit friends. As they did so, four young men ran up to Rosenberg, beat him on the face and forced him and Murphy into a sedan, which sped away from the scene.

A bystander saw the kidnaping and gave the alarm to the police. In the meantime, several blocks away, Murphy had been thrown out, and also had hurried to notify the police. He then went to the hotel, trailed by police, who thus obtained the first lead, which resulted in the arrests. Several hours later police raided the room and rounded up the first group of five men. Rosenberg and the others were picked up a few minutes later.

JAPAN FINDS SELF STANDING ALONE, TROUBLES GROW

Russia's Protests Against Operations Helps to Emphasize Tokio Government's Isolation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27. — Japan's troubles have been multiplying of late; and—with Russia joining in the worldwide protests against her activities in China—isolation of the Tokio Government has become practically complete.

Stalemate military operations at Shanghai, uneasiness at home over the cost of the ventures against the Chinese, indications that the people of China are effecting a united front and the possibility that the League of Nations will proclaim an economic boycott—these now have combined with Russia's objection to Japanese plans in Manchuria to make Tokio's plight of severe proportions.

Both the Foreign Office there and the Japanese Embassy in Washington stoutly deny the Russian charge that Japan is co-operating with anti-Bolshevist Russians in Manchuria but Moscow refuses to permit the Japanese troops to use the Chinese Eastern Railway east of Harbin for the alleged suppression of Chinese persecution of Japanese Nationals, thereby hindering Japan's plan for the stabilization of the new Government set up in Manchuria.

Truce Terms One-Sided.

Dr. Hawkling Yen, the Chinese Charge d'Affaires in Washington, was asked about possible truce plans. He said he has no information and thinks the Chinese intend to stand their ground at Shanghai indefinitely, as Japan's truce terms are considered entirely one-sided.

There is a growing opinion in Washington official circles that Japan would be happy to find some means of ending the struggle at Shanghai. A truce at Shanghai before the meeting of the assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva on March 3 would probably have considerable effect on the economic boycott movement.

The threatened economic boycott against Japan has become a general subject of discussion in Washington, but America's participation in such a boycott, should the

LONDON RUMORS OF CONFLICT'S END

In Tokio Government's Plan, Troops of Countries Having Establishments in Chinese City Would Be in Charge.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28 (Sunday.)—Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese Minister to China, said today there was no prospect of an immediate truce or material change in the situation at Shanghai.

His statement was in response to reports from Geneva that a truce was in prospect and advices from Tokio that the Japanese Foreign Office had instructed him and Tsuneo Matsudeira, Ambassador to London, to make known Japan's desire to halt hostilities when the Chinese were willing to withdraw from their military positions.

Minister Shigemitsu reiterated that the Japanese were seeking to end the hostilities as soon as possible, but that any truce depended on the Chinese accepting the Japanese demands that they evacuate the Shanghai area. He said there was no indication of a Chinese acceptance.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Feb. 27.—Naotake Sato presented today to the Council of the League of Nations a proposal by the Japanese Government to settle the Shanghai conflict by establishing a neutral zone about the city which would be occupied by the military forces of the great Powers.

The Japanese communication was taken under consideration by the members of the Council and it was expected that as quickly as possible a formal meeting would be held to discuss it.

It was understood that representatives of the Powers in Shanghai were conducting negotiations with the Japanese on the neutral zone plan.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Reuters (British) News Agency correspondent at Geneva reported tonight that strong rumors were current there to the effect that an immediate truce was in prospect at Shanghai.

The correspondent said that an important communication by Japan to the League of Nations Council might make possible an immediate cessation of hostilities.

ST. CHARLES BUS HELD UP; $40 AND 3 RINGS TAKEN

8 Passengers and Driver Robbed by Two Men; Companion Follows in Auto.

Eight passengers and the driver of a Wellston-St. Charles motorbus were held up last night west of Alsop avenue on the St. Charles road and robbed of $40, two rings and three purses.

Two robbers boarded the bus at Alsop avenue, and while one held a pistol on the driver, Charles Edney, 23 years old, the other robbed the passengers. Of the loot, about $25 was taken from Edney.

The robbers alighted from the bus at Ashby road and got into a roadster in which a companion had followed the motorbus, and all fled.

HOOVER PRAISES CREDIT EXPANSION BILL AND SIGNS IT

Declares It Will Enable Banks "to Meet Any Conceivable Demands That May Be Made on Them."

IT LIBERALIZES REDISCOUNT RULES

Treasury Secretary Mills Places Potential Credit Increase It Permits at $10,000,000,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—The Glass-Steagall bill to liberalize the Federal Reserve rediscount rules became law late today when President Hoover signed it.

In a formal statement, the President expressed appreciation to members of both the Senate and House of both parties, who co-operated in its speedy enactment. He said it was "in a sense" a "national defense measure."

He said the measure would so increase the resources of the Federal Reserve banks as to enable them "beyond question to meet any conceivable demands that may be made on them at home or from abroad."

What the Bill Provides.

Following is a brief description of the Glass-Steagall bill and its possibilities:

For one year—until March 3, 1933—member banks of the Federal Reserve System capitalized for less than $5,000,000, may rediscount paper not previously eligible.

It will open new credit channels to all but 62 of the 7600 member banks.

Groups of five member banks may enjoy these special rediscount privileges permanently beyond the one-year limit.

A theoretical credit expansion of $10,000,000,000 is estimated to be possible under the measure by Secretary Mills.

He calculates, also, a possible $3,500,000,000 expansion of currency.

By allowing the use of Government obligations as collateral for currency, officials estimate approximately $750,000,000 in gold, now used as backing above the 40 per cent requirement, will be released from that service.

President's Statement.

The President's statement follows:

"In signing this bill, which comprises an essential part of the reconstruction program, I desire to express my appreciation to the leaders and members of both Senate and House of both parties, who have co-operated in its enactment. The fine spirit of patriotic nonpartisanship shown in carrying out the emergency program is, I know, appreciated by the whole country.

"The bill should accomplish two major purposes.

First, in a sense this bill is a national defense measure. By freeing the vast amounts of gold in our Federal Reserve System (in excess of the gold reserve required by law), it so increases the already large available resources of the Federal Reserve banks as to enable them beyond question to meet any conceivable demands that might be made on them at home or from abroad.

"Second, it liberalizes existing provisions with regard to eligibility of collateral and thereby enables the Federal Reserve banks to furnish accommodations to many banks on sound assets heretofore inavailable for rediscount purposes.

Major Factor in Depression.

"The gradual credit contraction during the past eight months arising indirectly from causes originating in foreign countries and continued domestic deflation, but more directly from hoarding, has been unquestionably the major factor in depressing prices and delaying business recovery.

"The measure I am signing today, together with the additional capital provided for the Federal land banks and the creation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, will so strengthen our whole credit structure and open the channels of crtdit as now to permit our banks more adequately to serve the needs of agriculture, industry and commerce.

"I trust that our banks with the assurances and facilities now provided will reach out to aid business and industry in such fashion as to increase employment and aid agriculture.

"I am confident that the further nonpartisan measures of reconstruction to assist the earlier payment of depositors in closed banks, to apply rigid economy in Government expenditures, to balance the budget, to reform railway regulation, etc., will be dealt with by the Congress in the same spirit of cooperation that these great questions have already received."

Before departing, Miss Damita denied she and Smith were married.

JAPAN PROPOSES SHANGHAI NEUTRAL ZONE TO POWERS

Just as the hands of the big clock on the customs house tower at Shanghai marked midnight, the heavy guns of both forces went into action in Chapei and Hongkew.

The cannonading continued until after 1 o'clock this morning. To noncombatants in the International Settlement it sometimes seems that the artillerymen time their gunning by the big clock, which is plainly visible from both sides of the battle line.

Inspection of the front line last night showed that the opposing lines extended in a gentle curve from Woosung to a point nearly a mile east of Miaochungchen, thence south to Kiangwan and eastward around the village to its southern limits, and thence south to Chapei.

Artillery Pits, Machine-Gun Nests.

The whole area between the Kiangwan front and the Chinese support positions in the vicinity of Tazang, four miles to the west, was honeycombed with artillery pits and machine-gun nests. Northward toward the Liuhang hinterland the territory also was heavily fortified and swarming with soldiers.

Although the Japanese have said for days that they control the village of Miaochungchen, 3000 Chinese soldiers were entrenched there and they seemed prepared to hold out indefinitely. Well built trenches criss-crossed the entire town and barbed-wire entanglements were everywhere. Food and munition supplies were adequate. The Japanese front line was three-quarters of a mile to the east.

The Japanese today put their total casualties in the Shanghai operations to date at 204 dead and 1475 wounded. Army casualties were 104 dead and 975 wounded, and the losses suffered by bluejackets sent ashore from warships were estimated at 100 dead and 500 wounded.

Every one of the 1200 officers and men of the Thirty-first United States Infantry was ordered vaccinated today. Numerous cases of smallpox in Shanghai caused Army physicians to take this measure as a safeguard against the danger of a possible epidemic.

Japan's Financial Situation Further Aggravated by Operations.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Prediction that the operations in China will seriously aggravate Japan's "already strained financial situation" was received today from Halleck A. Butts, commercial attache at Tokio. Butts informed the Commerce Department that domestic loans probably would be necessary.

The principal commodity markets of Japan, particularly silk, as well as the stock market, were adversely affected upon receipt of word of new foreign reactions to the Shanghai situation.

Textile spinners have agreed, Butts said, to continue their present production curtailment until July. Activities in the cement, iron and steel industries continue because of the military and Manchurian demand.

President Attends Funeral.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—President Hoover, members of his Cabinet and virtually the entire diplomatic corps today attended funeral services for Mrs. Rosamond Winslow, daughter of Under Secretary of State and Mrs. William R. Castle. The services were held in Bethlehem chapel of Washington Cathedral and were conducted by the Very Rev. G. C. F. Bratenahl Mrs. Winslow, 27 years old, died in New York of pneumonia.

SMALL HOPE FOR 36 TRAPPED IN COAL MINE

Rescuers Driven Out by Gas After Explosion in Pit Near Pocahontas, Va.

By the Associated Press.

POCAHONTAS, Va., Feb. 27.—Hope for the lives of 36 miners, trapped by an explosion this morning in the Boissevain coal mine, owned by the Pocahontas Fuel Co., has been virtually abandoned.

Rescuers tried in vain to reach the section where the workers were entombed early today.

Gas and dust, however, forced the withdrawal of the rescue squads. Thomas Stockdale, West Virginia inspector, who headed the first rescue crew into the mine, said it was improbable that any of the men would be found alive. Fans are forcing fresh air into the mine in the hope that the rescue crews may again be able to enter it.

Little damage was done in the sections through which the rescue crews passed. The explosion seemed to be local, and some of the miners escaped uninjured.

None of those who escaped could give a detailed account of what had occurred.

money will go for labor."

Warren pointed out the bill provided that preference be given local labor on all projects.

Wood (Rep.), Indiana, led the debate for the opponents witn a charge that Government department heads were attempting to "undermine what President Hoover is doing toward reducing expenditures." He said he hoped "that the bill won't be on the President's desk five minutes before he vetoes it."

Purnell (Rep.), Indiana, said that "until somebody comes forward and tells how to get this $132,500,000, I believe we ought to stop considering it. The Appropriations Committee is trying to save money and at one fell swoop we propose to spend more than that committee will ever save."

Chindblom (Rep.), Illinois, disagreed with estimates that 1,000,000 men could be put to work by the bill. "That's perfectly ridiculous," he said. "The greatest possible number that would be given employment under this bill is 35,000. Roads are built largely by machinery."

JAPAN TO INVADE CHINESE INTERIOR TO BLOCK TROOPS

Air Forces and Navy to Attempt to Stop Reinforcements Being Sent to Shanghai.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Feb. 27.—Japan is ready to use its air force and navy in interior China to prevent the Chinese from reinforcing their line at Shanghai, it was learned today on high authority. The navy will be ordered to stop troop movements down the Yanktze River and air raids will be employed to discourage the Chinese from bringing up reinforcements by land.

The policy already has been put into effect on a small scale. The recent raids by naval planes on the Chinese air bases at Soochow and Hangchow were examples.

A Government spokesman asserted that three factors have contributed in making the Shanghai conflict almost war on a national scale. He said these factors were the storm of censure against Japan from neutral Powers, the attitude of the League of Nations, and fabricated reports of Chinese victories which have convinced the masses of China that the time is ripe to crush Japan.

Alarmed by Reinforcements.

The Japanese military authorities at Shanghai are known to have expressed alarm over the possibility of numerous and early reinforcements for the Chinese forces there.

It was understood that Japanase destroyers will attempt to break up any additional Chinese troop movements across the Yangtze at Nanking. Thousands of men are reported to have crossed the river there en route to Shanghai.

Other warships will be ordered to intercept troop movements down the river from Kiukiang and Hankow. Information that Gen. Chiang Fah-kewi's fourth army, known as "The Ironsides," had left Yoonhow for Shanghai was thought to be partly responsible for this decision. According to these reports, the General had 30,000 men.

Attitude on Neutral Zone.

In official quarters it was intimated that it would be impossible fully to comply with the suggestions made by the Ambassadors of the four great Powers yesterday regarding protection of the Shanghai International Settlement.

One of the suggestions of the Ambassadors—The representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Italy and France, was that no more reinforcements be landed within the Settlement. In official circles it was said that army commanders at Shanghai might not be able to commit themselves definitely in this matter. It also was said that the removal of Japanese warships from their moorings off the Settlement presented considerable difficulty.

Because of the informal character of the representations made by the four Ambassadors, the Foreign Office may decide that written replies are not necessary, especially as Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa assured the Ambassadors of Japan's earnest desire to refrain from any action that might harm the Settlement, directly or indirectly.

AMERICANS IN SHANGHAI READY TO EVACUATE IF NEED ARISES

Each U. S. Citizen Assigned to a Concentration Point; Removal to Steamers If Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 27. — Americans were informed today of exactly what to do and where to go if the Chinese-Japanese conflict reaches such proportions that it becomes necessary for United States citizens to evacuate the city. Each American resident was assigned to a concentration point by United States consular authorities. The address, telephone number and other necessary data concerning each American was entered on special registration cards.

A plan has been made for moving out Americans with the greatest speed possible. In cases where specific areas become danger zones, Americans living in them will be afforded refuge in schools, churches and clubs.

In the event that the outlying districts generally become untenable, Americans will be concentrated in the downtown section. If this portion of the city also becomes involved in the conflict, all Americans will be removed to steamers within the harbor and to American properties on the other side of the river.

SOLDIERS WRECK NEWSPAPER PLANT, WOUND 7 EMPLOYES

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Feb. 27.—Fifty soldiers, including 10 officers, raided the plant of the newspaper Diario Carioca, wounded six printers and a reporter, with bullets or sabres, wrecked the plant and set the editorial offices afire Thursday, it was learned today.

Previously the newspaper O Globo's plant at Para had been destroyed in a similar assault by a military group.

The soldiers, armed with rifles and machine guns, drove up in two trucks shortly after midnight for the attack on the Diario Carioca, plant. After the attack they disbanded, firing in the streets, which caused nearby cafes to close. The soldiers escaped before police and firemen arrived.

League of Nations proclaim it, is regarded as doubtful because of the bitter opposition of Senator Borah and other leaders of both houses of Congress. It is also known in Washington that neither Great Britain nor France will support such a movement against Japan unless loyalty to the League of Nations makes it inevitable.

Only Majority Needed.

The full assembly of the League of Nations, with 54 members, possibly will support very drastic action against Japan. It requires only a majority vote to support such action in that body. But the League Council has the final decision, and as unanimous vote must be had in the Council assembly, action will not necessarily be sustained. Japan and China are members of the Council, but would be excluded from voting in view of being parties to the controversy.

There are indications that the leading Powers in Europe are inclining more and more to the American position, namely, that any rights which Japan may obtain by the invasion of Manchuria and the fighting at Shanghai will not be recognized, as they will be in violation of the nine-Power treaty and the Kellogg-Briand nonaggression pact.

RUSSIAN CONCERN OVER MANCHURIA SURPRISES TOKIO

War Office Spokesman Denies Japanese Military Authorities Are Aiding Anti-Soviets.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Feb. 27.—There is no likelihood that Japan will risk another international crisis with Russia, Government spokesmen said today, in commenting on the questions addressed by Russia to Japan in regard to Japanese military operations in Northern Manchuria.

War Office and Foreign Office spokesmen said that Russia's "nervousness" over Japan's intentions in Northern Manchuria was based on distorted interpretations of the situation and raised to unwarranted dimensions a "purely local problem."

Official Tokio was surprised by the Russian inquiries, which were presented by L. M. Karakhan, acting Commissar for Foreign Affairs, to the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow. It was pointed out that the Soviet Government has been complacent toward Japanese military operations within the Harbin district.

The War Office spokesman emphatically denied that the Japenese military authorities in Manchuria were lending any encouragement to "White" (anti-Soviet) Russians and he suggested that reports of such activities emanated from the anti-Soviet Russians themselves, who hoped perhaps to raise funds in that manner.

A Foreign Office representative indicated Japan might be preparing to hold Russia responsible for damages suffered by Japanese nationals in Northern Manchuria unless the Moscow Government permitted troop movements over the Chinese Eastern Railway, which is jointly owned by Russia and China.

The Japanese Manchurian military command wants to use the road to transport troops to the vicinity of Imienpo, where 13,000 followers of Gen. Ting Chao, Chinese leader, are reported to have occupied several towns and to have looted the property of Japanese and Koreans.

REFORMS IN STATE GOVERNMENT ARE URGED BY BOARD

Committee, After Months of Inquiry, Makes Public Recommendations Prepared for Assembly.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 27.—Simplification of legislative procedure to the extent of requiring "an actual revision of the statutes, a limit on the number of legislative clerks and consolidation of certain boards and bureaus," will be recommended to the next General Assembly by the Legislative Committee on Taxation and Governmental Reform, it was announced tonight.

The committee gave out a long list of recommendations at the end of a two-day executive session. The committee, sponsored by the Missouri Farmers' Association, said details of its recommendations would be made later.

Other recommendations include:

Legislation putting into effect the constitutional provision limiting official salaries or fees to not exceed $10,000 a year.

Uniform system of accounting for State departments.

Centralization of all State tax collections, except general property tax.

Assessment of property and collection of taxes in the same year.

Reduction of penalties imposed because of delinquency in payment of general taxes.

Simplification of method and reduction in the expense of enforcing payment of delinquent general property tax and special assessments.

Budgeting of county expenditures.

Central purchasing for all county departments.

Periodic audits of county accounts.

A uniform system of accounting for all counties.

Consolidation of offices of Circuit Clerk and Recorder, also the office of Collector and Treasurer in all counties except possibly a few of the larger counties.

Abolition of office of Public Administrator, except possibly in some of the larger counties.

Salary or compensation of all offices to be based on population as determined by last Federal census.

Revision of fees for transporting insane to hospitals and delinquents to reform institutions.

Revision of election laws to cut expenses by reducing number of judges in general election to four in precincts casting less than 500 votes. Also a reduction in number of ballots furnished for minor political parties in primary elections.

Require the county and township Assessors and Collectors to assess and collect property tax in cities.

Mandatory permanent registration of voters in all counties and cities where registration is required.

The committee is also considering recommending a change in methods of assessing and collecting taxes; reforming court procedure with view to savng costs; central purchasing and budgeting for the State.

The committee, which has been at work for months, has conducted hearings in virtually every section of the State. It also has obtained recommendations from nearly all state officials. The committee, of which Senator D. L. Bales of Shannon County is chairman, is composed of 10 members of the House and Senate.

Other members are Senators A. M. Clark, Richmond, and J. G. Morgan, Unionville, and Representatives Langdon R. Jones, Kennett; Jones H. Parker, St. Louis; James W. Armstrong, Richland; O. B. Whitaker, Weaubleau; Jerome J. Joffee, Kansas City; Rush H. Limbaugh, Cape Girardeau, and W. E. Freeland, Forsyth.

AL CAPONE APPEAL DENIED; HE MUST GO TO U. S. PRISON

Only Supreme Court Can Save Gangster but It Is Not Likely to Consider His Case.

NO CREDIT FOR TIME HE SPENT IN JAIL

He Has Been Locked Up Since Oct. 24 Pending Decision on His Conviction as Tax-Dodger.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27. — "Scarface Al" Capone, Chicago's No. 1 gangster, lost his appeal to the Federal Circuit Court today and must serve his 11-year sentence for evading income taxes, unless the United States Supreme Court intervenes.

The Government indicated it would ask Monday for Capone's immediate removal from the Cook County jail to the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Speeding up its machinery because the defendant was in jail awaiting its decision, the Circuit Court of Appeals handed down a 5000-word opinion, finding the indictments against Capone were sufficient under the language of the statutes and that Capone had not been deprived of his constitutional rights.

It meant the continuance of the Government's 100 per cent record in convictions in gangster income tax cases. Every gangster tried has been sentenced. Every one who has appealed has lost and the Supreme Court has refused to review all cases thus far.

Capone was found guilty by a jury Oct. 17. A week later Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who has since been nominated by President Hoover for the Circuit bench, gave him the greatest penalty ever assessed in an income tax case. It was 10 years in the Federal prison, one year in the county jail and $50,000 fine.

Capone was ordered into custody immediately and both Judge Wilkerson and the Circuit Court refused him bail. The Appellate Court, however, granted him a writ of supersedeas which permitted him to remain in the county jail until the appeal was decided.

Since Oct. 24 Capone has been in the county jail without getting any credit for the time served. There have been many rumors to the effect that he was controlling his gang from his cell, and only yesterday the United States Marshal placed a special 24-hour guard at the jail. It had even been rumored that the gang chief planned a break with help from his lieutenants.

Ordinarily the Circuit Court waits 20 days before sending a defendant to prison in order to allow time for the filing of a petition for a rehearing. It was announced at the District Attorney's office, however, that because of the unusual features of the Capone case an effort would be made to have the gangster sent to prison immediately.

The gangster's attorneys were both out of the city today and Capone refused to talk. When informed of the decision by one of his jailers, Capone turned without a word and threw himself on a cot and hid his face.

It is actually a matter of life and death with many. It is actually a matter of life and death with many. Death can result just as surely from undernourishment or lack of clothing and proper protection — opening tht way for disease and worry and despair—as it can by some physical catastrophe.

"Second, this is a crisis in the sense that a great responsibility has been clearly put up to the citizens of St. Louis. The choice which is made reveals the character and quality of the people of our city. We will know within a few days whether St. Louis has the capacity, the imagination, the courage and the vision to rise to a great emergency."

Bernard F. Dickmann, president of the Real Estate Exchange, in a radio talk last night, said:

"If every citizen of St. Louis that could, had answered the appeal for relief at once, we could have closed this campaign tonight, oversubscribed. Some of our citizens have taken this appeal too lightly, hence we must keep on until we reach our quota of $600,000.

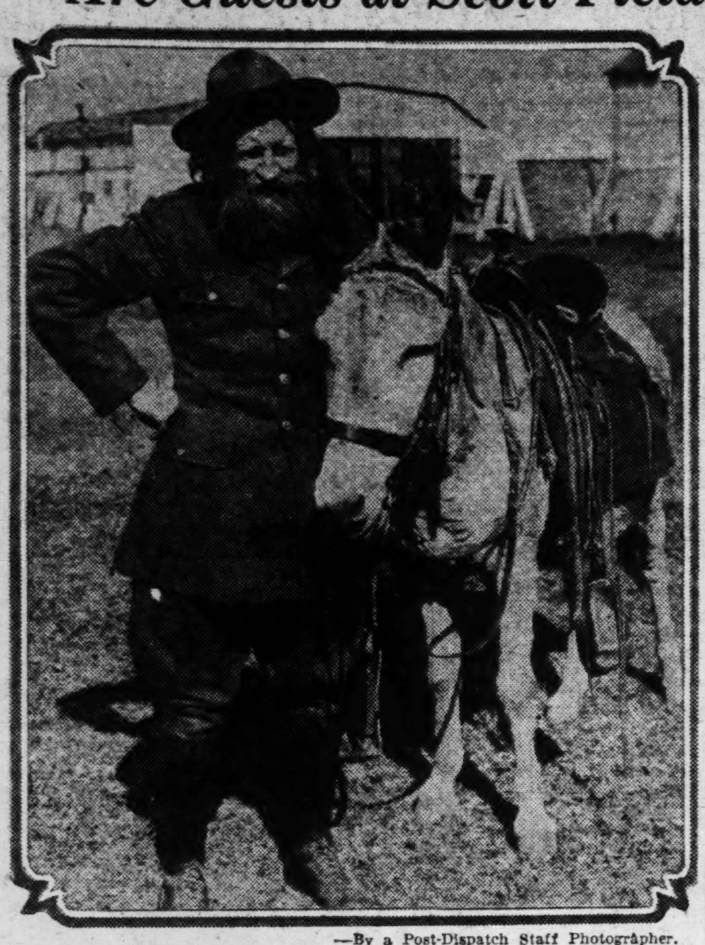
"Almighty God has been mighty good to the citizens of St. Louis, and to our unfortunate people in the marvelous moderate winter we are all enjoying. It has relieved some of the sufferings from cold. We can also be thankful that up to the present time the Citizens' Relief Committee and the various agencies of charity of St. Louis have handled this relief situation in such a marvelous manner. We have seen no bread lines, no mob violence, no demonstrations and havoc such as has been experienced in other cities. If we had, possibly those who have taken this appeal too lightly would be the first to contribute. In cities where such demonstrations have happened, they are raising sums many times greater than that asked of our citizens."

William R. King, associate campaign director, speaking by radio, said:

"I know that St. Louis will raise the $600,000 necessary to do the job before her citizens. I also know that this vast sum cannot be raised without the loyal and enthusiastic support of every member of the community. I know that St. Louis will not fail. But I also know that no one, two, dozen or thousand men and women can carry the load alone—it is the responsibility and privilege of every man, woman and child now working in this community.

"I know that, above all things, you want to help. Some of you who have wanted to help have not known how, so again I will tell you. Tonight, mail to the Relief Crisis Committee, City Hall, your contribution, whether it be a "widow's mite" or a substantial check. Headquarters in the City Hall rotunda will be open Sunday, and I, or other members of our staff, will be on hand to receive your contribution."

Old Indian Fighter, Burro Are Guests at Scott Field



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

RAYMOND HATFIELD GARDNER, better known as "Arizona Bill," with his burro, TIPPERARY. Arizona Bill, an old Indian fighter and scout, is spending the winter at Scott Field, inasmuch as he had a letter from the Secretary of War entitling him to the courtesies of all army posts. He is 86 years old.

86-Year-Old Soldier Likes Flyers, and They Like Him—Special Hay Provided for His Animal.

The brisk, military efficiency of Scott Field has been thrown for a loss by an aged, whiskery Indian fighter and a burro from Tombstone, Ariz.

The pair, friends of the War Department, and of Lieutenant-Colonel John A. Paegelow, commandant of the Airport, dropped in just after Christmas to spend the rest of the winter. The Indian fighter is Arizona Bill, christened Raymond Hatfield Gardner when born in the Texas-Louisiana Territory 86 years ago. The burro is Tipperary.

When Tipperary and Arizona Bill arrived at Scott Field Dec. 28, on foot—that is, Tipperary was on foot; Bill was riding, his bushy whiskers waving grandly in the breeze—they asked—or, at least, Bill asked—immediately for the commanding officer.

"I had a letter," he said, "but I lost it. It was from the Secretary of War and it entitled me to the courtesies of any United States army post.

Recalls San Juan Hill.

"And besides," he continued, "I think I know you. Weren't you wounded at the Bloody Angle of San Juan Hill in the Spanish-American War? Don't you remember the civilian scout who gave you a drink and got a couple of stretcher-bearers to bring you in. Well, I'm him."

The Colonel was, the Colonel did, and the Colonel, figuratively at least, welcomed Arizona Bill to his bosom in recognition of the good old days and the missing War Department letter. Since then Bill has been sort of living around, first with one company and then another, while Tipperary was being quartered with the garrison mules.

It's a pleasant life for Tipperary. He has his special hay—not the common, ordinary hay that army mules consume, but hay of the finest quality, and when the supply runs out unexpectedly, as sometimes occurs, things happen.

The post was agog for a week the last time. Arizona Bill discovered at 5 o'clock that there was no more special hay. He hurried to the Colonel, the officer of the day, the operations officer, and even addressed a few remarks to the sergeant of the guard. Almost immediately one of the post trucks started for Belleville and someone telephoned a dealer in the best hay to keep his store open. Tipperary had his special feed that night.

Another night Arizona Bill became suddenly ill. It developed that what he needed was hot milk, so the officer of the day, with the hay incident still fresh in his mind, hurriedly aroused a mess cook, and with sword and spurs clanking, bore the steaming milk to Arizona Bill, in person. Col. Paegelow, who was about to retire, dropped in for a moment to make sure his old friend was all right, and the officer of the day sat up with Bill until the old Indian fighter fell asleep.

Relates His Experiences.

Arizona Bill's presence is not all confusion, however. During the lulls in the day's activities he tells those of the post who are interested how he was a mile away when Custer was killed, how he helped capture Geronimo, the raiding chief of the Apaches, and was with Gen. Miles' command when they killed Sitting Bull. His last active duty was just before the World War, when he accompanied Gen. Pershing's punitive expedition into Mexico.

He expects to remain at Scott Field until April 1. By then, he hopes to have acquired a Shetland pony. He's going to ride the pony while Tipperary carries the baggage and the three of them are going to Chicago for the Democratic National Convention. Then, after a jaunt up into Minnesota at Tipperary's regular cruising speed, 21 miles a day, they're going back to the Sotuhwest.

"I always spend the winter with an Army post," he explained, "because of the letter, you know. But this is the first time I've ever stopped with the Air Corps. I like it, and Tipperary seems to like the planes and the dirigibles, although at that, I don't think he'd want to ride in one."

ROBBER IS KILLED, 6 PERSONS SHOT IN CASINO AT MIAMI

One-Armed Grocer Who Led Band Slain as He Flees—Three of His Companions Wounded.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—A one-armed grocer who turned robber leader was killed and T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur golf champion, and five others were wounded early today in an attempt by a band of men to hold up the gambling casino of the fashionable Embassy Night Club.

Perkins, a guest of the club, was wounded in the thigh by one of the robbers, who used the husky six-foot Englishman as a shield in a pistol fight with two policemen and casino watchmen.

The shooting frustrated the hold-up and no money was taken. The policemen in civilian clothes were eating in the kitchen as the robbers entered. They were lined up with customers, but they caught the robbers off their guard and opened fire.

Perkins was to have played in the final match of the Dixie Amateur Golf Tournament here today, but officials gave the title to Tommy Goodwin Monroe, New York, by default after the Englishman's physician said his wound would prevent play for at least a month.

The slain man, who had strapped a home-made wooden forearm to his maimed elbow as a disguise, was identified as A. Y. Yarborough, formerly a grocer of Lakeland, Fla. He was killed by a bullet from the pistol of Bert Muth, a watchman, as he fled from the fight between his followers and the two policemen, Mack Oakford and G. J. Smith. He had been struck by bullets in the night club before Muth shot him four times in the head, at a distance of about 40 feet, as he emerged from the crowd of panic-stricken customers pouring out doors of the club.

The wounded, besides the British golfer, included three members of Yarborough's band, George Meyers, 40, Tulsa, Ok., gravely wounded in the mouth; Eugene Eckman, 50, Miami, seriously wounded near the heart, and an unidentified member of the gang who made his escape with two uninjured members. In addition, George Fratten, 30, and John B. Runs, also known as Frank Woods, employes of the club, were wounded on the legs.

Perkins was taken to a hospital shortly after the shooting for an operation to remove the bullet from his thigh. He described the robbers as a "bunch of flustered palookas."

The golfer, lying on his hospital bed, related that members of the gang entered the gambling casino and ordered about 50 customers to hold up their hands. Then, he said, shooting started in the dining room and one of the robbers, a small man, seized him and used his body for a shield until he shot him. Police said this man was Meyers, who was shot a few minutes later.

Eckman and Meyers were felled in the casino and were captured. Eckman's weapon was jammed when it was hit with a bullet.

Eckman Killed Woman in St. Louis in 1922.

Eckman, who formerly lived in St. Louis, shot and killed Mrs. Nora Gartland in her home at 2944 Cass avenue, Sept. 19, 1922. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison when he pleaded guilty of murder. Mrs. Gartland and Eckman had been partners in a bootlegging business and quarreled over that.

PLANNING MOVIE TARGETS TO TRAIN POLICE TO SHOOT

Drillmaster Nick Bosch Experimenting With Idea for St. Louis Department.

In an effort to simulate conditions under which a policeman would be required to use his revolver, Lieut. Nick Bosch, drillmaster and revolver coach of the St. Louis Police Department, is experimenting with moving picture targets.

With the assistance of electrical and projection experts, Lieut. Bosch has installed a projection machine and a detector on the police headquarters target range. The marksman fires at the moving figures thrown on the screen, which is made of paper on rollers. The detector, a microphone in the booth where the marksman stands, carries the report of the shot to a device, which stops the propection machine to permit an inspection of the target. The surface of the screen is then changed by means of the rollers, and the shooting goes on.

If the system, which Lieut. Bosch thinks will increase the efficiency of police marksmen, is approved by the Police Board, Bosch plans to have a series of films made covering every emergency in which a police officer may be required to shoot. The scenes, as planned by Lieut. Bosch, will show criminals firing into the lens of the camera, which will place the policeman in the position of a target for the criminal. It will then be up to the officer to shoot quicker than the figure on the screen. For the present, Western and gangster films are being used.

TEXAS GRAND JURY CLEARS J. B. M'CUTCHAN AND D. A. DAY

Exonerates Them of Charge of Embezzling $200,000 From Dallas Insurance Company.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, Tex., Feb. 27.—A grand jury here today exonerated J. B. McCutchan of St. Louis and Darby A. Day of Chicago of charges of embezzling $200,000 from the Automobile Underwriters' Insurance Co. of Dallas.

The Dallas company was forced into receivership a year ago when a group of insurance companies, headed by Day, collapsed. A joint indictment was returned against Day and McCutchan in Kansas City Federal Court last November, charging them with using the mails to defraud in connection with an insurance promotion program.

BIBLE BEST SELLER IN CHINA

British Society Reports 4,500,000 Customers Last Year.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 27.—The Bible is still a best seller in China. Devastating floods, famine, banditry and civil warfare in 1931 did nothing to stop the sale of Bibles in this country.

The secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society states that complete Bibles, testaments and single books were disposed of to 4,500,000 customers during the year.

BIGAMIST AND THIRD WIFE ARRESTED HERE

Thomas Evermon, Morristown, N. J., Held After Attempt to Sell Mortgaged Car.

Thomas Evermon, 35-year-old trucking contractor of Morristown, N. J., and his third wife, Mrs. Cora Fleming Evermon, whom he told police he married without divorcing his second wife, are being held for investigation, following their attempt to sell an automobile which police assert is mortgaged.

Evermon, who said he had been traveling for his health the last three months, said his situation was further complicated by the fact that his third wife is the daughter of an Eastern tea company executive who financed him in the trucking business after he lost another trucking business in the depression.

"He financed the company for me and gave his daughter 40 per cent of the stock," Evermon continued, "I was the manager. She was the secretary and bookkeeper. He took me into his home and his daughter and I fell in love. So we ran away and got married. The company had $700 in the bank and we lived on that, writing checks whenever we ran out of money. Out in California, we bought this car, paying $135 down. When we got here, I couldn't find work, so I offered the car for sale."

The dealer to whom the car was offered communicated with the police automobile bureau and was informed that the car and owner were being sought in California for non-payment of installments.

Evermon said his first wife and four children died in an influenza epidemic. He deserted his second wife and their two children some time ago, he said.

Reports Shot Fired Into Home.

Edward Hausan, 1403 Leroy avenue, Wellston, reported to Deputy Sheriffs that one of two men fired a shot through the front door of his home last night after he refused them admission. Hausan said one of the men drew a pistol, put a handkerchief to his face and attempted to enter, after the other had asked if a certain man lived there. Hausan said he did not know the man and was mystified by the incident.

FRANK A. NAGEL, 77, DIES; RETIRED RESTAURANT OPERATOR

President of Washington Hotel During World's Fair; Funeral Services Tomorrow.

Frank A. Nagel, retired restaurant and hotel operator, died of heart disease yesterday at his home, 5899 Cabanne avenue. He was 77 years old. The funeral is to be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Alexander's undertaking establishment, 6175 Delmar boulevard.

In the restaurant business Nagel was a contemporary of Tony Faust and for about 20 years operated Nagel's Restaurant at Sixth and St. Charles streets. He sold the restaurant business about 30 years ago and was president of the Washington Hotel, now the Monterey, during the World's Fair. Later he operated the Grand Hotel at Mackinac, Mich., but for many years he had been retired.

Surviving is his daughter, Mrs. Walter J. G. Neun. His wife, to whom he had been married for 57 years, died a few months ago.

RICHARDS SEEKS BAIL ON KIDNAPING CHARGE

Hearing on Motion Likely This Week — Jury's Vote at Mistrial Cited.

A hearing on the motion of Paul A. Richards, lawyer, for release on bail, pending a second trial on a charge of kidnaping for ransom in the Alexander Berg abduction case, will be held probably early this week by Circuit Judge Pearcy.

The motion, drawn by Verne Lacy, defense counsel, was filed yesterday with Judge Pearcy's clerk. Lacy contends that the fact the trial jury disagreed last week, voting seven to acquit Richards and five to convict him, shows that "the proof of guilt is not evident, nor the presumption great."

He further contends that the fact the State said it did not want the death penalty for Richards removes the element of the possibility of capital punishment in the case, thus making Richards admissible to bond in any event.

Richards was released on bond of $40,000 Nov. 13, two days after his arrest in the case. When bond was returnable, Dec. 4, he had been indicted, and further liberty on bail was refused him by Circuit Judge Ryan. He has since been lodged in city jail.

THEATRICAL STARS TO AID MILK SELLING CAMPAIGN

Effort to Obtain 20,000 New Customers for Jobless Mothers to Begin Tomorrow.

A campaign to increase the number of unemployed mothers selling milk from 50 to about 250 by obtaining 20,000 new customers for milk service will begin tomorrow under auspices of the Child Conservation Conference, sponsor of the milk selling plan.

A group of theatrical and screen stars, including Al Lyons and Eddie Peabody will appear at the milk sale headquarters, 917 Locust street, at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday to assist in the campaign. The Fanchon and Marco girls will be in the party.

Mrs. Norman M. Windsor, president of the conference, said about 500 new customers were obtained last week in advance of the campaign. A woman may be put to work for each 100 new customers, she said.

MAN WHO KILLED SELF AFTER CRASH IDENTIFIED AS FUGITIVE

Bank Robbery Suspect Apparenly Afraid to Face the Police.

INDIANA HARBOR, Ind., Feb. 27.—A young man who shot and killed himself a few minutes after his automobile figured in a minor accident Thursday, was identified tonight, police said, as Elmer Simons,, 27 years old, Little Falls, Minn., wanted in two states for bank robbery.

Earlier identification of the man as Clarence Ragland, a fugitive from an Ohio penitentiary, was found to be incorrect, Chief of Police Nicholas Makar announced. He said identification as Simons came through papers in the dead man's pockets, a police description, and measurements.

Simons was wanted, police said, for questioning in the robbery of a bank at Upsala, Minn., last Nov. 9 and had been identified as one of the men who robbed a bank in Highland Park, Ind., last Dec. 15. He fired two bullets into his head early Thursday morning after his automobile had collided with one driven by a woman. No one was hurt in the crash, and police believed Simons took his own life because of fear of arrest and possible disclosure as a robber.

PLEA FOR 10-STORY U. S. BUILDING HERE FILED IN CAPITAL

W. B. Weisenburger, President of Chamber of Commerce, Backs Argument With Figures.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—In a statement filed with the Director of the Budget today, Walter B. Weisenburger, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, urged approval of a congressional act to change the authorization for the new St. Louis Federal Building so that a 10-story instead of a five-story, structure may be erected.

The chamber, following the efforts of Congressman Cochran (Dem.), St. Louis, for this object, pointed out that it would not be necessary to appropriate the $1,500,000 additional needed for the extra five stories until 1934. The statement showed that only authorization to change the plans was needed at present, as this would permit the beginning of construction. The site has been acquired.

C. W. Gaylord, chairman of the board of the chamber, signed the statement, which was presented to the budget office after Weisenburger conferred with Congressmen Cochran and Dyer.

Money for Five Stories.

About $2,575,000 is available for construction now, but this will suffice only for the lower five floors. The chamber statement reminded the Government that the sale of Federal property in St. Louis which would no longer be needed after the erection of a 10-story structure would more than offset the additional cost of the new building. In this connection it placed the value of the present Federal Building and the old Custom House, which would be abandoned, and a lot at Fourth and Chestnut streets, which the Government bought years ago as a possible site, at $5,078,563.

The statement also said that $67,160 a year was being spent by the Government for rent for Federal offices in St. Louis which could be accommodated in the new building if the extra five stories were provided. There would be no space in a five-story new building for any new Federal agencies which might be created, the chamber added, and rent for their quarters would swell the cost of that item.

"False Economy."

It would be false economy to withhold the authorization for a change and the additional appropriation, but good business to grant them, the chamber declared. The new building is to face the Memorial Plaza in St. Louis, adjoining municipal buildings, and the chamber urged that the Federal building harmonize with the city buildings in size and architectural beauty.

The present Federal Building, erected about 58 years ago, cost $5,686,854, at a time when building and land costs were much lower than now, the chamber went on. It pointed to the growth of the St. Louis metropolitan district in population and industry since then, and added:

"The Federal operating bureaus in 1874 were fewer and their duties relatively less, because the volume of business was not today's equivalent by hundreds of millions of dollars annually. There was, therefore, proportionately a lesser need for government service and supervision. Business in this district has increased even at a larger rate than the population, because the area has become one of the industrial center sof the country. St. Louis, city and suburban, will continue to grow, and with it the need for the expansion of existing Federal agencies and the location of the headquarters of new ones as created."

APPEALS COURT REVERSES KEMPNER ESTATE SUIT

The United States Court of Appeals, in a decision yesterday, reversed a judgment for $17,595 in favor of the late Ike Kempner of Little Rock, Ark., holding that Kempner had failed to keep his part of a contract to serve as vice president of the Araknsas Amusement Corporation. United States Senator Joseph Robinson of Arkansas was attorney for A. J. and Stella Kempner, executors of the Kempner estate.

Kempner, who filed the suit befort his death, stated he had sold his interest in a chain of movie houses to the amusement company in consideration of $100,000 cash and a contract as vice president of the company at a salary of $8000 a year, with the understanding that no services would be required of him. He alleged the company broke the contract by requiring him to devote his time to the business. The United States District Court at Little Rock ruled in Kempner's favor in his claim for compensation.

Judge William S. Kenyon, former colleague of Senator Robinson in the Senate, wrote the opinion reversing the judgment. He commented in part: "Eight thousand a year may be an insignificant salary in the movie business, but in other lines it would be considered rather substantial, and requiring some return. Kempner claimed he had bought a soft position and, if he did, he nevertheless obligated himself by the contract to fill the office of vice president of the company. When he refused to perform that service he broke the contract."

SUIT FILED TO SET ASIDE WILL OF WILLIAM WATTERS

Relatives of Contractor Seek Share in $50,000 Estate; Wife Killed Self After His Death.

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by the parents and a sister of William Watters, contractor, to set aside his will disposing of an estate with an estimated value of $50,000. It is alleged he was unduly inflenced by his wife, Mrs. Anna Watters, to whom he bequeathed all of his property.

Watters died last March 7 in a hospital. Four hours after his death his widow ended her life by poisoning at her home, 2611 South Kingshighway. She left no will. In the absence of such document, her brother, Christian Mueller, 4977 Odell avenue, a letter carrier, as sole heir-at-law became entitled to both estates, with a combined value of $72,000.

The plaintiffs are Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Watters, both 77 years old, and Mrs. Cassandra Silverthorne. Mueller, as administrator, and Hettie L. Campbell, Mary A. Vinyard, Maud Page, Lillian Noftzer and Hazel Rhoda, as heirs-at-law, being sisters of Watters, are named as defendants. It is alleged in the suit that Mrs. Watters influenced her husband against his relatives so that when he made the will in 1924 excluding them he was not his own free agent. If the will should be set aside, Watters' parents and sisters would inherit one-half of his estate.

HEARING MASS BY RADIO IS SAID TO BE INVALID

Ecclesiastical Authorities at Rome Also Question Confession by Telephone.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 27.—Hearing mass by radio is considered invalid, ecclesiastical authorities here said today, but Father Gianfranceschi, director of the Papal radio station, said he thought it was a "question that may some day be examined."

This question, as well as the question of confession by telephone, was brought up by the newspaper Il Mattino of Naples and aroused considerable discussion. Ecclesiastical authorities here also said confession by telephone was invalid. Il Mattino published interviews with two churchmen, Cardinal Ascalesi of Naples, and Mgr. Alfonso Carinci, secretary of congregation of rites, in which they explained that the fulfillment of the Catholic duty to hear mass requires personal presence.

"A decision on such a delicate subject," he said, "could be taken only by the Holy Father himself. In special cases, such as for the sick, who now are dispensed from hearing mass, he might now require them to hear mass by radio when there are facilities for it."

Duke Sells His Coronet to Boost British Gold Supply

Is Paid $54,200 for 500-Year Old Headpiece Which Will Be Stripped of Its Jewels and Melted.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Carrying his coronet under his arm like a derby hat, an English Duke walked into a Bond street jewelry show today and sold the ancestral headpiece for £15,000 (about $54,200), so that it could be stripped of its jewels and melted to increase the nation's gold supply.

The identity of the Duke was not disclosed, but it was said that his family has held Baronial rank for nearly five centuries. His action was cited as an example to other Britons to disgorge their gold.

This transaction was the latest development in England's "gold rush," in which thousands of golden trinkets, ornaments and coins have been sold so that their owners can benefit from the present high price of gold and England benefit by its export.

Now that England is off the gold standard, bullion shipped to gold standard countries helps to support the pound sterling in the foreign exchange market.

With bullion quoted at 118 shillings 10 pence an ounce, long lines have formed at jewelry stores, and the offices of dealers in foreign exchange for days. One firm bought 80,000 sovereigns at about 28 shillings each this week.

England is digging out the heirlooms and the family plate searching for gold to sell. The merchants have taken advantage of the situation to increase their business, some advertising 32 shillings worth of goods for one sovereign. Sandwich men tramp the streets with the latest quotations on gold coins, and exchange dealers offer to buy one pound or one million at the current high prices.

The situation has developed "sterling patriots," persons who refuse to make a profit on their coins, taking them to their banks and exchanging them for pound sterling notes, thus sacrificing 8 shillings on each coin. The banks have to send the coins to the Bank of England and thus the Government nets an 8 shilling profit besides increasing the gold reserve.

Coin of the realm may not be melted, but the coronet sold by the unidentified Duke has been sent to Amsterdam. After the diamonds are picked out its eight golden strawberry leaves will be melted down with thousands of humbler offerings, such as lockets, wedding rings and old gold teeth.

CLEVELAND GANGSTER SLAIN

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 27.—Eight steel-jacketed bullets in his body, Charles Gentile, 26 years old, beer dealer and gangster, was found shot to death near the Cleveland Airport today. Taken for a ride apparently by men he thought were friends, his body was found in a ditch, a half-burned cigar still in one hand.

He was the fourth victim of a gang warfare in two days. Police at first believed he was slain as the outgrowth of triple execution Thursday, but later discounted this.

HAMMAR GIVES DIET FOR PROLONGING LIFE

In New Book on Ways to Retard Old Age, He Lists Foods to Avoid.

Potatoes, as Eddie Cantor has lyrically proclaimed, are cheaper. But that is no reason for eating them, in the opinion of Park G. Hammar, retired paint manufacturer and proponent of life-prolongation, who has published a new book, "Greater Cheer and Greater Efficiency for Well People."

"No potatoes of any kind, no Hubbard squash, no so-called starch foods" is the dictum of Hammar, a sturdy person of 68, to those whom he invites to join him in retarding and even reversing the aging process. There are other large noes, including no pork, no fried food, no candy, preserves or vinegar, and no alcoholic stimulant, tobacco, coffee, tea or cocoa. His diet formula has also its positive side, taking three of the book's 410 pages. It is part of a program which includes rural vacations, air baths, sun baths, violet rays, exercise and frequent naps of diminishing length. Adjustments of this routine to individual needs are to be made by "primitive science,' common or horse sense. You are to be your own doctor, John Everyman, D. P. M., Doctor of Preventive Medicine." This does not imply any distrust of the medical profession, and the reader is advised, in certain circumstances, to consult a physician.

The program laid down, though exacting, is easier than the one which Hammar proposed in his earlier book, published in 1929. He then planned a course of six months' communal life, with surf swimming, sleeping face downward on a log, and diet of fresh cocoanuts. Subsequent study, including a winter in a laboratory which he founded in Montreux, Switzerland, has convinced him that the plan can be simplified and brought nearer the general reach.

"In middle age, between 28 and 49," Hammar writes, "the aging process can be reversed; in the elderly stage, 49 to 70, it can be stopped; and for old people, 70 and more, it can be retarded." The bulk of the book undertakes to tell why and how this may be done, with many citations of scientific authorities. There are chapters of satirical comment on the manners and habits of present-day life, which is termed suicidal in its disregard of the principles of well-being. One commendable exception is noted. Cleanliness is more widespread than it once was, partly because of the efficiency of soap advertising, but "not overlooking the enterprise of municipalities and water companies in making clean, purified water as cheap and convenient as dirt."

J. R. DYER OUT FOR CONGRESS

Democratic Candidate for Repeal of 18th Amendment.

J. Raymond Dyer, a lawyer with offices in the Boatmen's Bank building, yesterday announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress. He resides on a farm in Jefferson county which he owns jointly with his father, H. Chouteau Dyer.

In his platform, he said he favored repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and until such time as that could be accomplished, modification of the Volstead Act. He denounced extravagance in government and federal interference in business.

26 Sacramento Unions Take Cut.

By the Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 27.—Organized labor in 26 building crafts here today accepted a voluntary cut of approximately 15 per cent in wages to stimulate construction and relieve unemployment in the building field. The new scale will become effective March 7 and will be operative for one year.

FARMER TESTIFIES ROBBERS, NOT HE, MURDERED WIFE

Earl Steele Weeps as He Denies Before Clinton, Mo., Jury Killing of Woman for Insurance.

By the Associated Press.

CLINTON, Mo., Feb. 27.—Testimony in the murder trial of Earl Steele was completed here today with his assertion that robbers and not he killed Mrs. Steele. The defendant was in tears as he told the jury his version of the slaying in their Bates County farm home last August. The State contends Steele smothered his wife to death to collect the insurance on her life.

Before court adjourned until Monday, four witnesses testified they saw two strangers near the Steele home the night of the murder. A. N. Huntsman, mail carrier, said two strangers in a car drove onto the highway from a side road so rapidly that his automobile struck their rear fender. He said the men sped away. His description of the men tallied with that Steele gave in his testimony of two men who forced their way into his home and later shot to death his wife after she had struck the smaller intruder with a hatchet. Ruby Huntsman, the mail carrier's daughter, corroborated her father's testimony.

Relatives, including the defendant's father, mother, sister, brother, uncle and father-in-law, testified in his behalf. Steele's 9-year-old son, Robert, told of being awakened by his father's outcries. He said he found his father bathing the lifeless face of his mother. The youthful witness stuck to his story, unshaken by cross-examination.

Sheriff A. C. Hartley of Bates County was recalled in rebuttal to testify that Steele remained in the Bates County Jail despite two jail breaks which furnished him ample opportunities to escape.

Dr. G. S. Walker, Clinton physician, and Henry County Coroner, called as a rebuttal witness by the State, described as characteristic of death by strangulation a swollen tongue, blue lips and face darkened by congestion of blood.

The State had contended Steele smothered his wife to death to collect life insurance policies of more than $4000.

Dr. Frank Hall, Kansas City pathologist, recalled as a State rebuttal witness, said in his opinion Mrs. Steele could not have died from shock caused by the bullet wounds in her forehead.

GETS ESTATE OF $3,550,000

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 27.—Mrs. Blanche H. Karsch, Memphis, whose early life was spent in an orphanage in New York City, today obtained clear title to the $3,550,000 estate left by her foster mother, the late Mrs. Kate E. Hamilton, also of Memphis.

An effort of blood relatives of the late Eugene Magevney, father of Mrs. Hamilton, and founder of the estate, to wrest the fortune from Mrs. Karsch, failed when Chancellor M. C. Ketchum held the adoption of Mrs. Karsch a legal one.

CONFEREES AGREE ON FINAL FORM OF 'LAME DUCK' BILL

Senator Norris Expects Measure to Be Formally Approved by Both Houses This Week.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—After nine years of frustration, the Norris constitutional amendment abolishing the "lame duck" session of Congress today received the unanimous approval of conferees of the House and Senate.

Only formal acceptance of their report in both branches remains to complete congressional action and submit to the states for ratification this measure designed to modernize methods of procedure inherited from stage coach days.

Smiling happily, Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska, said he expected the report to be approved by both houses early next week.

Complete accord on differences in the measure as it passed the two houses was reached when the Senate representatives agreed that the amendment should not take effect unless ratified within seven years by the required 36 states.

House Yields One Point.

At the same time the House conferees withdrew from their contention that before any state Legislature could ratify it, at least one of its branches must have been elected after the submission of the amendment.

Foremost among the provisions of the measure is elimination of the short session of Congress at which "lame duck" members, defeated at the polls the previous November, continue to legislate from the first Monday in December until the following March 4.

Instead Congress would assemble each year on Jan. 3, its new members taking office two months after their election instead of waiting 13 months as is now the case. It would continue in session as long as necessary to finish its work.

The long waiht between the election and the convening of Congress which was necessary in the days of horse transportation is no longer required in an era of telegraph, radio, railroad and airplane, proponents of the bill say.

The amendment provides also that the terms of the President and Vice President shall begin on Jan. 20 instead of March 4.

Nine-Year Fight.

Ever since 1923 Senator Norris has been urging this contention in support of the measure and six times previously he has pushed it through the Senate only to have it fail in the House. Last session the House passed a substitute but it differed so greatly from the original bill that conferees could reach no agreement.

The Nebraskan said he was well satisfied with the measure in the final shape which was signed by the representatives of both Houses today after several days of conference.

One section of the Norris bill designed to provide a constitutional method for filling the place of the President-elect and Vice President-elect in case of their death before taking office, was re-written to embrace ideas contained in both the House and Senate versions. As agreed upon the Vice President-elect would serve as President should the latter die before inauguration.

Text of Amendment.

The text of the proposed constitutional amendment as finally agreed upon by the conferees follows:

"That the following amendment to the Constitution be, and hereby is, proposed to the States, to become valid as part of said Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of the several States as provided in the Constitution:

"Section 1—The terms of the President and Vice President shall end at noon on the 20th day of January, and the terms of Senators and Representatives at noon on the 3rd day of January, of the years in which such terms would have ended if this article had not been ratified; and the terms of their successors shall then begin.

"Section 2. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year, and such meeting shall begin at noon on he 3rd day of January, unless they shall by law appoint a different day.

Presidential Succession.

"Section 3. If at the time fixed for the beginning of the term of the President, the President-elect shall have died, the Vice President-elect shall become President. If a President shall not have been chosen before the time fixed for the beginning of his term, or if the President-elect shall have failed to qualify, then the Vice President-elect shall act as President until a President shall have qualified; and the Congress may by law provide for the case wherein neither a President-elect nor a Vice President-elect shall have qualified, declaring who shall then act as President, or the manner in which one who is to act shall be selected, and such persan shall act accordingly until a President or Vice President shall have qualified.

"Section 4. The Congress may by law provide for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the House of Representatives may choose a President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them, and for the case of the death of any of the persons from whom the Senate may choose a Vice President whenever the right of choice shall have devolved upon them.

"Section 5. Sections 1 and 2 shall take effect on the 15th day of October following the ratification of this article.

"Section 6. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the several States within seven years from the date of its submission."

POPE ON RADIO AT 11 A. M.

To Speak from Vatican City This Morning.

By the Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 27.—The voice of Pope Pius XI will be broadcast by radio again about 11 a. m., St. Louis time, tomorrow, when he responds to the reading of a decree proclaiming the virtues of Venerable Maria Assunta Pallotta, a missionary nun of the Franciscan order. The broadcast will be over a wave length of 50.26 meters.

The last time the pontiff spoke by radio was at the ceremony in St. Peter's, Feb. 12, commemorating the tenth anniversary of his coronation.

The rebroadcast of the Pope's speech is planned on the Columbia Broadcasting System and is expected to last an hour. The scheduled program from Geneva, in which woman disarmament delegates are to speak, has been postponed until 1 p. m. (noon in St. Louis).

UNIVERSITY STUDENT'S MARRIAGE ANNULLED

Mary Louise Miller Wed Bond Salesman "Just for a Lark" She Tells Judge.

The secret marriage last month of Mary Louise Miller, 19-year-old Washington University student, whose home is in Houston, Tex., and Alvin R. Cohen, 22-year-old bond salesman of 22 Washington terrace, has been annulled by City Judge Borders of East St. Louis.

They were married "just for a lark" by an East St. Louis Justice of the Peace on Jan. 8, the young woman told Judge Borders Friday at a brief hearing in his chambers. They have never lived together, she said.

After the ceremony, in which they used fictitious names, he went to his home and she to her room in McMillan Hall, a girls' dormitory on the Washington University campus, she explained. The decision to seek an annulment was approved by the parents of both, she said. Cohen, not contesting the suit, was not present but was represented by counsel.

Cohen is the son of Mrs. Etta Cohen, a widow. His father, Leon J. Cohen, wealthy junk dealer, was killed by a train in 1917. In 1921 his sister, then Berhice Cohen, 18 years old, was secretly married to Harry Tennenbaum, 20, of Little Rock, Ark. About six weeks later an annulment suit stating the marriage had been "in a spirit of fun" was filed on behalf of the bride. Mrs. Cohen, however, withdrew her opposition to the marriage a few days later.

CREDITORS OF GATELY STORES GET THEIR FOURTH DIVIDEND

5 Per Cent Payment Authorized by Court Brings Total to 50 Per Cent.

A 5 per cent dividend on general allowed claims was authorized by Federal Court yesterday in the receivership of the Gately Chain Stores, Inc. This is the fourth dividend to general creditors, and brings the amount of their recovery to 50 per cent.

The dividend, amounting to $10,500, will be paid by Receiver E. E. Rudolph, who reported he also had funds to pay other obligations amounting to $4719, and to operate stores at Des Moines, Ia.; Alton and Belleville, Ill., and Cape Girardeau, Mo. Rudolph stated that he was operating the four stores profitably. The company was placed in receivership two years ago.

St. Louis Country Club Election.

Harold M. Kauffman was elected president of the St. Louis Country Club at a meeting yesterday. He succeeds Edward B. Pryor, who had held the office since 1924. Other officers chosen are: Orion J. Willis and Henry McRee, vice presidents; A. Wessel Shapleigh, treasurer; George Drake Scott, secretary; George Hayward Niedringhaus, Eugene F. Williams and Charles H. Morrill, directors.

Farmer Slain in Home.

WEST PLAINS, Mo., Feb. 27.—The body of Jack Satterfield, prosperous farmer, was found in his home south of Gainesville, Mo., yesterday, apparently shot to death by burglars who had ransacked the farmhouse. Satterfield, a bachelor, was reputed to keep a large amount of money hidden in the house.

HITLER STIRS 15,000 AS HE OPENS CAMPAIGN

Says "Disgraceful Pages From 1918 to 1932 Will Be Torn From Our History."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Adolf Hitler, a man without a country for 18 years, made his debut as a German citizen tonight by opening his campaign for the presidency of Germany before 15,000 frenzied Fascist followers that packed Berlin's Sports Palace.

The Nazi leader promised that the "November system" (the present republic) would fall and with it the international treaties that had "humiliated, degraded and made Germany ridiculous."

(Germany became a republic on Nov. 9, 1918, when the abdication of Kaiser Wilhelm was announced).

"March will be a decisive month," said the fiery chieftain of the National Socialists, whose speech was interrupted time and time again by tremendous outbursts of cheers and applause.

"The disgraceful pages from 1918 to 1932 will be torn out of our history, and the German people will not have started another revolution, but will have won back what they have lost."

Warning to "Old Man."

Declaring that the Nazis honored his rival, President Paul von Hindenburg, and wanted his name respected in posterity, Hitler addressed words of warning to the veteran incumbent.

"Old man," he said, "those behind you want to destroy you. You must step aside. They want to fight and we do, too."

Hitler recalled a consultation 13 years ago, when he launched his movement with a handful of followers.

"I was ridiculed and threatened, but was successful," he said. "There is a lot more at stake now than the presidency—the end of the November system.

"Thirteen years ago I was nameless. Today I ask the German people to be my judge. The German President must be more than a defender of the Constitution. He must be the defender of the German people."

The German people would all be Nazis, Hitler said, if they were not misled by the press.

Summing up the acccomplishments of his movement, he said it had fostered the now general attitude that payment of reparations must cease and the "war guilt lie" repudiated.

"But most important of all—we have given the German people new hope and confidence," he said, while his audience wildly applauded.

Only "Misery" to Show.

Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's emergency decrees, he said, were merely a temporary solution of Germany's problems and were characteristic of "the inefficacy and demoralizing influence of the present system."

"All the present Government has to show is misery," he said. "The "Reds" had increased from 35,000 in 1913 to probably 7,000,000 now, he asserted.

"We will smash chaos by the fist," he declared.

Hitler concluded with an appeal for the utmost sacrifice.

"I believe our fight will receive the blessing it deserves," he said. "Thirteen years of sacrifice and toil cannot have been in vain."

Hitler, who was admitted to German citizenship yesterday by his acceptance of an appointment as counsellor to the Brunswick legation in Berlin, had entered the hall buoyantly, dramatically, and visibly happy at the tremendous ovation given him.

He left hurriedly, outpacing his lieutenants and the accompanying guard, without gazing to right or left, the solemn mien of his face reflecting the fervor of his closing remarks.

He wore a plain suit, as did his followers, because of the Government's ban against political uniforms, including the brown uniform with the swastika emblem of the Nazis.

50,000 Meetings Planned.

Dr. Paul Goebbels, Hitler's right hand man, told the assembled National Socialists that 50,000 meetings for their fiery leader would be held between now and March 13, the date of the election.

He predicted a victory for Hitler, the Nazi nominee against President Paul von Hindenburg, under the slogan "Everything in Germany must be changed," his speech stirring the crowd to wild enthusiasm for Hitler himself who made a dramatic entry and hour later.

Dr. Goebbels attacked the Government of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening bitterly for suppressing Nazi newspapers and threatened, amid tumultuous applause, that when the Nazis assumed power they would use the same methods of suppression.

Hitler's Rival of War Veterans' Ticket Alos in Field.

COLOGNE, Germany, Feb. 27.—Adolf Hitler's rival, Theodore Duesterberg, opened his presidential campaign here tonight on the Nationalist and "Steel Helmet" (war veterans) ticket before an enthusiastic audience of 15,000.

"Ruined Germany," he said, "could not possibly resume payments of reparations. Germany demanded freedom to arm and defend itself against threatened foreign aggression, he added.

He urged the necessity for the fatherland to put its own economic system on a proper footing before committing itself to international economic engagements. He also advocated one year's civilian service on public utility works for all young German men and women.

MRS. CRANDALL PURGES HERSELF OF CONTEMPT

Indiana Judge Cancels Sentence Imposed Because She Filed Suit in St. Louis.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 27.—Probate Judge Travis B. Williams today set aside the 90-day sentence and $500 fine he imposed a year ago on Mrs. Inez B. Crandall for contempt of court. Mrs. Crandall served six days of the sentence before she was released on a Federal writ of habeas corpus.

The contempt citation was dismissed when Mrs. Crandall's attorney appeared with documents showing that she had withdrawn from the Circuit Court in St. Louis a damage suit which she had been forbidden to file by a restraining order issued by Judge Williams. The injunction applied only to the Circuit Court, and her suit was filed in Federal Court in St. Louis this week after the United States Supreme Court refused to review a decision of a lower court that Judge Williams had not exceeded his jurisdiction in ordering Mrs. Crandall not to file it in the Circuit Court in St. Louis.

The suit, in which Mrs. Crandall seeks $90,000 from the Louisville & Nashville Railroad for the death of her husband, was filed in St. Louis because juries there are more liberal in damage suit verdicts. Mrs. Crandall's husband, a railrod engineer, was killed when his locomotive exploded.

HENRY BUEHLER DIES AFTER BOWLING GAME

Founder and Former Head of Paint Company Victim of Heart Disease.

Henry Buehler, 74 years old, founder and former president of the Buehler-Phelan Paint Co., now known as the Phelan-Faust Paint Co., died suddenly Friday night of heart disease, shortly after he had finished bowling at the home of Charles A. Stockstrom, 3400 Russell boulevard.

Mr. Buehler, who lived at 3625 Castleman avenue, was a charter member of the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange, having been associated with that body for 54 years. At first engaged in the flour milling business, he was later associated with the paint company, and since his retirement, 20 years ago, had been identified with the Atlas Leather Manufacturing Co., Caseyville, Ill., which is conducted by his son, Henry Buehler Jr.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Augusta Buehler, with whom he celebrated his fiftieth wedding anniversary last May; four daughters and his son.

The funeral will be held from the home tomorrow afternoon.

Debate on Soviet Recognition.

A debate team of St. Louis University composed of Louis Kramp, Springfield, Ill., and Stephen Ondash, Youngstown, O., defeated another St. Louis University team composed of George Doyle, Brazil, Ind., and Sam Raban, St. Louis, by a judges' decision at the Civitan Club luncheon at Hotel Statler at noon Friday. The winning team was on the negative side of the question: "Resolved, That the United States should recognize the Soviet Government in Russia."

CHILDREN'S EDUCATION HURT BY DEPRESSION

Health of Some Pupils Affected by Reduced Standards in Homes of Jobless.

Reduced living standards have seriously affected the health and school work of children from the homes of the unemployed, Miss Mary E. Stephenson, supervisor of nurses for the Board of Education, told members of St. Louis Health and Hospital Council who met yesterday in the St. Louis Medical Society Building.

"It is realized," she said, "that malnutrition, inadequate clothing and emotional instability due to the economic strain under which parents are laboring has a marked effect on the ability of many pupils to cope with school problems. Of the 5775 home visits made by public school nurses during the first semester, 1284 were for this relief service."

Miss Stephenson told of one family in which there were three children, investigated when the teacher of one of them reported she had lost interest in school work and did not appear to be in good health. It was learned, she said, that the father, a carpenter, had not worked for five months, and that for two weeks the family had been subsisting on stale bread and coffee.

Arrangements were made for the family to receive help through the Citizens' Committee, and the children were placed on the school's free milk list.

Those present at the meeting were agreed that St. Louis' health facilities for home visiting were inadequate. Over-crowding of city institutions and limited funds of private institutions have greatly increased the demand for free visiting nurse service, it was reported by Miss Emilie G. Robson, director of the Visiting Nurse Association.

Other speakers were Miss Harvey Smith, secretary of the Catholic School Health Bureau: Miss Ruth E. Lewis, associate director of the social service department of Washington University clinics and allied hospitals, and Miss Irene Morris, director of the social service department of St. Louis University.

TWO NEW WINDOWS TO BE UNVEILED AT CHURCH

Memorials to Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Whittemore at St. Michael and St. George.

Two large stained glass windows, unusual in subject matter and design, will be unveiled at the Episcopal Church of St. Michael and St. George at the 11 o'clock service this morning. They are in opposite ends of the transept, replacing plain windows.

The windows are memorials to Robert Blackwell Whittemore, who was in the cotton compress business and who died in 1910, and his wife, Mrs. Katherine Spain Levering Whittemore, who died in 1923. Costing $5000, they are the gift of an anonymous donor. The north window, in memory of Mr. Whittemore, will be unveiled by their son, Robert Blackwell Whittemore Jr., and the south one, in memory of Mrs. Whittemore, by another son, Lawrence Levering Whittemore.

Old Testament characters and scenes are portrayed in the north window, with large central figures of Solomon and Judas Maccabeus. New Testament episodes are shown in the south window, centering around a large figure of St. Luke. There are about 29,500 pieces of glass in the two windows, which were executed by Emil Frei, Inc.

PAYERS OF U, S. INCOME TAX URGED TO SPEED UP RETURNS

Internal Revenue Commissioner Warns Against Great Jam on March 15.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Prompt filing of income tax returns to prevent a last-minute rush on March 15 was urged today by David Burnet, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Burnet said many persons had not filed because of the uncertainty as to what changes Congress might make and that if they continued to refrain from filing it would cause a great jam on March 15.

The commissioner also urged that taxpayers turn in accurately figured returns to save the Government the expense of having to correct them, return over-payments or make assessments for underpayments.

JOINT FUNERAL FOR MAN AND WIFE HE KILLED

Services for Frank Gall and His Victim to Be Held Tomorrow.

Joint funeral services for Frank Gall, 31-year-old paper hanger of 1318 Tower Grove avenue, and his wife, Mrs. Marie Gall, 23 years old, will be held from the Schnur funeral chapel, 3125 Lafayette avenue, at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Burial will be in New SS. Peter and Paul's Cemetery.

Gall, who was estranged from his wife, shot her to death at her sister's flat at 1808A North Grand boulevard, Friday morning, and then ended his life. Mrs. Gall is survived by a 4-year-old son by a previous marriage.

EFFORT TO DETERMINE TITLE TO RIVER FRONT

Assessor Having Check Made on Land Between Wharf St. and the Mississippi.

Parts of land along the river front in 72 city blocks, which have escaped assessment for taxation purposes, are subjected to a title inquiry, with a view to establishing the city's interest.

At Assessor Gehner's office it was said yesterday the condition had been discovered about three years ago, but that the process of correction was slow. The question of what could be done about it was referred to the City Counselor, and as a result a land title company has been employed to run down the titles to all the property involved at $15 a tract.

Most of the land lies between Wharf street and the river bank. While it has been generally supposed that all of it belonged to the city, the point has been raised that it might be claimed by owners of the adjacent property to the west as accretion or for other reasons. If the city recognized such a claim and taxed private owners for the land, it would relinquish title to property which might become valuable for the proposed river front park or for industrial development. Some of the land could be rented to private users, if it were owned by the city, and revenue possibly exceeding taxes might be thus obtained.

New Plats Prepared.

Plats used by the Assessor for placing valuations on property extend only to Wharf street and do not show the land beyond it in the 72 blocks. However, new plats have been prepared, showing the additional property and, if the plans work out satisfactorily, these can be used for assessments for taxes due in 1933.

An important point involved in deciding where title in the 72 blocks lies is the determination of whether title to the property to the west extended to the old-time towpath or to the river bank. No compilation has been made of the volume of land involved.

One of the pieces of property on the river front which has not been shown on the old plats, but which appears on the new, is a long strip between Victor and Barton streets, extending from a line near the railroad tracks on Wharf street to the river bank. This is occupied by the sand and gravel storage and shipping plant of the Standard Building Materials Co.

The space was leased for 10 years, by authority of an ordinance to the Mississippi River Sand & Material Co., for $3599.76 a year at the rate of 7.44 cents a 100 square feet a month. The lessee joined the Standard company in a merger and the lease was transferred Aug. 15, 1929. The company has increased the land area by filling in at the edge of the river, at its own expense, and it is not charged for this comparatively small additional area. A concrete road also has been built by the company on the west edge of the property, between Victor and Barton streets.

Buildings Not Assessed.

There is no real estate assessment against the Standard company for a frame office and shed, a concrete machine shop, a concrete hopper and other structures on the property. At Assessor Gehner's office it was said this was due to the mixup over river front titles. City Collector Koeln, who is treasurer of the company, said that in his opinion the improvements should not be assessed, as they would revert to the city upon expiration of the lease.

Koeln declared that about $250,000 was spent by the Mississippi company for improvements, but a large part of what this represents consists of conveyors and other fixed apparatus, which might not be classed as real estate if the question were raised. Some of the installation could be moved away if desired. The Standard company is not taxed on machinery under the manufacturers' tax not being classed as a manufacturer. It is taxed as a merchant for stock carried, which includes the sand and gravel piles on this lot, and on sales. The Comptroller's office regards the rent as a fair return on the property. About 80 per cent of the stock of the Standard company is owned by the Missouri Portland Cement Co. and several politicians have small holdings in it.

Associated Press Correction.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, O., Feb. 27.—W. H. Hoover, inventor of the vacuum cleaner bearing his name, was buried here today. An erroneous Associated Press report Thursday said the man who died was H. W. Hoover. H. W. Hoover is the son of the founder and president of the company.

400 HOGS KILLED BY AMMONIA FUMES

Explosion in Packing Plant Causes Five Employes to Be Overcome.

Ammonia fumes, freed by the explosion of a pressure tank in the refrigeration system of Hunter Packing Co., in East St. Louis, killed 400 hogs and overcame five employes yesterday.

Loss was estimated by E. J. Delmore, secretary of the company, at about $5000, including the value of the hogs, which were rendered unfit for meat purposes.

None of the employes was seriously injured and although Nick Schneider, 2326 Albion place, St. Louis, was taken to St. Mary's Hospital. The others, revived at the plant after emergency treatment, were Frank Schwab, 1116 (rear) Lynch avenue; Joseph Hudereck, 1020 North Thirteenth stret, Roland Noelker, 409 North Twenty-third street, and Frank Tockstein, 1416 Kansas avenue, all of East St. Louis.

The explosion occurred about noon in the engine room of the plant, which is at Second street and Lynch avenue. The cause was not established.

About 50 employes at work nearby fled from the building. The men overcome were in the machine shop, which adjoins the engine room. All are machinists except Schneider, a blacksmith.

MOTHER OF 3 DIES OF BURNS

Mrs. Emil Stefanus Injured by Explosion of Stove.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stafanus, 23-year-old mother of three small children, died at St. Louis County Hospital yesterday of burns suffered Friday in the explosoin of a gasoline stove in the basement of her home, 4510 Seibert avenue, Gardenville.

Her husband, Emil Stefanus, is a shoeworker. Their oldest child is 6 years and the youngest 2 months old.

SCIENTISTS WARN WAR WOULD BLAST OUR CIVILIZATION

Einstein, Millikan and Historian Beard Join in Plea on Radio for World Peace.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 27.—Three authorities of science and history warned tonight that civilization would destroy itself by its own progress if the nations failed to kill forever the danger of war.

The men, Albert Einstein, Dr. Robert A. Millikan and Charles A. Beard, speaking over a national radio system at a program "in the interest of public opinion," sought to point out the ways to peace through the ordered functions of sober governments.

Three interlocking ideas were expressed. Said Einstein: "The creation of an international court of arbitration is not sufficient. Through agreement, the assurance must also be present that the decisions of this court will be enforced by all the nations acting in common.

What Boycott Would Do.

"Without such assurance the nations will never have the courage to disarm in earnest.

"Suppose, for example, that the American, English, German and French Governments had demanded from the Japanese Government the immediate cessation of warlike acts in China on pain of a complete economic boycott. Do you believe that Japanese would find a government that would wish to take the responsibility of plunging their country into so dangerous an adventure?"

Millikan held for "participation of the United States in the World Court as the next rational step toward world peace as recommended by every President since the war and by 94 per cent of a most intelligent and informed group of American citizens, irrespective of party. * * *"

Dangers of Another War.

Citing the position of the United States in a military sense, Beard said:

"The United States is committed to a policy of limited defense and to the principle of consultation with respect to the Pacific region. It is co-operating with other countries and with the League of Nations for specific purposes. Such co-operation is made imperative by the circumstances in which we find ourselves.

"Herein, it seems to me, lies the only hope for the future—the steady and unremitting insistence upon a domestic policy which reduces all the chances of war and a co-operative policy with respect to all foreign relations. If this line of action is pursued, the arms of the world can be reduced to a police basis and the hazards of ruinous wars minimized if not entirely eliminated.

"And time is the essence of things. One more World War fought with the latest instruments of technology will blast Western civilization from center to circumference."

ORGANIZED WETS IN HOUSE GET 127 NAMES FOR STATE CONTROL

Finish Three-Day Drive Lacking 18 of 145 Signatures Necessary to Have Vote in Chamber.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—A three-day drive for support tonight found organized wets lacking 18 votes of the 145 indorsements required for a House vote on consideration of a State prohibition control bill.

Five new signatures on the discharge petition lying on Speaker Garner's desk brought the total number of signers to 127 and led Representative Linthicum of Maryland, leader of the Democratic wets and sponsor of the movement, to predict that eventually the 145 names would be obtained.

"The signing of 127 in three days is very remarkable," Linthicum said. "And very unexpected to the drys. It proves to me that in the next Congress something is going to happen to prohibition."

Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, attending her first session after several weeks of illness, smilingly placed her name on the petition soon after the House convened.

A Democrat, Mrs. Norton was the third woman member to sign. Representatives Florence Kahn of California and Ruth Pratt of New York, Republicans, were leaders in the group of members that swarmed to the desk the first day.

Another signer was Representative Chindblom of Illinois, a prominent administration Republican, heretofore counted among the prohibitionists. In a statement he indorsed both the submission of home rule and modification of the Volstead act, to permit "the manufacture and sale of 4 per cent beer in states which do not prohibit the same."

After Chindblom, Representatives Golder and Erk, Pennsylvania, Republicans, and Boehne, Indiana, Democrat, signed.

Representative Parsons (Dem.), Illinois, previously reported as signing, announced today he had not signed.

Former Official Sentenced.

By the Associated Press.

GIRARD, Kan., Feb. 27.—W. S. Tucker, former Crawford County Clerk, was sentenced today to one to five years in the State penitentiary for embezzling county funds. Tucker's attorney announced his intention to appeal, and Tucker was released under $3000 bond.

NAMED NO NAMES BUT CAN DO SO, SEABURY ASSERTS

"If Anybody Wants Head to Fit Cap I Have Woven He May Have It," New Yorker Says.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 27.—Judge Samuel Seabury of New York, in an interview late today, refused to comment on reports that listeners to his radio address last night interpreted his remarks as an indication that he was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Judge Seabury would not reply to direct questions asking him if he opposed Gov. Roosevelt. Neither would he say whether he would seek the presidential nomination or that of Mayor of New York.

Judge Seabury said: "The sole purpose of my speech was to aid and promote the important work we are attempting to do in New York City. My purpose is simply to limit the influence and power of Tammany Hall. I do want to get action, and I feel the best way to weaken Tammany Hall is to weaken its influence outside New York City.

"I named no name in my speech last night, but if anybody wants the head to fit the cap I have woven, he may have it."

The Judge made the comment after an address at the Optimists' Club, from which he requested that all newspaper men be barred.

Address by Charles Nagel.

International relations will be discussed by Charles Nagel, lawyer and member of the Washington University Corporation, at a public dinner at 6 p. m. Friday in the cafeteria of the university's School of Fine Arts. The dinner will be under auspices of the university chapter of the American Association of University Professors and the campus Y. M. C. A.

Relative of Grant Dies.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Feb. 27.—Mrs. Emeline McCloud, 84, whose mother was first cousin to Ulysses S. Grant, is dead at her home in Nashua Township, Ogle County. Her great uncle, Mathias Baldwin, was a pioneer locomotive builder. Four brothers served in the Civil War.

ORDERS STOCK SALE STOPPED

State Notice Given National Life Co., Independence, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 27.—The old line National Life Insurance Co., Independence, Mo., was ordered today by the State Securities Department to stop selling stock in Missouri. The company has its main office in Denver, Colo.

Fenton T. Stockard, Securities Commissioner, said the company was not in the insurance business but was a holding corporation. He said it had no permit to sell stock in Missouri.

Typewriters, Radios Stolen.

Burglars who broke into the Hodge Building, on Edison avenue in Granite City, early today, stole four typewriters, two radios and two adding machines, after failing in an attempt to open a safe in the offices of the Mercantile Building & Loan Co.

GREENWADE SLATED FOR DEMOCRATIC POST

Springfield Man, Howell's Choice, Likely to Be Chosen State Committee Head Tomorrow.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

The election of Charles W. Greenwade, an insurance man of Springfield, to chairmanship of the Democratic State Committee at a meeting of the committee tomorrow in Jefferson City, is expected, possibly without opposition. Greenwade is the selection of Charles M. Howell, candidate for the nomination for United States Senator, who will submit his resignation as chairman.

Other candidates for the nomination for Senator and those for Governor yesterday had apparently decided to let the chairmanship go by default to Greenwade on the ground that it was a matter of no consequence as to who held the chairmanship during the primary campaign. A new chairman will be elected by a new committee after the August primary.

The only suggestion of objection to Greenwade was due to the fact that he was Howell's choice and the campaign for his election was conducted by Howell's organization and the Prendergast organization in Kansas City. Leading supporters of Charles M. Hay and Bennett C. Clark, Howell's opponents, for a time considered attempting to block Greenwade merely because of Howell's activity for him, and it is possible, though not probable, that an opposition candidate will be brought out when the politicians reach Jefferson City tonight or tomorrow morning.

There has been no attempt by any of the candidates to ascertain how many committee men and women are pledged to Greenwade, and it will not be until the committee members gather that approximately accurate information can be obtained as to whether he is certain of a sufficient number of votes for election.

Greenwade a Dearmont Supporter.

Hay has written letters to all on the committee, not opposing Greenwade, but urging that in the selection of a chairman the committee should be careful to select someone who will not attempt to use the office for any particular candidate. Hay said he had no fear that any chairman could damage him, even if he tried. Clark has taken the same position.

A peculiarity of the chairmanship situation is that Greenwade is a supporter of State Senator Russell L. Dearmont for the nomination for Governor in opposition to Francis M. Wilson, who has the support of the Pendergast organization. Thus the Howell forces have so manipulated that Pendergast is put in the position of aiding in the election of a chairman who is opposed to his candidate for Governor.

The fact that Greenwade is a Dearmont supporter, of course, precluded Dearmont from opposing his selection for the chairmanship, even though he might object to it as emanating from a source so close to Pendergast. Likewise Wilson was in no position to oppose the Pendergast choice, or to oppose Pendergast in anything he might do.

To Pick State Convention City.

Aside from the election of chairman, the only business to come before the committee will be the selection of time and place for the Democratic State Convention. Springfield and St. Louis are applicants.

There probably will be some discussion of congressional redistricting, with many of the candidates for congressional nominations urging the adoption of a resolution in an attempt to pledge the Democratic members of the Legislature to re-enact the redistricting bill vetoed by Gov. Caulfield if the Governor will convene the Legislature for the purpose, and demanding that the Governor sign the measure if it is passed. However, no action by the committee would be binding on the Legislature.

It is probable the weight of the Pendergast influence will be thrown against a declaration by the committee on redistricting. With the election of Congressmen at large, and with Pendergast controlling from 80 to 90 per cent of the vote in the Democratic primary, he is in a strategic position to make deals with other candidates for support for Howell and Wilson.

If Congressmen were nominated by districts, there would be no bidding by congressional candidates for the 50,000 Pendergast majority in Jackson County, and Pendergast would have nothing to trade for outstate votes for his candidates.

DISARMAMENT DISCUSSED BY WOMEN VOTERS LEAGUE

Disarmament problems of the different nations were discussed yesterday at a round table luncheon meeting of the League of Women Voters of St. Louis at the Kingsway Hotel.

The presentation of the disarmament situation entitled "The Nations Talk About Disarmament" was under auspices of the St. Louis Council of Organization Promoting Peace.

Dorothy Parker in Hospital.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Dorothy Parker, poet, was in a hospital today recovering from an overdose of sleeping medicine, which she took accidentally Thursday night. Her physician said she was not dangerously ill. Mrs. Parker is the author of several volumes of verse, including "Enough Rope," "Sunset Gun" and "Death and Taxes," and a book of short stories, "Laments for the Living."

DR. WILLARD BARTLETT TELLS OF SEA SERPENTS

Returns From Central America Where He Made Lecture Tour.

Dr. and Mrs. Willard Bartlett returned to St. Louis last week after a two-month trip through Central America, where Dr. Bartlett lectured before post-graduate schools and clinics on certain new surgical methods, and where the St. Louisans saw poisonous sea serpents, schools of fish so large they apparently changed the color of the ocean, and the greatest snake-poison collecting depot in the world.

The serpents, not monstrous like the sea serpents of fable, but slender, a yard or so long and black with reddish bellies, swam near the ship that the Bartletts took up the west coast of Panama to Armuelles, a division carved out of the jungle only four years ago by the United Fruit Co.

"Along the coast of Panama is the only place in the Western Hemisphere where these snakes are found," Dr. Bartlett said. "They have flattened, elongate tails, which enable them to travel through the water with great facility, but on land they can move only with great difficulty. They belong to the cobra family and their poison is deadly.

In addition to the sea serpents Central America has four kinds of poisonous snakes to combat. First, the Bothrops variety, the fer-de-lance; second, the tropical rattlesnake (Crotalus terrificus), which is the only rattler with poison which attacks the nerves instead of the blood stream; third, the Central American coral snake, which the natives, for obvious reasons, call the "twenty-minute snake," and last, the bushmaster, the worst of them all.

"There is no serum for the coral snake because it is very sluggish and not at all aggressive. It seldom gets large, lives under the ground and can inflict its fatal poison only on some small member of the body, such as the finger. There is no bushmaster serum because these snakes, which sometimes reach a length of 15 feet, are rare and seldom are captured. Hence, not enough of their venom has ben collected to make antivenin.

"It might be interesting to note that no serum is being collected at the big herpetarium at Tela. This institution, operated by the United Fruit Co., Harvard University and the Mulford Chemical Co., has collected enough serum to keep the vaccine plant busy for the next year."

The fish that apparently changed the color of the ocean were red-snapper. "The water was bronzy-red where the schools swam," Mrs. Bartlett said, "and the areas were several hundred yards square."

While in Tela, Spanish Honduras, Dr. Bartlett performed a service for the Minister of Domestic and Foreign Affairs and the minister promised, as a result, to send the St. Louis Zoological Gardens whatever specimens from his country that Dr. Bartlett desired. Dr. Bartlett asked that the offer be held open until he could return and confer with the Zoo director, George P. Vierheller. He will send a letter to the minister, enclosing a communication from Vierheller, some day this week.

Theft of $700 from a safe at the Union Quarry Co., 4687 Natural Bridge avenue, was discovered yesterday by employes who opened the office. The burglars had entered through a rear door.

A policeman who observed two men running away from Wright's drug store, 5059 St. Louis avenue, early yesterday, fired a shot at them but could not prevent their escape through an alley. A cash box at the store had been looted of $200 by persons who broke open a front door.

George Rapp, a grocer at 922 Belt avenue, was robbed of $164 by two men who entered the store early yesterday. One robber was armed.

THE REV. FIDELIS VOSS DIES

Missionary to Indians Succumbs at Tucson, Ariz.

The Rev. Fidelis Voss, O. F. M., a former St. Louisan and for the last five years engaged in Indian mission work in Arizona, died at Tucson yesterday of trench fever after an illness of three weeks. Funeral services, the time of which have not been fixed, will be held here from St. Anthony's Church, where he was ordained in 1925.

Father Voss, who was 34 years old, was the son of George F. Voss, 3231 South Dakota street, and is survived also by three brothers, Harry, Raymond and Charles Voss, and two sisters, Miss Dorothy Voss and Mrs. Marie Nejelski. He received his theological education at Teutopolis, Ill., and West Park, O.

MISSOURI WILL MEET PAYROLL MONDAY, AUDITOR DECLARES

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 27.—Fears of State employes that they might miss their monthly pay-day Monday because of the depleted condition of the general revenue fund, were allayed today by the Auditor's office, which said the payroll would be met.

The Auditor's office said the balance in the revenue fund was about $200,000, with approximately $190,000 due Monday in income taxes. It may be necessary, however, for some departments to pay temporarily out of their special funds until the general revenue fund can reimburse them. The monthly salary accounts amount to between $400,000 and $425,000.

If the State is unable to meet its payroll at the end of March, officials said, salary vouchers would be issued, and arrangements made with banks to hold them for a short time. During April, May and June, the State is expected to receive approximately $6,000,000 in income, corporation and foreign insurance company premium taxes, leaving, after the school fund receives its one-third, about $4,000,000 for the general revenue fund.

MACHINE GUNS ROUT MARXISTS

Armed Finns Break Up Labor Meeting at Mantsala.

MANTSALA, Finland, Feb. 27.—Four hundred armed men, some carrying machine guns, broke up a labor meeting here tonight with a fusillade of bullets and warned Mikko Erich, Social Democrat member of the Diet, who was lecturing on Marxism, never to show his face in Mantsala agan.

The lecturer and his audience fell flat on the floor when the firing began. Forty policemen at the meeting were powerless to prevent the raid.

WHAT STOCK MARKET DID.	Sat.	Fri.
Number of advances	129	182
Number of declines	160	185
Stocks unchanged	135	158
Total issues traded	424	525

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Wall street was distinctly pleased this week by the enactment of the Glass-Steagall bill to make the Federal Reserve System more effective, the marked abatement of bank suspensions and the subsidence of the outward flow of gold.

Nevertheless, reports from the industrial fronts still failed to indicate any general improvement and the securities markets drifted idly as buyers were inclined to demand tangible signs of restoration of corporate earnings, rather than hopes, in view of the many disappointments of the past.

Despite the apathy of the markets, however, sentiment in important financial quarters was improved. Bankers explained that powerful measures had been taken to break the vicious circle of deflation, and that it may be actually broken, but even so, the restoration of public confidence and a normal volume of business could scarcely be expected to come overnight.

The reduction in the New York Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate to 3 from 3½ per cent acted as a stimulant to high grade bonds, but the advance was soon checked by profit-taking. While U. S. Governments reached new high levels for the year, there was little change in the corporate bond averages.

Stocks reacted rather substantially on Monday, but thereafter drifted in an extremely narrow range, with price averages virtually unchanged in the final two sessions of the week. The Monday reaction appeared merely to complete a normal technical reaction from the vigorous rally earlier in the month. The price average of 90 issues showed a net loss for the week of only 1 2-5 points.

Short Selling Controversy.

The short selling controversy continued to occupy much attention, with the testimony of President Whitney of the exchange before a House Committee in Washington, and the announcement that a Senate Committee may call some of the "big bears." Wall street is not of one mind as to what means should be taken to control speculation, but on the whole, fails to find any very severe indictment of the bears in a general level of stock prices, as measured by averages of leading issues, currently in the range of 1922, in view of current corporate earnings.

While the market as a whole lost but little ground during the past week, a few issues slumped rather substantially. These included Auburn Auto, which was under considerable pressure. Some of the rails were also distinctly reactionary. Miscellaneous industrials lost ground.

In foreign exchanges, marked strength of the dollar as against the French franc reduced the franc to a level at which further gold taking from New York would be unprofitable. Some further drawing down of the French balances are expected, but with enactment of the Glass-Steagall bill, the metal can be spared without notice. Some observers expect that France may soon become an exporter of gold, in view of the marked impairment of its trade balance and the belated inroads of depression in that country. The Japanese yen was again acutely weak, as that country grew increasingly involved in China.

Saturday's Trade Light.

Patiently waiting for something to turn up, stocks today droned through the dullest Saturday since last August. Transactions amounted to 400,340 shares, and price changes simmered down toward the vanishing point.

The market refused to express sympathy over Auburn's early sag to a new low. Here and there another stock broke out of line with the prevailing fractional variations, but few of these moves attained proportions of more than a point.

Railroad earnings statements provided material for further comment. Santa Fe had an operating deficit of $125,901 last month, which prompted some selling of the stock. However, the extreme 2-point loss was halved. Baltimore & Ohio made a good showing, thanks to sharp reduction in operating expenses. Pennsylvania's January brought a contraction.

A few roads made separate tabulations of the income received from the higher freight rates effective early this year. Five carriers which followed this practice reported that gross had been swelled only 1.87 per cent by the new tariffs, although it was pointed out that the early returns were hardly a fair measure of ultimate results since the seasonal influence on commodity shipments should be taken into account.

Henry Ford's announcement of his big production program, involving enormous expenditures for raw materials and labor, was naturally received with wide interest, especially the figures on the amount of steel he intends to buy in the open market. In some quarters it was suggested that such impressive leadership should have an important psychological effect.

With the Glass-Steagall bill ready for use, financial quarters will follow closely the open market operations of the central banking system.

The March money settlements are expected to be smaller this year. Income tax payments and dividend disbursements will probably be under those of 1931, while the Government financing, although still undisclosed, will undoubtedly provide for the exchange of maturing issues for new securities.

The handful of stocks which became prominent because of their break from the rut included Lambert and Western Union, each down a couple of points. The former, returning a large yield, has a dividend meeting coming soon.

American Telephone, Consolidated Gas and Canadian Pacific each firmed a point. U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, General Union Carbide and Allied Chemical returned small and mixed net changes. Transamerica was heavy, off half a point.

10 Stocks THAT SHOULD DO WELL

You will be interested in a new compilation of ten sound common stocks which, in our opinion, will continue to show good earnings and dividends. This list should appeal to conservative investors who wish to make long term investments with profit possibilities but with the minimum risk. For only $1 you may have this valuable list together with "10 Selected Low Priced Issues", "10 Don'ts for Investors", besides "Sound Investment Rules" and the next 8 issues of The Financial World — $2.00 Value for $1.00. FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Trading on the Stock Exchange was quiet in view of the opening of new accounts on Monday. The undertone for gilt-edged securities was good with further purchases for foreign and home accounts at hardening values. Oil shares improved on Paris buying but movements otherwise were irregular with Chinese and Japanese bonds declining.

PARIS, Feb. 27.—Prices opened strong on the Bourse today but weakened somewhat under profit-taking. During the late trading sales were easily absorbed causing prices to advance again and the closing was firm.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Business on the Boerse was further restricted and the tendency was irregular. Reichsbank and several industrial shares closed firm.

BARNSDALL CORPORATION RECAPITALIZATION PROPOSED

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb 27.—Expressing belief that "this is the time to put our house completely in order," James A. Dunn, secretary of the Barnsdall Corp., has forwarded proposals to stockholders which would provide for changes in capitalization and writing down of investments.

Stockholders will meet in Wilmington, Del., on March 22 when they will vote on proposals to reduce the par value of the capital stock from $25 to $5 a share, write down investment in oil and gas leases to a nominal figure of $1 and to change the classification of the common stock from two classes to one class.

The proposal to write down the amount of capital represented by the stock would reduce the stated value from $56,469,475 to $11,293,895. The difference of $45,175,580 would be transferred to surplus and against it would be charged the book values of all investments in oil and gas leases amounting to approximately $20,000,000.

"No change will be made in the total number of shares of stock now outstanding and or authorized, so that this procedure in no way affects the intrinsic or market value of your investment in the corporation," the secretary states.

REFUSE TO ACCEDE TO CUBA'S SUGAR PLAN

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—Representatives of sugar interests in Europe, Peru and Java declined today to accede to a request of the president of the Cuban institute to alter the production limitation agreement adopted at Brussels last year.

They issued a statement saying they were prepared to discuss any proposals which Cuba might make for alterations if the proposals were considered acceptable to all the contracting parties. Such proposals might be submitted, they suggested, at the next meeting of the Sugar Council in Paris on March 14.

In replying to the Cuban suggestion they said nothing has occurred to justify the suggestion of a cancellation of the agreement of last May 9, that it would be necessary for Cuba to declare her crop at once, the production figure to be decided by her in accordance with the spirit of the agreement, although the delegates recommended 2,350,000 tons as fair and reasonable. They said Java, having limited her planting for 1933 to about 1,350,000 tons, the statistical position would be much improved if Cuba limited her 1932 crop as indicated above.

WEEK'S METAL REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Copper weakened under pressure from smelters and outside offerings and buying continued restricted, owing to uncertainty over the success of producers in obtaining an agreement with Belgian Congo interests to curtail production further. With current temporary agreements controlling export sales expiring March 1, the possibility of a free export market, for the time being, created further uncertainty. Smelters offered electrolytic at 6c, but further concessions were reported from resale sources.

Tin eased moderately in sympathy with copper and declines in London, but moderate consumer buying developed and the undertone was about steady at the decline. Offerings are restricted.

Lead prices were reduced by Eastern smelting interests to meet Western price-cutting. Consumers remained cautious, as they lacked confidence in values. With consumption restricted, supplies are said to be increasing.

Zinc eased, reflecting reactions in other metals and continued restricted demand, owing to absence of indications of increased consuming needs.

Antimony declined, owing to lower offerings from China and absence of buying interest.

CLEARINGS, MONEY AND SILVER

The St. Louis Clearing House Association reported clearings for Feb. 27, 1932, $9,200,000; corresponding day last year, $14,400,000; this year, $564,500,000; corresponding period a year ago, $829,700,000. Report of debits for Feb. 26 were: Debits to individual accounts, $16,100,000; total to date, $915,700,000; debits to bank and bankers' accounts, $8,200,000; total to date, $426,800,000; combined debits to individual and bank and bankers' accounts, $24,300,000; total to date, $1,342,500,000.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.—Treasury receipts for Feb. 25 were $2,854,226.02; expenditures, $14,472,401.89; balance, $454,324,410.75. Customs duties for 25 days of February were $19,119,421.63.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Rubber futures closed quiet and steady. March 3.64@70c; May 3.78c; July 3.96c; Sept. 4.08c.

New York Sugar.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Raw sugar was easier today and prices declined 1-32c to the basis of 2.85 for spots. No sales were actually confirmed, but it was rumored and generally believed that at least one cargo of duty frees in nearby position was sold to a local refiner at 2.85.

Futures were weak under tired long liquidation and selling by houses with producing connections promoted by the failure to reach an agreement on crop restriction at yesterday's meeting in Berlin.

Opening prices were 1 to 3 points lower and trend was downward throughout the remainder of the session, with final prices at about the lowest and from 4 to 6 points below the the previous close. Some positions were at new low records for the season.

Approximate sales were 13,400 tons. March closed 82c, May 88c, July 95c, Sept. $1.02, Dec. $1.08, Jan. $1.10.

Refined sugar was unchanged at $4.15 for fine granulated with demand limited to nearby requirements only.

To Determine Dividend Size Later.

VIENNA, Feb. 27.—The governing board of the National Bank announced at a meeting that 1931 profits justified a six per cent dividend, but because of the failure of the Creditanstalt to settle its debts to the bank it had been decided to refer the size of the dividend to a general meeting to be held March 18.

MOST U. S. ISSUES UP IN BOND MARKET TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Although the majority of corporate mortgages maintained an attitude of dignified indifference in today's bond market, most of the United States Government securities continued their steady ascent to higher levels.

There was some profit-taking in the Federal list near the end of today's brief session, but resistance was offered to any heavy liquidation. Liberty 1st 4¼s and Treasury 4¼s, 4s and 3¾s eased fractionally from their prices of yesterday. All of the others recorded advances.

The Glass-Steagall credit expansion legislation, and lowering of rediscount rate by New York Federal Reserve Bank have been cited in connection with rise.

While there was a firm undertone apparent in the corporate mortgage section, price changes were practically featureless. A number of the railroad liens declined, but others advanced moderately. Some bonds of Atchison, Chesapeake & Ohio, Canadian National, Chicago & Alton, Chicago & Erie, Chicago & Western Indiana, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Frisco and Union Pacific showed gains.

Among utilities and industrials strength has exhibited by liens of American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Goodrich Rubber, Southern Colorado Power and Sinclair Oil. International Match bonds continued downward.

In the foreign department Japanese loans were heavy, although the Government 6½s and Oriental development 6s regained some of their losses. Gains were registered by bonds of Germany and France, among others.

Sales totaled $5,146,000.

COTTON MARKET CLOSES STEADY, CHANGES SMALL

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—After sagging in the early trading today cotton rallied on continued trade buying and covering or rebuying by some of the early sellers, with May contracts selling up from 6.99 to 7.07 in the late trading and closing at that figure. The general market closed very steady net two points higher to one point lower. Spot, steady, middling 7.05.

The opening was steady at net unchanged prices to a decline of two points under Southern selling and week-end realizing. Relatively steady Liverpool cables failed to find any reflection of importance in the local trading, and while offerings were comparatively light, prices sagged gradually during the earlier trading.

After the earlier offerings had been absorbed, the market stiffened up on a continuance of a moderate demand from the trade and covering. March advanced from 6.99 to 7.07 and October from 7.37 to 7.44 and closing quotations were within a point of the best.

The early decline was attributed partly to an easier technical position following recent advances and the possibility of some falling off in the spot demand after the filling of February commitments. The weather in the South was considered more favorable for the movement of cotton as well as for preliminary crop preparations where soil conditions permitted, and such considerations may have increased the disposition to take profits over the week-end.

Much of the business was supposed to reflect evening up of accounts and there was some further switching from near to late months. Private advices received in the trade here from the Southwest, said there was a good demand for spot cotton with the basis unchanged.

Liverpool cables reported hedging and liquidation absorbed by trade calling and covering in that market and said there was a continued demand for cotton cloths from India. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 216,000 bales, against 132,000 last year.

ORIENT TAKES MORE U. S. COTTON THAN YEAR AGO

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Figures available today indicated that continued heavy buying by Japan was making some inroads into the surplus of American cotton.

Since Aug. 1 when the present cotton season started, Japan has purchased 1,569,902 bales, more than double the total purchased for the Nipponese account at this time last year. The figure then was 716,304.

China also has been a heavier buyer than usual. Chinese purchases for the season to date now total 883,769 bales, against 246,676 bales for the same period one year ago.

Increased purchases by the Orient have more than offset losses in sales of the American product to European countries. For the season to date, exports to all countries have totaled 5,631,465 bales, against 4,780,228 bales a year ago. For the season to date, German purchases have declined from 1,244,169 bales in the 1930-31 period to 1,052,188 bales this year; French purchases from 791,766 bales to 252,393, and British purchases from 859,119 to 791,241.

America's present visible supply is placed at 9,420,000 bales, against 7,806,000 last year and 5,723,081 the year before that.

CORPORATION REPORTS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—International Salt Co. had 1931 net income of $748,770, equal to $3.12 a share, compared with $679,480, or $2.83 a share in 1930.

General Tire and Rubber Co., for the fiscal year ended Nov. 30, reports net loss of $444,063 after inventory writeoffs and deductions for exchange losses on accounts receivables in foreign countries. Before these charges there was net profit of $262,503.

The annual report of the Beech-Nut Packing Co., issued today, shows 1931 net profits of $2,085,138 after depreciation, Federal taxes, loss on sale of capital assets and loss on foreign operations, but before deduction of $228,758 representing investigating investment written off, which was charged to surplus account. This is equal to $4.75 a share, and compares with $2,463,886 or $5.52 a share in 1930.

The Continental Shares Co. today reported net current income for 1931 of $53,233 after expenses, but exclusive of $7,254,263 loss on securities sold which was charged to surplus account. In the preceding year the company reported a net profit of $4,560,893. Securities carried at cost of $132,495,825 had a market value on Dec. 31 of $25,640,173, compared with $147,899,348 and $117,793,917 respectively at the end of 1930.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—European exchanges moved narrowly today, but the yen continued its decline. The Japanese rate declined close to 31 cents, representing a loss of more than 2 cents this week. Shanghai taels were a shade firmer.

French francs, guilders and Swiss francs, the gold currencies which had been expected to strengthen against the dollar as a result of the lower bank rate, were still easy, suggesting that the European attitude toward our emergency credit legislation had completely changed.

Sterling was very steady and cables closed unchanged at $3.48½. Mexican dollars weakened.

By the Associated Press.

EARNINGS AND DIVIDENDS

Orders, factory productions and other business items.

By Standard Statistics Co., Inc.
NEW YORK, Feb. 27.

(Comparisons in earnings are with corresponding periods previous year. In sales statements see detailed reports for change in numbers of stores, if any, on comparative dates. Also for special charge offs, etc., if any.)

According to the figures released by the Department of Commerce, total motor vehicle output in United States amounted to 119,344 units, which compares with 121,541 units in December and 171,848 units in January, 1931. The drop in output was explained by fact that large scale production by Ford started only recently, the effect of which will not be felt until February.

Kansas City Power and Light gross reports revenues 12 months to Jan. 31, 1932 off 0.8 per cent; net income up 9.6 per cent.

Industrial and Financial Briefs

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Bank suspensions were fewer in the week just past, numbering eight, compared with 27 in the preceding week, according to the "American Banker." This is the most favorable showing for any recent week. Reopenings numbered six. The total number of closings so far this year is 467, affecting deposit liabilities of approximately $225,075,000.

The United States produced 62 per cent of the world's production of petroleum in 1931 compared with nearly 64 per cent in 1930. Output reached a total of 1,370,299,000 barrels, of which the United States contributed 850,275,000 barrels, according to preliminary figures compiled by the U. S. Bureau of Mines. For 1930 world production was 1,410,037,000 barrels of which the United States' share was 898,011,000 barrels. Russia was the second largest producer in 1931 with 11.6 per cent of the world total. In 1930 Venezuela ranked second with 9.7 per cent and Russia third with 8.9 per cent.

Increasing demand from roasters and chain stores is said by trade interests to be responsible for the moderate betterment in the price of coffee futures during the past week.

Orders received by the furniture industry in January were approximately 70 per cent greater than the December orders, a bulletin issued by Seidman & Seidman, accountants, states. The increase is attributed to special markets held in a number of furniture centers. Unfilled orders at the end of January showed an increase of 62 per cent over December, it is estimated.

The process of reducing surplus stocks of lumber continued during the week ended Feb. 20, says the current bulletin of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. Production for the week was 109,587,000 feet, approximating the previously established low levels. Orders exceeded the production by 36 per cent and shipments by 40 per cent. A week earlier shipments ran 30 per cent and orders 34 per cent above the production of 103,403,000 feet.

Prices of lead pigments remain quotably unchanged in spite of the recent drop of 25 points in the price of New York pig lead.

Because of the substantial dividend casualties in the last year, disbursements to stockholders in March are expected to show a sharp decrease from the 1930 total. Estimates place the amount to be paid next month at roughly $200,000,000 whereas a year ago payments aggregated $310,000,000.

Changes in capital structure have been made by 86 companies thus far in 1932. The purpose is, through reduction in stock par values or in outstanding volume of shares, to write off losses met in operations. A score of additional companies are also planning similar changes.

Stockholders of Eaton Axle & Spring Co. will meet March 16 to vote on changing the corporate name of Eaton Manufacturing Co.

The New York Central is coming into the market soon for a substantial volume of steel rail. The amount has not been determined.

A reversal of last week's sharp decline in mill operations in the Youngstown Steel district is indicated for the coming week. It is estimated that plant operations will be at about 28 per cent of capacity, an increase of 5 per cent over the current rate.

Cash dividend payments by the companies of the Standard Oil group in the first quarter of 1932 are estimated at $46,717,367 compared with $48,530,230 in the fourth quarter of 1931 and $63,101,997 in the first quarter of 1931, according to records compiled by Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co.

State and municipal financing scheduled for next week totals only $7,357,864, according to the "Daily Bond Buyer." This compares with $24,684,672 as the past week's total, and a weekly average for the year to date of $17,033,732.

White Motor Report.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 27.—White Motor Co. today reported a net loss for 1931, after various charge-offs, of $2,770,712. The operating deficit, however, was more than made good by addition to surplus of $4,113,619 arising from purchase and retirement of 150,000 shares of the company's own stock at greatly depreciated prices.

At the end of the year, the company reported $8,629,412 in cash and Government bonds on hand. Sales for 1931 were $23,517,462, a decrease of $13,015,240 from 1930. Net working capital was nearly $22,000,000 at the close of the year.

MILL FEED FUTURES MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 27.—A strong cash feed situation was prevailing factor in a higher mill feed futures market today. The market held strongly. Bran closed steady to 15c higher; gray shorts steady to 25c higher; standard middlings 10c higher. Sales were moderate in volume totaling 1200 tons.

SMALL CHANGE IN WHEAT PRICE WITH CORN DOWN

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 27.—Wheat futures closed a shade higher today after July had ranged fractionally on both sides of previous close. Corn was lower. There was bullish winter wheat comment, but this was offset by light export business as well as desire to await unofficial reviews due next week. Corn receipts at Chicago and other points were said to have exerted influence on that grain.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅝d lower. Winnipeg wheat closed ⅛@¼c lower after being higher early.

May wheat opened at 58⅞, July wheat 59¾, May corn 37⅛ and July corn 40¼.

Local wheat receipts, which were 114,800 bu, compared with 91,000 a week ago and 186,200 a year ago, included 63 cars local and 20 through. Corn receipts, which were 79,800 bu compared with 19,600 a week ago and 58,800 a year ago, included 56 cars local and one through. Oats receipts, which were 22,000 bu, compared with 35,200 a week ago and 61,600 a year ago, included 10 cars local. Hay receipts were nine cars local and one through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1c lower. Receipts were in good volume. The demand was good, with elevators, mills and order buyers purchasing. Spread between cash and future prices widened, with good No. 1 selling on a basis 3¾c below the Chicago May figure, and No. 2s from 4¼@4¾c below, depending upon billing of cars and quality of grain. Increasing dependency on stores to absorb surplus supplies and also the matter of restricted billing were factors in widening the spread between spot and forward deliveries. Hard wheat was 1c lower. A car of No. 2, the only sale made, recorded this decline. Trading basis was a little easier at 4¼c below the Chicago May prices for No. 2. Corn was ½@1½c lower. Receipts were liberal. Mixed corn went to mills and industries, the yellow to a mill and an elevator, and one car of white for seed. Sales of No. 2 yellow were at 5¼@5¾s below the Chicago May figure and No. 3 yellow 7@8¼c below, basis 1c lower. Oats were ½c lower. Receipts were light and offerings cleared fairly well. Elevator and a shipper were the buyers.

WHEAT CLOSES IRREGULAR AFTER RISE IN CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—Curtailment of export demand for North American wheat did much to bring about late setbacks in grain values today, and frustrate a promising advance.

Only about 200,000 bu of wheat were taken for shipment overseas from Canada and the United States. A tendency to await March unofficial crop summaries due next week was shown, and comment was pessimistic as to any large reduction of domestic spring wheat acreage this season.

Wheat closed irregular at ⅛c decline to an equal gain compared with yesterday's finish, corn ⅛@⅝c down, oats ⅛@⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Upturns in wheat took the Chicago market well above yesterday's close, despite early declines that were influenced by prospects of large tenders on March contracts at Liverpool and by 2½c break in quotations at Berlin. The subsequent rallies here were associated with unfavorable crop reports from domestic winter wheat territory west and southwest, where high temperatures for this time of year together with dearth of moisture were emphasized by a forecast of continued dryness next week. Possibilities of a major crop scare developing were referred to in one quarter.

Bear traders gave stress however, to word from Kansas City that elevator stocks of wheat there were at almost a peak record, and that there were cars on track were waiting to be unloaded. Meanwhile, the lessening of activity in North American wheat export business put a damper on bullish enthusiasm, and rallies were hard to hold. There appeared to be considerable profit-taking under way on the part of speculative holders in all markets that have recently had substantial upturns.

Liberal receipts of corn here and in the West acted as a weight on prices of feed grains. Shipping call for corn was unimproved.

Provisions slanted upward owing to indications of smaller marketing.

Corn receipts, which were 79,800 bu compared with 19,600 a week ago and 58,800 a year ago, included 56 cars local and one through. Oats receipts, which were 22,000 bu, compared with 35,200 a week ago and 61,600 a year ago, included 10 cars local. Hay receipts were nine cars local and one through.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was 1c lower. Receipts were in good volume. The demand was good, with elevators, mills and order buyers purchasing. Spread between cash and future prices widened, with good No. 1 selling on a basis 3¾c below the Chicago May figure, and No. 2s from 4¼@4¾c below, depending upon billing of cars and quality of grain. Increasing dependency on stores to absorb surplus supplies and also the matter of restricted billing were factors in widening the spread between spot and forward deliveries. Hard wheat was 1c lower. A car of No. 2, the only sale made, recorded this decline. Trading basis was a little easier at 4¼c below the Chicago May prices for No. 2. Corn was ½@1½c lower. Receipts were liberal. Mixed corn went to mills and industries, the yellow to a mill and an elevator, and one car of white for seed. Sales of No. 2 yellow were at 5¼@5¾s below the Chicago May figure and No. 3 yellow 7@8½c below, basis 1c lower. Oats were ½c lower. Receipts were light and offerings cleared fairly well. Elevator and a shipper were the buyers.

Only about 200,000 bu of wheat were taken for shipment overseas from Canada and the United States. A tendency to await March unofficial crop summaries due next week was shown, and comment was pessimistic as to any large reduction of domestic spring wheat acreage this season.

Wheat closed irregular at ¼c decline to an equal gain compared with yesterday's finish, corn ⅛@c down, oats ⅛@⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Upturns in wheat took the Chicago market well above yesterday's close, despite early declines that were influenced by prospects of large tenders on March contracts at Liverpool and by 2½c break in quotations at Berlin. The subsequent rallies here were associated with unfavorable crop reports from domestic winter wheat territory west and southwest, where high temperatures for this time of year together with dearth of moisture were emphasized by a forecast of continued dryness next week. Possibilities of a major crop scare developing were referred to in one quarter.

Bear traders gave stress, however, to word from Kansas City that elevator stocks of wheat there were at almost a peak record, and that there were cars on track were waiting to be unloaded. Meanwhile, the lessening of activity in North American wheat export business put a damper on bullish enthusiasm, and rallies were hard to hold. There appeared to be considerable profit-taking under way on the part of speculative holders in all markets that have recently had substantial upturns.

Liberal receipts of corn here and in the West acted as a weight on prices of feed grains. Shipping call for corn was unimproved.

Provisions slanted upward owing to indications of smaller marketing.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Total bond sales on the New York Stock Exchange Saturday were $5,146,000, compared with $12,041,000 yesterday, $4,794,000 a week ago and $3,400,000 a year ago. Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were $506,598,000, compared with $447,697,000 a year ago and $412,617,000 two years ago. Total sales for the week amounted to $44,703,000, compared with $41,600,000 corresponding week a year ago.

Quotations on all Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar. That is, for instance, a sale printed 99-24 means $99 and 24 thirty-seconds of a dollar, and not $99.24.

Following is a complete list of bonds traded in, with sales, highest, lowest and closing prices. In sales, 000 omitted.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Though the bank statements do not as yet provide definite evidence of a check in credit deflation as a result of administration efforts in that direction, the bond market is quite openly reflecting the influence of such measures. Fixed income bearing securities have been working gradually higher now for the better part of a fortnight without important interruption to the upward trend. Explanation for the turn is found in abrupt contraction in the number of banking insolvencies in the interval, lifting pressure of forced liquidation which banking closings involves. The Comptroller of the Currency's statement that not a single National bank closed this week provides a cue to the fact that administration efforts are being directed mainly toward strengthening of the bank structure. All told on the basis of most recent figures there were only eight closings in the last week, while six banks previously closed were reopened.

The January operating statement of the Baltimore & Ohio aroused perhaps more comment than that of any other road having reported thus far for the first month of the year. Heavy clash in operating expenses by this road, almost offsetting a drop of $3,952,058 in gross revenues, was without effect on the stock which hovered close to the year's low levels. Operating expenses were cut $3,820,264, chiefly the result of slashes of $2,136,802 in outlay for maintenance of equipment, way and structure, and of $1,452,587 in transportation costs. Further savings in taxes, rents, etc., totaling $149,557 make it possible for the road to show net operating income of $1,354,916 or $26,763 above the figure reported for the opening month of 1931. With Atchison turning in a railway operating deficit, however, the B. & O's showing carried little influence marketwise.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Gray cotton goods were steady today in the print cloth and convertible division. Printed wash fabrics sold steadily. Dress goods were in better demand following the ending of labor difficulties among dress workers. Silk was steadier in local markets. Silk goods are selling moderately at very low prices. Wool crepes and diagonals are in demand. Rayon manufacturers are maintaining production average from 75 to 80 per cent. Burlaps were steady.

PRICES ARE MIXED IN SLOW SESSION ON CURB

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—The ticker tape of the New York Curb Market today lapsed into frequent intervals of complete quiet in a session which found total transactions amounting to only 80,000 shares for the two-hour business day.

This was the lowest total to be recorded by the Curb since last August and, with that exception, the lowest figure in several years. Prices were mixed with the predominant trend a shade lower for the leaders.

The oils were under light pressure.

AKRON, O., Feb. 27.—A net profit of $262,503.77 after all charges but before making provision for certain special reserves was made by the General Tire & Rubber Co. for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1931, the company's annual report showed today.

"As a matter of fact when these special reserves are taken into consideration the company actually lost $444,062.56 during 1931," President William O'Neil said.

Operating profit before depreciation, interest, and special reserves were deducted was $587,187.65.

Germany Company Report.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.—The Allgemeine Elektrizitaets Werkes has published its annual report showing losses for 1931 which were covered from reserves, reducing the reserves by 19,300,000 marks (approximately $4,600,000) to 42,000,000 marks (approximately $10,080,000). Fifteen million shares in possession of the company were canceled. Turnover declined to 370,000,000 marks (approximately $88,800,000) compared with 520,000,000 marks (approximately $124,800,000) in 1930 when a dividend of seven per cent was paid.

Cardozo's Theories of Law and Society.

ALTHOUGH the man in the street may be willing to take the opinion of jurists and members of law school faculties—Dean Pound of Harvard, for example, has said that of the 10 greatest American Judges, eight were dead, Holmes and Cardozo being the others—such acceptance of expert advice leaves him with no self-achieved opinion about Judge Cardozo's conception of the place of the law and the Judge in the scheme of things.

A good beginning can be made by turning to the opinion he wrote in 1926 in the case of People v. Defore.

One of the questions involved was whether evidence obtained illegally was admissible. Defore was arrested in the hall of a boarding house by a policeman who suspected him of stealing an overcoat. City Tackles Last Phase of Urgent Transportation Problem After Five Years of Study

Aldermanic Committee in Favor of Municipal Ownership, and Now a Smaller Committee Will Draft Plan for Unified, Satisfactory Service and Report to Full Board.

By SAM J. SHELTON,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE Special Transportation Committee of the Board of Aldermen is expected within a few days to make its report recommending municipal ownership of the city's transit system, and suggesting that a new small committee be appointed to work out a practical plan for putting the recommendation into operation.

This brings within measurable distance of solution the transit problem which for five years has perplexed the City Hall, for it is expected by leaders in the Board of Aldermen that definite action will promptly follow the report.

Agreement on the policy of public ownership was reached by the Transportation Committee Feb. 11, after its special counsel, former Congressman Cleveland A. Newton, had analyzed the problem and informed it he saw no other way to provide better mass transportation facilities needed for the welfare and growth of the city.

Approval by the Board of Aldermen of the existing committee's report is anticipated and President Neun of the Board and Alderman Edward W. Wiehe, chairman of the committee, hope that a definite plan for a transit system will be before the board in advance of adjournment of the present session in April.

Three Major Problems.

Important questions the new committee will consider are:

Should the transit system consist of street cars or busses, or a combination of both?

Should the city purchase all or any part of the existing transit system?

What would be the probable result to the city's finances from ownership and operation of the transit system?

If the suggestions of Attorney Newton are adopted the new committee to which the board will pass these questions will have authority to negotiate and will have wide latitude in working out a plan most advantageous to the city. The final result, of course, will be subject to approval by the Aldermen and the Mayor.

Although it is Newton's intention not to require a municipal bond issue or the assumption of any new general municipal debt, it is likely that whatever plan is adopted will be submitted to the voters at an election.

That there is strong aldermanic support for the public ownership principle is shown by the fact that 13 of the 29 members of the board are on the committee which endorsed it. In addition to Neun and Chairman Wiehe these are Aldermen Studt, Riefling, W. F. Niederluecke, Lange, Watts, Kaufmann, Eilers, Fischer, Meisinger, Lohman and Schwartz. All but Schwartz were present and there was no dissent when the committee decided to draft a report based on public ownership.

In view of the wish of the committee to proceed to a solution of the transit problem, it is appropriate to examine the principal problems representatives of the city will have to solve. These already have been stated.

What Type Vehicles.

It is obvious the type of vehicle for passenger transportation is of utmost importance. Whether street cars of the design now used should continue in service must be decided. Upon the answer to this question, as well as upon additional considerations, among them the feasibility of installing so-called rapid transit facilities in the form of subways and elevated structures, will depend to a considerable extent on the committee's findings with reference to the second proposition—purchase of existing facilities.

The third proposition—result upon the city's finances—is, of course, one for thorough official scrutiny.

A mass of evidence has been collected by the Aldermanic Committee in hearings held in the last year under the direction of its special counsel. This evidence supplements that contained in the voluminous report of the Transportation Survey Commission. In the Aldermanic hearings, however, the evidence was directed more closely to the actual situation as it exists in St. Louis.

Expressions of various Aldermen at meetings of the committee show they are awake to the dangers of purchasing an obsolete system." The city should not buy the street railway company's "hard luck," but in fairness to the citizens should be "mercenary," Alderman Riefling said. Neun, Watts, Kaufmann, Eilers and Lange spoke at various times of the decline in street car riding as having an effect on the prospective value of a rail system. Attorney Newton declared that if the City should buy any part of the existing system the price would have to be determined on actual value for transportation purposes and not upon physical appraisals, reproduction cost, original cost or any theoretical basis.

Snapshot of one of the new type motor busses on Lindell boulevard. This has engine in rear, with exhaust pipe running straight up to roof. The vehicle moves on pneumatic tires and seats 40 passengers. It has all the freedom of movement of a private automobile.

If the Board of Aldermen approves the plan being formulated by the committee, the next step undoubtedly will be to negotiate with the Public Service Co., owner of the street railway system, and certain bus lines, to determine its attitude as to going out of business. Refusal of the company to sell, or insistence upon price or terms viewed by the city's representatives as too high, might result in municipal action independent of the company. The city's power to use the streets for public transportation service in competition with private companies is unquestioned.

Steady Loss in Fares.

Testimony was heard on the decline in number of passengers carried by the Public Service Co., whose business is chiefly street car operation. From the high point of 1923, the number of fares collected annually has declined as shown in this table:

1924	281,566,837	4.8
1925	272,761,044	3.1
1926	273,657,718	.3*
1927	263,646,027	3.6
1928	255,337,818	3.1
1929	242,966,093	4.8
1930	213,685,711	12.0
1931	181,164,243	15.0

*Increase.

The Chamber of Commerce introduced testimony designed to show that considerable loss of business by street cars in St. Louis was due to long time consumed in completing rides, despite the relatively high average speed of cars. The fault was ascribed to indirectness of lines built many years ago, in some cases by competing companies, without regard to a co-ordinated system. The rail system was called a "hodge-podge" which has not kept up in improvements with the city's growth, with damaging results upon the city's business.

It will be recalled that R. F. Kelker Jr., engineer for the Transportation Survey Commission, estimated an expenditure of $23,000,000 would be required to modernize the surface trolley system by straightening of lines, building extensions and loops, providing needed new cars and for other equipment. The magnitude of this figure will be seen when it is compared with figures for bus equipment to be given later.

Cost of New Busses.

Obviously the committee will have to consider the possibility of major use of busses, and in view of the vast improvement made in the last two or three years in such vehicles for urban transportation, it may, indeed, look to the bus as the ultimate sole means of providing a modern fast transit system.

A significant statement was made by Newton to the committee: "For $16,000,000 we could purchase enough busses to carry as many persons as are now carried by street cars."

There are about 900 street cars in daily operation at present; their average seating capacity is 60, a total of 54,000 seats; 1350 40-passenger busses would provide the same number of seats; their cost at $11,000 each would be $14,850,000. This, however, would not provide for the whole mass transportation load.

In this connection, in an interview published in the Post-Dispatch June 27, 1929, Emile Jayot, director of the huge local transportation system of Paris, said:

"I think the only solution for a city the size and type of St. Louis is to scrap its trolleys, except perhaps in the outskirts, and replace them with a fleet of low-swung, six-wheeled motor busses, carrying from 50 to 70 persons."

It is known that Richard W. Meade, a nationally known expert on motor bus operation, formerly manager of the People's Motor Bus Co. in St. Louis, is of the opinion busses could adequately provide local transportation for this city. Under his management the People's Motor Bus Co. issued a pamphlet from which the following is quoted:

"Until recently it has been generally contended by street car men that street cars alone can handle surface 'mass transportation.' This idea requires serious modification; for it is demonstrable that large capacity busses can and do handle mass transportation effectively. Street cars have never been able to handle mass transportation profitably except by carrying large standing loads. This is an impediment to comfort and a deficiency of service."

The pamphlet related that in 1925 motor busses in London carried 1,671,000,000 passengers, more than 50 per cent of all the local business, and more than were carried in that year by the New York City subway system.

Striking instances of motor bus success are available in St. Louis. Two major lines, Vandeventer and Gravois, and several of minor importance, have had busses substituted for street cars. The immediate motive on both Vandeventer and Gravois was to avoid the huge expense the company would have been put to, to reconstruct rail lines when streets were widened and improved. For Gravois avenue service 18 new 40-passenger busses, of latest type, were purchased at $11,000 each, the total investment being less than it would have cost the company to reconstruct its tracks.

Investments and Profits.

The financial result to the city of municipal ownership is a major consideration. The city can borrow capital at lower rates than a private company has to pay, an important economy perhaps equaling the operating saving, if any, enjoyed by electric cars. In fact, most street railways, because of declining business, have been unable in recent years to borrow new capital. This is one reason why improvements have not been made. Newton told the committee he was convinced from conversations with bankers that a private company could not obtain capital for improvements, and that he had turned to public ownership as the only means to provide the people of St. Louis with modern mass transportation.

Newton made a calculation of probable operating results under city ownership. Using the experience of 1930, and making adjustments for savings possible under city ownership, he arrived at these figures:

Operating revenue from unified system	$21,571,000
Expenses, including depreciation	14,551,000
Operating profit	7,020,000

He used actual revenue figures for the Public Service Co. and People's Motor Bus

Type of Vehicle Best Suited to Present Day Needs Is First Question to Be Decided, Whether to Use Both Trolley Cars and Busses, or Busses Exclusively.

Co., and estimated $597,000 additional from elimination of service cars. On the expense side he estimated a saving of $300,000 from elimination of duplicate bus services, and a saving of about $1,000,000 in payments for injuries and damages. He arrived at the latter figure by applying the average experience of other American cities to St. Louis, where the item now is notoriously high. Otherwise his estimate of operating expenses coincides with the actual payments of the present companies.

Of course, a municipally owned system would pay no taxes, a large item in the expense of private companies. Newton believed, however, that out of the operating profit of $7,020,000 the city would be able to repay itself for the $1,410,000 in taxes it received from the street railway company in 1930, and have an abundance left for interest, sinking fund and improvements.

Possible Balance Sheet.

The result would depend upon the investment. If the city should decide upon an all-bus system, the investment, to take care of a possible 20 per cent increase in business should not exceed $30,000,000. The number of seats available in the street cars, busses and service cars now operated at the peak hours (about 900 cars) is approximately 72,800. The newest busses in use in St. Louis have seats for 40. Thus 1820 such busses would be needed to provide the same number of seats. At $11,000 each these busses would cost $20,020,000, but a better price probably could be obtained for so large an order, as there is actual competition among manufacturers.

To increase the seating capacity 25 per cent would require 450 more busses at additional cost of $4,950,000. The principal investment otherwise would be for shops and storage facilities. If the item should not exceed $5,000,000, the total investment would be $30,000,000 or less.

If on a $30,000,000 investment the city received an operating profit of $7,000,000, the net result probably would be:

Operating profit		$7,000,000
Deductions—
Interest (5 pct.)	$1,500,000
Sinking funds	1,500,000
In lieu of taxes	1,400,000
Total deductions		4,400,000
Balance		2,600,000

The balance of $2,600,000 would be available for improvements of the system or for such public purposes as the Board of Aldermen might see fit. If $1,600,000 of this profit were devoted to progressive improvement of the service there would remain $1,000,000, a year net profit to add to the city's general revenue from an entirely new source. This contribution could be progressively increased as the $30,000,000 investment was reduced by the sinking fund.

A Glance Backward.

The transit problem has been on the door step of the City Hall since the reorganizers of the street railways sought a new franchise in 1926. Mayor Miller once took it in, but after discovering the nature of the proposed franchise in which it was cloaked he threw it out in July, 1927, and tagged it with his much-discussed letter to the promoters, in which he declared against "furthering any plan which had for its purpose only the exploitation of the present situation and the consummation of a financial deal in which the desire for an immediate and substantial profit on the part of the promoters," would outweigh the administration's interest in obtaining improved service.

In 1928 the Board of Aldermen created the Transportation Survey Commission, which was composed of nine ex-officio members and seven selected by the Mayor from citizens not occupying public office. It employed a consulting engineer who made exhaustive studies of the transit situation and included many recommendations for improvement in his reports. It proposed several forms of franchise and succeeded in having passed by the Legislature a bill for a "terminable permit" to be issued by the State Public Service Commission, which was vetoed by Gov. Caulfield after a public hearing at the City Hall.

Alternative Plans.

Summing up its views in a report submitted to the Board of Aldermen in 1930, the commission gave three suggestions for financing and controlling the transportation system. The first was for a terminable permit "providing for the fullest measure of home rule

Japanese Invasion Of Shanghai Is Called Affront to League of Nations

Julius Curtius, Former Foreign Minister of Germany, Declares Effective Counter Action Must Be Taken—Disarmament and the Money Situation.

By JULIUS CURTIUS,
Former Foreign Minister of Germany.

BERLIN, Feb. 27.

THE political situation of the world is dominated at present by the following factors:

The second disarmament conference, the first stage of which has come to a close, and the Chinese-Japanese conflict, which has reached its most critical point, and

The decision of the chief Powers of Europe to meet in June of this year to come to a final, permanent solution of the reparations question and the economic and financial problems that hinge upon it. These latter include the Basel report and the fight being made by the United States against deflation.

The conflict between the Chinese and Japanese is threatening to become a world political danger. Perhaps we today would have been able to remain indifferent to Japan's march into Manchuria but the attack on Shanghai, which is a thrust into the very heart of China, must lead to the worst complications in view of the interwoven and conflicting interests of the world's mightiest economic interests in Eastern Asia.

Suggests Counter-Action.

Beyond this, the honor of both belligerents is involved at a moment when the demons of destruction have been let loose. Experience shows that these forces cannot be held back until they have consumed themselves; that their attractiveness increases ascendingly unless counter-forces from another sphere step in and bring them to a halt.

Partners in the nine-Power treaty, signatories of the Kellogg pact and members of the League of Nations must therefore launch effective counter-action.

The situation is gradually becoming grotesque for the League Council. Perhaps its members, who for months have been listening uninterruptedly to reports and who have been negotiating to bring about decisions, are not conscious of this fact.

Whoever has sat, as I did, at the council table in September and participated in the solemn demonstration demanding the withdrawal of the Japanese troops and the termination of the conflict by means of a neutral arbitration commission—and now after five months is confronted anew by the same question—will feel that above all, the present situation is an affront to the League of Nations and simultaneously a blow to the authority of that body.

Need for Disarmament.

The disarmament conference, naturally being deeply influenced by the Asiatic conflict together with its reaction upon the League of Nations is nevertheless approaching its big problems with earnestness and determination.

The first act of the disarmament conference is over. The assembly of delegates and the general preliminary parleys have come to an end. Germany has experienced the satisfaction of seeing her moral and judicial claim upon the disarmament of others—in accordance with her own disarmament—no longer disputed but, on the contrary, supported by the solemn proclamations of a number of other delegates.

The demand for the equality and for the application of similar methods of disarmament towards all has been steadily winning ground at Geneva. From nearly all sides drastic demands have been made to discard the principal weapons of aggression. The preliminary outline draft of the convention has thus assumed a character that is little more than a basis for discussion.

From all this, however, it is not yet possible for anyone to prognosticate how the conference will end. One can already observe a growing understanding for the necessity of an early, real disarmament increasing the feeling of responsibility of all participants who are facing the conscience of the world, and a broadening of recognition of the connection between national interests and international solidarity.

Specter of World Crisis.

Many speakers at Geneva, especially the chief delegate of the United States, have pointed to the flagrant disproportion between armaments and the economic plight of the nations. It is only natural that the specta

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Veteran Sounds a Warning.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

RECENTLY a newspaper carried an advertisement by a veterans' organization containing a ballot asking whether veterans wanted immediate cash payment in full of the "bonus," these ballots presumably to be used as inducements to legislators to act favorably.

Some people like the Bourbons, I think it was, never forget and never learn. It there is anything plain right now, it is the fact that the public in a time of stress expects that every one carry his share of the load. Justice in veteran matters and not sentimentality or over-meaning generosity is the order of the day, and rightly so, when many groan under the loads saddled upon them by taxation.

Let the veterans take heed that a public once sentimentally generous toward us, but now looking for justice by hard necessity, is not made our enemy by any high-handed or unreasoning demands of ours. The American Legion vetoed the full payment of the bonus, which ought to convince the other veterans' organizations it is time to "lay off" asking and asking.

This is no time to antagonize public opinion when everyone's nerves are raw and looking for a place to use the economy ax. I warn my fellow service men to be on the level and play fair. If they don't, they are riding for a fall and are going to drag the worthy down with the opportunists.

No decent citizen objects to compensating a large number of men handsomely whose lives have been blighted by injuries to body and mind, but the overloading of pension rolls with a horde whose claims to consideration are slight, the clamor in hard times for still more benefits by those already generously cared for, and, finally, a full payment of the bonus, things such as these will bring an about-face in public opinion and then, beware!

I am a handsomely compensated ex-service man living a sort of half-life, physically and mentally, from a hospital experience lasting eight months and over a year's convalescence. Yet I am willing to see my compensation cut to meet the fall in the cost of living. I say it because I recognize I am indebted to a generous citizenry who have been good to me. I say it because it is their money that they so decently shell out. Hence, as much decency should be shown to them.

Overlooking a Bet.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE prohibition forces overlooked a good bet in not trying to get the Aldermen to pass a license measure for "soft-drink" parlors.

What with grafting, free drinks, cigars and cigarettes for the police, and a license tax, the "soft-drink" parlor or speakeasy would have to go out of business.

SOUTH SIDER.

For a Pool of Bank Deposits.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ARE bankers asleep to the situation that confronts their business? Ogden Mills says that people resort to hoarding and postal savings because they have lost confidence in private banks. The tremendous withdrawals that in recent months have ruined banks in every community is proof of this. It is too expensive a situation to let persist. Forced liquidation of the assets of these banks works ruin in a community. And yet it is a bankers' world. The borrower gives security for a loan; the depositor gets a slip of paper that is no guarantee at all.

Depositors see their neighbors sustain losses or have their funds tied up and they naturally lose any nonchalance about about leaving their money in the bank. This ruins a bank that is solvent otherwise. Bankers must restore confidence. Nothing will do this more surely than a guarantee of deposits. No one bank can afford to carry its own risk, just as no individual can afford to carry his own fire risk, his own automobile risk, or the risk of sickness and accident. The individual insures against these. Banks can band together to insure themselves.

There should be a Federal bureau of bank insurance, or a deposit guarantee bureau under the supervision of the Federal Government. All banks should be required to deposit with such a bureau a certain percentage, say 5 per cent of their daily gross deposits, and this fund should be used to bolster any bank that needs help. No bank should be allowed to fail so far as depositors are concerned. The bureau would step in and pay off 100 per cent, liquidate the bank and return to the stockholders any remaining portion of their deposit after expenses were prorated. Any solvent bank desiring to quit business would likewise have returned any excess deposit. As a layman, I do not presume to know what share of deposits should be required, but I know that such an arrangement on the part of banks is about the only thing that will restore confidence for a long time. The plan should not prove expensive, for with public confidence money would go back into banks, banks could loan money and help to restore business activities in every community, and bank failures would be far less frequent.

Through Federal courts, bad or criminal banking practices would be punished or regulated without the nullifying effect of local politics. Chicago and Illinois could or would not reach Al Capone, but the Federal Government got him for evading income tax payment.

In the Grip of the Machine

Some Edward Bellamy or Sir Thomas More in our midst may envision the machine as a potential blessing instead of a curse, but if that happy sequel is to be written, we must sharply revise our attitude toward the problem of unemployment which it has created. We cannot continue to permit labor-saving machinery to throw men out of work, leaving them to the demoralization of charity. There must be a fairer division of the products of the machine, so as to insure every man an opportunity to earn a living. Thomas R. Taylor of the U. S. Department of Commerce echoes the almost universal opinion of economists when he predicts the five-day week in industry within a few years. If that does not take up the slack of idle labor, further curtailment of the hours of labor will be necessary.

As was shown in Charles G. Ross' discussion of unemployment two weeks ago, the problem did not burst upon us in the fall of 1929. On the contrary, in the most roseate days of the Coolidge boom, when some were so optimistic as to look forward to the abolition of poverty, between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 workers were without jobs. This employment was technological in nature, produced by the displacement of men by machinery. During the last decade the output per worker in manufacturing industries increased 45 per cent. In that significant period, machines and increased efficiency threw out of employment 900,000 factory workers, approximately 2,000,000 railway employes, 200,000 coal miners and 800,000 agricultural workers. Many were unable to shift to other industries.

Mr. Ross cited numerous examples, such as that, in the manufacture of boots and shoes, 100 machines have taken the place of 25,000 men. We now propose to show that the labor-displacing process, despite, or perhaps because of, the depression, is making amazing strides and that the need for coming to grips immediately with this Frankenstein is increasingly urgent. From April, 1931, to February, 1932, of 179 new products and processes listed by Nation's Business, 73 were labor-saving devices and others were machine-made substitutes for articles heretofore made by hand labor. The genius for invention and mechanical progress characteristic of the American industrial civilization has not been dimmed. Let us cite instances.

No less than a revolution is taking place in the field of building construction. Air-conditioning devices to heat, ventilate and humidify houses in winter, and to cool and ventilate them in summer, are now being mass-produced and are available to purchasers. The all-metal house, such as those now selling in Germany for $1000, is seemingly just around the corner. In the meantime, in new house construction, cellars and basements are being eliminated, as are expensive masonry foundations, attics and waste chimney and partition space. It is possible to obtain pre-fabricated door frames, doors with locks and hinges already fitted, and screen doors hung, window units and even stairways of wood or metal. Numerous new devices are on the market, such as porcelain-enameled shingles washable with soap and water, rolled structural steel flooring, perforated steel coated with glass for wall, roof or floor construction (can be made transparent, translucent or opaque), sound-proof insulating plaster base and "steel tile," cut in bathroom size and coated with vitreous enamel.

Numerous advances have been made in the field of transportation and communication of very recent date. Freight and passenger cars of the future may be built with new light-weight alloys instead of steel. Some such cars are already in experimental service. Rolling stock of all kinds is now being equipped with roller bearings to reduce repairs and promote safety. New mechanical means have been discovered to detect flaws in rails. Plans are being drafted to design freight cars with removable bodies which can be transferred to motor truck chasses. As for the automotive industry, the 1932 cars feature numerous improvements, such as free wheeling, engine cushioned in rubber, automatic clutches and improved gearing. Some good news for the cotton farmer lies in a process by which cotton is to supplant bronze in the manufacture of gears and bearings. Eventually, it is estimated 25,000,000 pounds of cotton will thus be consumed. Teletypewriting is now in active operation over a system of more than 2000 units. Television is in 1932 where radio was 10 years ago.

All sorts of new electrical devices have been perfected, or are in experiment, from such mere gadgets as electric moth balls and insect-electrocutors to important advances like filamentless electric lamps, which will save, it is estimated, $50,000,000 in the country's annual light bill, and the generation of electricity by means of huge rotors operated by wind. In chemistry, there is synthetic rubber, a water and acid proof cement, a new method for refining potash, a new kind of automobile finish, a yellow dye produced from petroleum and so on.

In fabrics, it is rumored that a new process of treating ramie has been perfected, which may revolutionize the industry. The ramie plant, growing in Eastern Asia, has fibers of great strength (eight times that of cotton), length and fineness, with a silken luster. In 1869, the Government of India offered a $25,000 prize for a process which would produce a ton of good ramie fiber at a cost not to exceed $75 per ton. Ramie would grow like a weed in our Southern States. Rayon, meanwhile, has been improved and is made to appear like taffeta, crepe de chine and other dull silk fabrics. In food packing and preserving, new refrigerating devices are revolutionizing the industry and it will soon be possible to eat oysters in the r-less months. There is a new concentrated liquid coffee, a new method of canning cream, an automatic syrup and sugar manufacturing unit, using the sugar cane for fuel. It is now possible to pollinate dates so the crop may be made to mature to order.

A machine has been invented to replace puddlers in the making of wrought iron; one which rolls strip steel so fast that one end is in the shipping room before the other is out of the furnace; a new arc-welding device which eliminates noisy riveting machines in steel construction; a photo-electric cell which sorts beans, nuts, etc.; an improved industrial crane; seamless metallic tubing to convey gas or liquids at high pressures and temperatures; a new automatic counter and controller; a new method of refining metallic zinc; aluminum milk cans; paper barrels; metal blackboards, and so on, ad infinitum.

It is impossible to contemplate the marvelous technological progress in the United States without being struck by the country's lack of social progress. It is in the highest degree tragic that we have all the wealth and equipment to make life more pleasant and free from drudgery than ever before in history, yet misery and starvation stalk the land. Social progress has lagged so far in the rear that we are now reduced to the disgraceful expedient of offering able-bodied men charity instead of work. It is a terrible reproach to our civilization, and we shall have to mend it by adapting ourselves to the machine, since it is neither possible nor desirable to scrap the machine itself. We shall have to take the profits of the machine and redistribute them in the form of shorter working periods and higher income taxes. Unless both capital and labor are to be devoured by the machine, it must be subjugated to serve the purposes of mankind.

The People Discriminate

Few charges are more common today than that the people are indifferent to the type of men which they elect to high office. The purpose of setting forth the facts below is to show that such indifference is not indefinitely sustained and that, given time, the people are not lacking in discrimination between faithful and faithless public servants.

Two years ago the United States Senate voted, 41 to 39, against confirming President Hoover's appointment of Judge John J. Parker of the "yellow dog" contract fame, to the Supreme Court. So close was the vote that had one Senator, who voted against confirmation, cast his lot with the administration the vote would have been equal and Vice President Curtis, in breaking the tie, had the opportunity of sending Judge Parker to the Supreme Court. It would seem then that with the Senate so evenly divided the present Senate should contain about an equal number of men who voted on opposite sides. What do we find? Four Senators who voted against Judge Parker are no longer members of that body. Those who voted for him and since have been replaced by others number 12.

Four years ago the Senate voted, 53 to 28, to bar from membership Frank L. Smith of Illinois, whose acceptance of power trust funds had rendered him unfit for the post. According to that ratio, the mortality, political and otherwise, among the men who voted against Mr. Smith should have been about twice as great as that among those who voted for him. The voters of the United States held another view. But 16 Smith Senators remain while 39 who voted against him are still in office. In other words, approximately three-fourths of those who voted against Mr. Smith are still in the Senate, whereas those who voted for him have been cut in half.

An even more striking instance of this retirement of Senators who vote for unfit men and the retention of those who vote against them is provided in the case of the vote on Truman H. Newberry, slush fund Senator from Michigan. Mr. Newberry was seated 10 years ago by a vote of 46 to 41. Obviously, if the public had returned Senators who voted in favor of Mr. Newberry in the same proportion in which it returned those who voted against him, there would be in the Senate today more Newberry Senators than anti-Newberry Senators. What do we find? A striking fact. Of the 46 who voted for Mr. Newberry but seven still hold their seats. Of the 41 who voted against him, 20 retain theirs. To put it another way, although fewer Senators voted against seating Mr. Newberry three times as many have been continued in service by their constituents.

This record of what the people do to Senators who betray the public trust is exceedingly noteworthy just now. In the cases of Judge James H. Wilkerson and Kenneth Mackintosh, appointed to the Circuit Court of Appeals, two unfit nominations are before the Senate. If the members of the Senate think of nothing higher than their own political fortunes they will reject them.

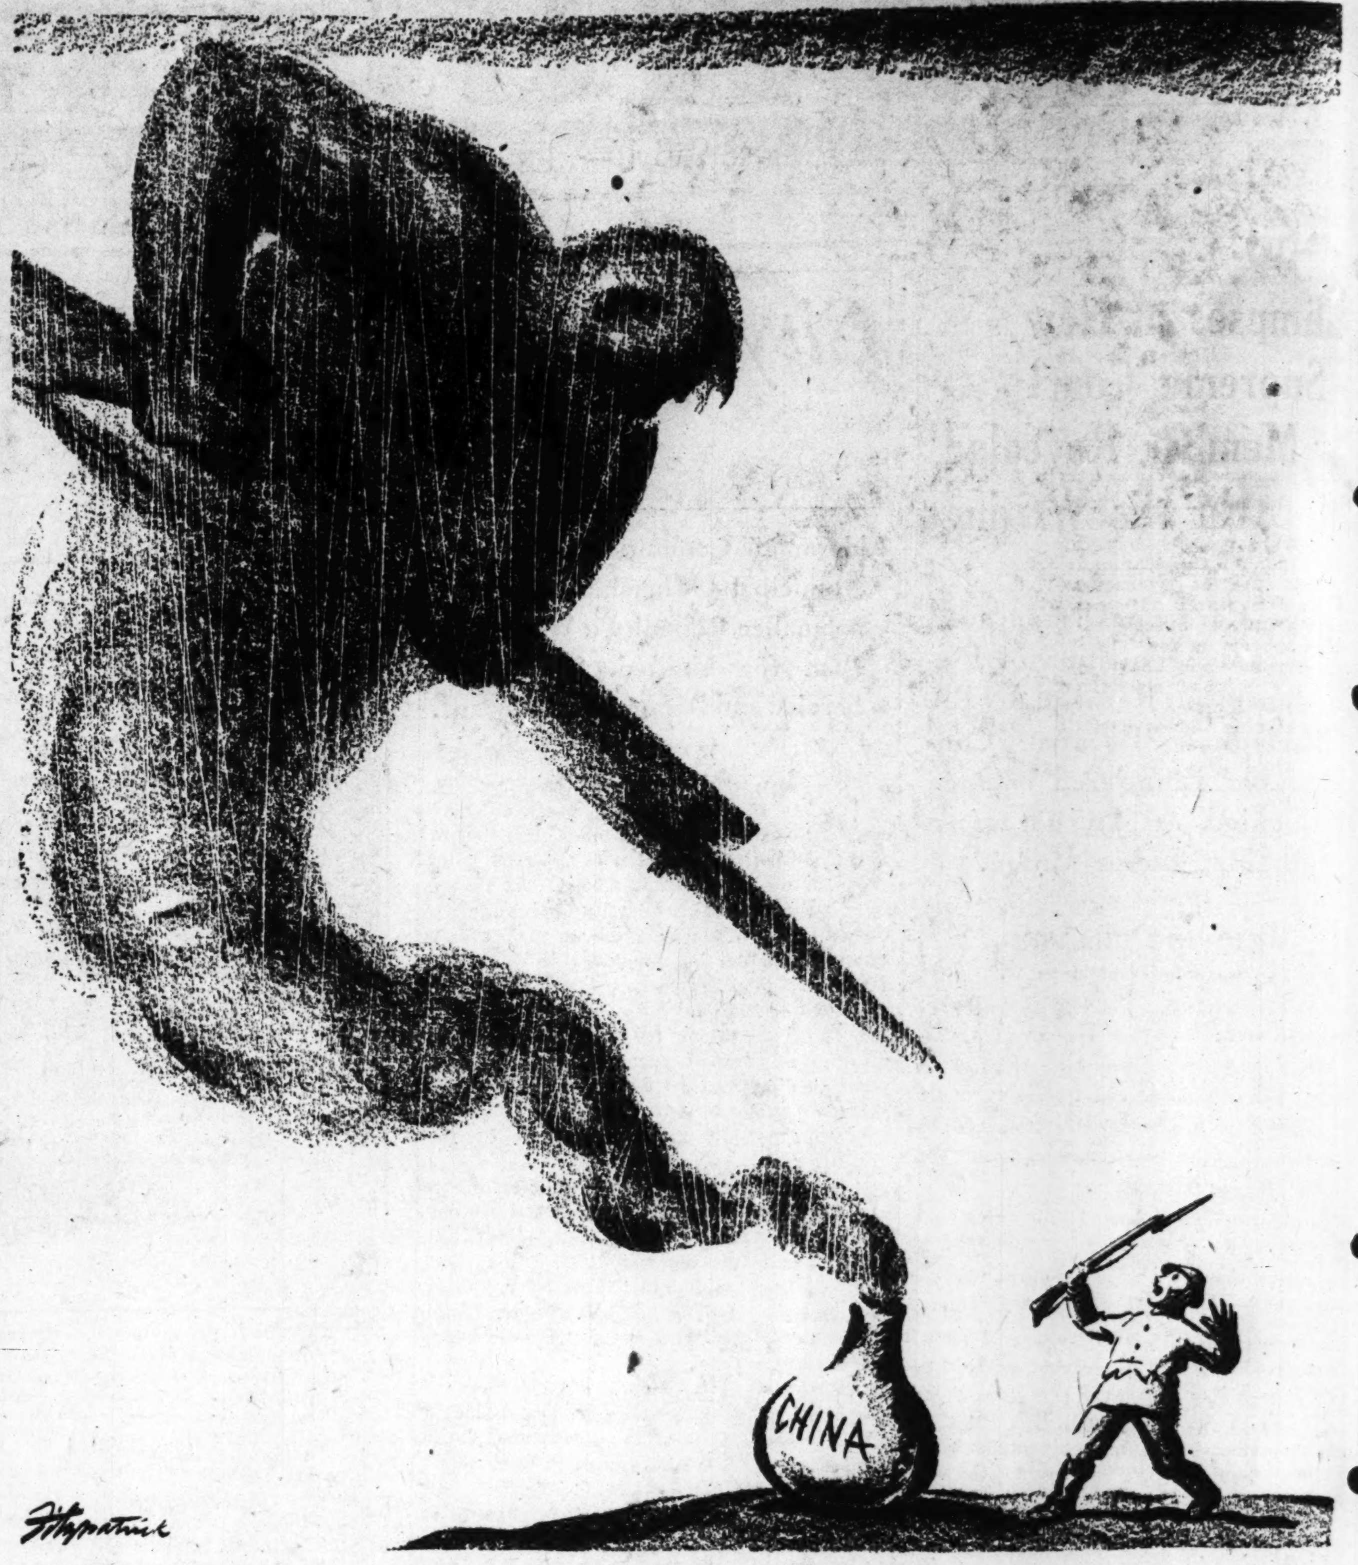
What has happened to Newberry, Smith and Parker Senators is a fate that should make clear what the people demand of their public servants.

Japan and the Boycott

Whether or not the League of Nations resorts to a boycott against Japan, there can be no doubt that resort to such a weapon is in the minds of men everywhere. The Foreign Office at Tokio complains that merchants in Boston and New York are refusing to sell Japanese goods. More than 5000 messages from educators, business men, bankers and manufacturers, indorsing the proposed international boycott against Japan suggested by Newton D. Baker, President Lowell of Harvard and others, have been received at the Boston headquarters of the American Committee on the Far Eastern Crisis. Petitions for a boycott against Japan are being circulated in St. Louis and all other large American cities.

Objection is made that such a boycott would mean war, but that is not necessarily the case. Japan could not fight the world, nor would she have the money with which to do so. To lose her foreign markets would reduce her to a state of impotence not hitherto visited on a great military Power by any other than physical means. The objection to the boycott is moreover unthinking in its unconscious proposal that the rest of the world shall contribute by buying Japanese goods to the means with which Japan makes war upon China in violation of international treaties. The relation of the United States to such a boycott could be much more embarrassing if we stayed out than if we went in. If we stayed out, we might assume the position of an onlooker while the rest of the world sought by this means to make Japan respect her covenants and withdraw her forces from China. If our ports continued open to Japanese goods, and our ships transported them, we might easily come in conflict on the seas with the Powers behind the boycott. The effect of such a situation would be to force us upon the side of the boycotting nations, since to side with Japan would be to contradict our official protests against her violation of the Kellogg-Briand pact and the nine-Power treaty.

At any rate, we are witnessing something new in the Western world. It is nothing new in the East. India has employed it against Britain, and China has employed it against Japan. It works. It is a means by which the peoples of all countries, irrespective of their political governments, can punish any great nation which breaks the peace of the world. It is the only such means that has ever been discovered. To oppose it is to play the part of King Canute, who thought he could hold back the tide.



HAS HE UNCORKED SOMETHING?

Prospects for Franco-German Unity

French and Germans themselves bear no mutual hatred, but are ready to co-operate, thus paving way for entente; this can be achieved by pact for real disarmament, both material and moral; Versailles pact need be no obstacle, writer says, if Germany accepts it, thus granting French wish for security and making revision possible.

Albert Guerard, Professor of Literature, Leland Stanford University, in Scribner's.

IT IS a great mistake to believe the French are animated by implacable hatred against Germany. There is no blood feud, no racial antagonism, between the two peoples. On the contrary, mutual appreciation is a long and honorable tradition with both of them.

Of the French electorate, 3,000,000, or 30 per cent, are Socialists or Communists, committed to an international outlook. The so-called "Radicals," probably the truest representatives of the French petite bourgeoisie, follow Briand, Herriot, Painleve, Laval, in a policy of friendly co-operation.

The great industrial and financial interests are heartily in favor of a close economic association with the Reich. Steel cartel, potash combine, chemical entente, are among the practical results of that spirit. The commissions appointed in both countries to work out a plan of economic collaboration are filled with capable men, who mean business.

The only irreconcilables are the French Junker, the Camelots du Roi, those whom a venerable priest once called "pious hooligans," with the principles of a Prussian lieutenant and the manners of a Chicago racketeer. They may break up a peace meeting; they cannot break France's will to peace.

A Franco-German entente is not merely in the air, it has actually started, it is growing. The French, I believe, would be glad to proclaim it on the housetops; the reasonable elements in Germany, including Von Hindenburg and Bruening, are more than ready to respond. But the German leaders are far less free than their French colleagues. The moral and material situation of the Reich is precarious if not desperate; public opinion is morbidly nervous. Generosity, tact, patience, will be imperiously needed.

The key to Franco-German reconciliation is trust, and trust cannot be imposed by Uncle Sam's big stick. Peace is a state of mind; we shall not foster peace by declaring war, with our bellicose friend, Oswald Garrison Villard, upon "France, the enemy of mankind."

I am not prophesying that a formal Franco-German entente will soon be announced to a bewildered world. I am only stating the plain fact, that at present the forces making for an entente have actually a better chance than the forces making for war. But the best chances may be frittered away. So long as we have national policies backed by armaments—in other words, so long as the Kellogg pact is a sham—we shall be at the mercy of silly incidents and the yellow press. The solution, we all agree, is disarmament; disarmament in its double aspect, material and moral.

Moral disarmament is by far the more important. Nations with huge armies and navies may live in profound peace; a war between Great Britain and ourselves is almost unthinkable. Nations without weapons, but with hatred in their hearts, will fight with plowshares beaten into swords, with trucks rigged up as tanks, with converted liners, with commercial airplanes, with peaceful chemicals turned into deadly gases.

Here comes the fundamental difference between the French and the German points of view. For the French, moral disarmament implies, first of all, the acceptance of existing treaties; for the Germans, their rejection. Both have their justification. In its clauses, Versailles may not be worse than Vienna, Utrecht, Muenster. But it is vitiated in its very essence because, after the most solemn promises of justice, it was imposed by sheer force; and because—supreme hypocrisy—a confession of guilt was exacted by a few turns of the rack. The spirit of 1919 is incompatible with the health of the world. If there are Frenchmen who still consider Versailles as the unchangeable law of Europe they are indeed the "enemies of mankind," and first of all the enemies of France.

But what is the alternative to acceptance? Militant rebellion? The classical example is Prussia after Jena. No promise exacted by a victor is binding: Versailles is worth as much as Bucharest or Brest-Litovsk, and no more. All imposed restrictions are merely challenges to ingenuity. Napoleon limited the size of the Prussian army, and the result was that the whole nation was drilled for war. The Allies limited the tonnage of German battleships, and the result was the "pocket dreadnought" Deutschland.

Tragic dilemma: to preserve an unjust treaty is to perpetuate war; to tear up any treaty is an act of war. Is there no escape? Yes, there is: a winding, uneven, precarious mode of escape, but the only one that can reconcile peace with justice.

The first and plainest step is to reject war absolutely. No exaction is so costly, no hardship is so frightful, no injustice is so unjust, as even the holiest of wars. It is far better that a few thousand East Prussians should have their baggage examined at the Polish border than that a million young men be torn by shrapnel or poisoned by gases. Whatever may be the crimes of peace, war is the greatest crime. Peace must be maintained; ergo, the breaker of the peace, the aggressor must be restrained.

But the present peace — the only peace we have—is based on the existing treaties. However unjust, the treaties must be enforced. A policeman, a judge, a president, must uphold even the laws of which he disapproves. Lincoln was right and John Brown was wrong. This assurance that there shall be no attempt to destroy by violence the existing law is exactly what France calls security. The demand for security is not a craven, hysterical, or selfish appeal for protection; it is a legal and moral conception. And it is the indispensable condition of disarmament.

But, security achieved and war absolutely ruled out, the way is open to a peaceful modification of the treaties. It is ridiculous to say that "France" as a nation stands for the immutability of the Versailles settlement. Versailles has already been amended, whittled down, superseded. All the personal responsibility clauses, the "Hang the Kaiser!" nonsense, are a dead letter. The free agreement of Locarno, not Versailles, is now France's title to her eastern frontier. The economic stipulations of the peace treaty have never been carried out, and never shall be.

Hurl irresistible national despair against the immovable rock of a treaty and the result will be catastrophe. Start with the formal and legal acceptance of the treaty, and modification, which has already gone very far, will be immensely accelerated. We do not urge that Germany or America should indorse Versailles as a just and permanent settlement; we have condemned Versailles from its very inception. We urge that amendment be sought only by peaceful means; that war, even for just ends, be curbed by the combined efforts of mankind. Thus we must underwrite the treaties before we alter them, but in order to alter them.

The principle of our Kellogg pact is exactly the same as the French principle of security: let all war be outlawed, war for the Polish Corridor, war for the Trentino, war for Macedonia, war for the half-million Jugo-Slavs under the Italian flag. With war ruled out, the victors will no longer hold out against revision; arms will yield to the law; disarmament, which it would be futile to hope for in the present state of anarchy, will follow in due time.

Twilight of the Gods

From the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette.

MORE than any other branch of the American Government, the Supreme Court gives direction to the institutional life of this nation. That court is the final word in the political thinking of American statesmen. The President appoints the members of the Supreme Court but the Senate confirms. The Senate is definitely liberal. No conservative need apply. The Cardozo appointment, the Hughes fight, the Parker defeat, prove this.

Now the lower courts are different. There the standpatter may build his nest in the moss. Recently two bright young men were under consideration for the appointment that went to Judge Cardozo. The bright young men were in the lower Federal courts, but their records were against them. They had decided cases having social implications on the hardboiled side. These young Judges had the applause of all the high-powered lawyers from the various bar associations. But bar associations are no longer in power. The primary did the business for the corporation lawyer in American politics. He is now practicing law—just that. These are sad days for those lawyers who owe their future political power and fame to the support of public service corporations.

It is the twilight of the gods—"twilight and evening star" for those poker-playing, cynical, brilliant, highball-hoisting lawyers who infest our state capitals and affect to laugh at the "dear peepul." Judges of inferior courts who run with that crowd, aspiring Judges whose decisions are tainted with the conservative view, who in suits having social significance hold property rights more sacred than the equitable distribution of our common wealth among the investors in wealth and earners thereof, may as well conclude to polish their pants in peace on the lower Federal benches. For until they quit the gang, until they learn that social rights are paramount to the passing privileges of property, these Judges of the lower courts are barred from promotion.

It will be a long time before the liberal majority in the Senate passes. It will grow rather than decline. Sad, sad days are these for the rulers of yesterday—the retreat from Moscow.

Rights of Public Against Criminal.

BUT when the defendant raised the point that the evidence of criminality was procured by an act of trespass and hence incompetent, Judge Cardozo was forced to break with him. The statutes of New York put no restrictions whatever on evidence and the statutes of New York were his guide.

"The Legislature which created (this immunity)," wrote Judge Cardozo, "has acquiesced in the (previous) ruling of this Court that the prohibition of the search did not anathematize the evidence yielded through the search. If we misread the statute or misconstrued the public policy, a few words of amendment would have set us right. Process of amendment is prompt and simple. . . . In such circumstances silence itself is the declaration of policy."

Inasmuch as the United States Supreme Court, in the case of Weeks v. U. S. had held that articles illegally seized by agents of the Federal Government should be excluded as evidence, it would seem that Judge Cardozo was at variance with the highest court in the country. It needs to be remembered, however, that in the United States there are two spheres of government, State and Federal, each possessing ultimate power, according to circumstances.

Thus, the Federal rule, as enunciated in the Weeks case, applies to agents of the Federal Government and may be used by Federal authority to restrict their agents from acts which violate the Federal Constitution's guarantee against unreasonable search and seizure. Whether state governments prefer to place such restrictions upon their agents is another matter. The New York statute on evidence does not. Judge Cardozo's decision applied the New York statute to the case before him.

As to which view is generally accepted, it is interesting to know that only 14 states follow the Federal rule of the Weeks case and exclude evidence illegally obtained. Thirty-one states, including Massachusetts, California, Connecticut, Ohio, Iowa, Kansas and Virginia, have the New York rule. The weight of the majority is on the side of those who agree with Judge Cardozo that the criminal is not "to go free because the constable has blundered."

"The question is," wrote Judge Cardozo, "whether protection for the individual would not be gained at a disproportionate loss of protection for society. On the one side is the social need that crime shall be repressed. On the other, the social need that law shall not be flouted by the insolence of office. There are dangers in any choice.

"With authority thus divided it is only some overmastering consideration of principle or policy that should move us to a change. The balance is not swayed until something more persuasive than uncertainty is added to the scales. . . . We must hold (the New York view) to be the law until those organs of government by which a change of public policy is normally effected, shall give notice to the courts that the change has come to pass."

Relation of Courts and the Legislature.

IT is not to be taken from this that Judge Cardozo approves wholly the present relationship between the legislative and judicial branches of government. Indeed, he does not, as set forth in his lecture on "A Ministry for Justice."

"Today courts and Legislature work in separation and aloofness," he said. "The penalty is paid both in wasted effort of production and in the lowered quality of the product. On the one side, the Judges, left to fight against anachronism and injustice by the methods of Judge-made law, are distracted by the conflicting promptings of justice and logic, of consistency and mercy, and the output of their labors bears the tokens of the strain.

"On the other side, the Legislature, informed only casually and intermittently of the needs and problems of the courts, without expert or responsible or disinterested or systematic advice as to the workings of one rule or another, patches the fabric here and there, and mars often when it would mend. Legislature and courts move on in proud and silent isolation. Some agency must be found to mediate between them.

"This task of mediation is that of a ministry of justice. The duty must be cast on some man or group of men to watch the law in action, observe the manner of its functioning, and report the changes needed when function is deranged."

Of the need for a restatement of the law, Judge Cardozo had this to say at a meeting of the American Law Institute: "The body that the common law was meant to shield has grown; and we have been brought up in the faith that the coat would grow, too. So, indeed, it seems to have done, for its stuff is as elastic as any that is made. Even now, with all the wear and tear, it is still a good coat, far too good to be thrown away, though the stretching and the shrinking have not been uniform throughout, so that the sleeves are perhaps a little too short, and the tails, which are useless and old-fashioned anyhow, a trifle too long. Let us make it over as reverently hands of his superiors, or even for removal.

Rights of Public Against Criminal.

BUT when the defendant raised the point that the evidence of criminality was procured by an act of trespass and hence incompetent, Judge Cardozo was forced to break with him. The statutes of New York put no restrictions whatever on evidence and the statutes of New York were his guide.

"The Legislature which created (this immunity)," wrote Judge Cardozo, "has acquiesced in the (previous) ruling of this Court that the prohibition of the search did not anathematize the evidence yielded through the search. If we misread the statute or misconstrued the public policy, a few words of amendment would have set us right. Process of amendment is prompt and simple. . . . In such circumstances silence itself is the declaration of policy."

Inasmuch as the United States Supreme Court, in the case of Weeks v. U. S. had held that articles illegally seized by agents of the Federal Government should be excluded as evidence, it would seem that Judge Cardozo was at variance with the highest court in the country. It needs to be remembered, however, that in the United States there are two spheres of government, State and Federal, each possessing ultimate power, according to circumstances.

Thus, the Federal rule, as enunciated in the Weeks case, applies to agents of the Federal Government and may be used by Federal authority to restrict their agents from acts which violate the Federal Constitution's guarantee against unreasonable search and seizure. Whether state governments prefer to place such restrictions upon their agents is another matter. The New York statute on evidence does not. Judge Cardozo's decision applied the New York statute to the case before him.

As to which view is generally accepted, it is interesting to know that only 14 states follow the Federal rule of the Weeks case and exclude evidence illegally obtained. Thirty-one states, including Massachusetts, California, Connecticut, Ohio, Iowa, Kansas and Virginia, have the New York rule. The weight of the majority is on the side of those who agree with Judge Cardozo that the criminal is not "to go free because the constable has blundered."

"The question is," wrote Judge Cardozo, "whether protection for the individual would not be gained at a disproportionate loss of protection for society. On the one side is the social need that crime shall be repressed. On the other, the social need that law shall not be flouted by the insolence of office. There are dangers in any choice.

"With authority thus divided it is only some overmastering consideration of principle or policy that should move us to a change. The balance is not swayed until something more persuasive than uncertainty is added to the scales. . . . We must hold (the New York view) to be the law until those organs of government by which a change of public policy is normally effected, shall give notice to the courts that the change has come to pass."

Relation of Courts and the Legislature.

IT is not to be taken from this that Judge Cardozo approves wholly the present relationship between the legislative and judicial branches of government. Indeed, he does not, as set forth in his lecture on "A Ministry for Justice."

"Today courts and Legislature work in separation and aloofness," he said. "The penalty is paid both in wasted effort of production and in the lowered quality of the product. On the one side, the Judges, left to fight against anachronism and injustice by the methods of Judge-made law, are distracted by the conflicting promptings of justice and logic, of consistency and mercy, and the output of their labors bears the tokens of the strain.

"On the other side, the Legislature, informed only casually and intermittently of the needs and problems of the courts, without expert or responsible or disinterested or systematic advice as to the workings of one rule or another, patches the fabric here and there, and mars often when it would mend. Legislature and courts move on in proud and silent isolation. Some agency must be found to mediate between them.

"This task of mediation is that of a ministry of justice. The duty must be cast on some man or group of men to watch the law in action, observe the manner of its functioning, and report the changes needed when function is deranged."

Of the need for a restatement of the law, Judge Cardozo had this to say at a meeting of the American Law Institute: "The body that the common law was meant to shield has grown; and we have been brought up in the faith that the coat would grow, too. So, indeed, it seems to have done, for its stuff is as elastic as any that is made. Even now, with all the wear and tear, it is still a good coat, far too good to be thrown away, though the stretching and the shrinking have not been uniform throughout, so that the sleeves are perhaps a little too short, and the tails, which are useless and old-fashioned anyhow, a trifle too long. Let us make it over as reverently as our fathers made it for us, and hand it down to our descendants."

Auto Case Decision "Landmark in the Law."

JUDGE CARDOZO had been a member of the New York Court of Appeals only a year when in a personal injury damage suit, he registered a decision which has been described as "a landmark in the law." An automobile driver had suffered injuries due to a defect in an automobile which he had purchased from a local dealer. He filed suit against the manufacturer, charging liability, even though his dealings were with the distributer and not with the manufacturer.

Theretofore the practice had been to limit liability in such cases. The common law rule was there could be no suit by the purchaser against the manufacturer, because of no privity, except in the case of an inherently dangerous article. When Judge Cardozo, joined by his court, declared the automobile manufacturer liable, he took a step which broke from practice and moved in the direction of a changing time.

In one of his lectures at Yale, later published in "The Growth of the Law," Judge Cardozo told of the perplexities which confront the Judge whose decision must cover a new and virgin field. The question in Hynes v. N. Y. Central R. R. Co. arose from the death of a boy who was bathing in a river. As he stood poised for diving on a springboard, projected from a bank, electric wires fell upon him to sweep him to his death below.

In the damage suit that followed the boy's administratrix held that he was a bather in navigable waters and that because his feet happened to be on the springboard his rights were not in anywise lessened. The opposing side likened the boy to a trespasser inasmuch as he was standing on a springboard one end of which was fixed on the defendant's property, and the damages therefore not justified. Judge Cardozo took the side of the claimants, and in doing so, as in the automobile case, willingly widened the field of plaintiffs, in order that what he considered injustice might not be done.

Injunction Denied Against Union Men.

IN the light of the Senate's refusal to confirm President Hoover's appointment of Federal Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina to the Supreme Court because of his views on the notorious "yellow dog" contract, and the opposition to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson and Kenneth Mackintosh for the Circuit Court of Appeals because of their use of the injunction, it is pertinent to know how Judge Cardozo has faced one of the chief problems that labor controversies give rise to.

His court was confronted with the issue when the Interborough Railway sought an injunction against a union which had attempted to enroll as members the employes of the railway company. The company's contention was that in employing its workers it had given them to understand that they were obligated not to become members of such an organization.

Judge Cardozo's court refused to grant the injunction. Its position was that there was nothing unlawful in the union's attempt to recruit membership.

While so powerful was the influence of Judge Cardozo on his court in the 18 years he sat in it that he commonly experienced the support of his fellow Judges and in turn was likely to be found concurring in their opinions, he did play the part of the dissenter at times. An instance was his refusal to side with the majority of his court when it held that an insurance company was not liable for a claim to cover injuries sustained by a policy holder who was a passenger in a motorcycle side car. Had the policy holder been seated on the motorcycle the liability would have existed, the court ruled, but not with the claimant in the side car because side cars were not mentioned in the policy. Judge Cardozo saw no reason to distinguish between the two.

His Written Views on Judge-Made Law.

NOW that he has joined what is often called the highest tribunal in the world he will leave off lecturing and writing, but he has already produced several small volumes to which the students of the law turn with pleasure and gratitude. That his name was known not only in New York but throughout the country was due in no small measure to his books, "The Nature of the Judicial Process," "The Growth of the Law," "The Paradoxes of Legal Science" and "Law and Literature."

Only those who have read Judge Cardozo can know the beauty and clarity of his expression. There is, for example, his description of how the nature of the judicial process makes it so easy for Judges to find themselves at an impasse.

"Some Judge, a century or more ago, struck out upon a path. The course seemed to be directed by logic and analogy. No milestone of public policy or justice gave warning at the moment that the course was wrong, or that danger lay ahead. Logic and analogy beckoned another Judge still farther. Even yet there was no hint of opposing or deflecting forces. Perhaps the forces were not in being. At all events, they were not felt. The path went deeper and deeper into the forest.

"Gradually there were rumblings and stirrings of hesitation and distrust, anxious glances were directed to the right and to the left, but the starting point was far behind, and there was no other path in sight. Thus, again and again, the processes of Judge-made law bring Judges to a stand that they would be glad to abandon if an outlet could be gained. . . . There is need of a fresh start; and nothing short of a statute, unless it be the erosive work of years, will supply the missing energy. But the evil of injustice and anachronism is not limited to cases where the judicial process, unaided, is incompetent to gain the mastery. Mastery, even when attained, is the outcome of a constant struggle in which logic and symmetry are sacrificed at times to equity and justice."

Or to choose a briefer passage, there is this one on the requirements of the law: "Existing rules and principles can give us our present location, our bearings, our latitude and longitude. The inn that shelters for the night is not the journey's end. The law, like the traveler, must be ready for the morrow. It must have a principle of growth."

An Avowed Disciple of Justice Holmes.

IT IS not accidental that the writings of Judge Cardozo remind the reader of the veteran whom he succeeded. Judge Cardozo would be the first to acknowledge his indebtedness to Oliver Wendell Holmes. In fact, in an essay on law and literature published several years ago in the Yale Review the younger man proudly declared his fealty to the older master.

Like Justice Holmes, he has the epigrammatic quality. Witness these thoughts:

"Hardly a rule of today but may be matched by its opposite of yesterday."

"Property, like every other social institution, has a social function to fulfill."

"We do not pick our rules of law full-blossomed from the trees."

"The use of fictions has declined; and the springs of action are disclosed where once they were concealed."

"A spirit of realism should bring about a harmony between present rules and present needs."

"Not logic alone, but logic supplemented by the social sciences, becomes the instrument of growth."

"Somewhere between worship of the past and exaltation of the present the path of safety will be found."

"Justice is not to be taken by storm. She is to be wooed by slow advances."

As for our outlook, Judge Cardozo has reminded us that we may try to see things as objectively as we please. "None the less, we can never see them with any eyes except our own To that test they are all brought—a form of pleading or an act of parliament, the wrongs of paupers or the rights of Princes, a village ordinance or a nation's charter."

Nor can Judges escape, he would have us know. "All their lives, forces which they do not recognize and cannot name have been tugging at them—inherited instincts, traditional beliefs, acquired convictions; and the resultant is an outlook on life, a conception of social needs, which, when reasons are nicely balanced, must determine where choice shall fall."

The connection between conduct and law is clear in his mind and which comes first presents no puzzle. "Life casts the molds of conduct, which will some day become fixed as law. Law preserves the molds, which have taken form and shape from life."

But these molds are constantly subject to change. "Few rules," he goes on to say, "are so well established that they may not be called upon any day to justify their existence as means adapted to an end. If they do not function, they are diseased. If they are diseased, they must not propagate their kind. Sometimes they are cut out and extirpated altogether. Sometimes they are left with the shadow of continued life, but sterilized, truncated, impotent for harm."

For Flexibility in Constitutions.

WHEN he thinks of a constitution, Judge Cardozo has in mind a code which must needs be set apart from statute law. It ought to state, he has said, "not rules for the passing hour, but principles for an expanding future. In so far as it deviates from that standard, and descends into details and particulars, it loses its flexibility, the scope of interpretation contracts, the meaning hardens."

As for the Judge's place in the world, he has urged his colleagues on the bench to adopt an attitude of humility. "The persuasion that one's own infallibility is a myth leads by easy stages and somewhat greater satisfaction to a refusal to ascribe infallibility to others."

Or again: "A brief experience on the bench was enough to reveal to me all sorts of cracks and crevices and loopholes in my own opinions when picked up a few months after delivery and read with due contrition." Or again: "The thing that counts is not what I believe to be right. It is what I may reasonably believe that some other man of normal intellect and conscience might reasonably look upon as right."

Such then is the man who has been elevated to the bench of Marshall and Story, of Taney and Harlan, of Brewer and White. His Jewish forebears, like those of Spinoza, fled from Portugal during the Inquisition. A great-uncle, who was a rabbi, took part in the inaugural ceremony of Washington as the first President. His mother died before he was 10 years old. His father, Albert Cardozo, was a New York Judge before him, during the days of Boss Tweed.

Long, Steady Climb to National Renown.

FOLLOWING graduation from Columbia University, he was admitted to the bar, to become in time almost exclusively an appeal attorney. In 1909 he published a treatise on "The Jurisdiction of the New York Court of Appeals," which attracted wide attention in New York legal circles. His judicial experience began in 1914, as a Democratic member of the New York Supreme Court, which corresponds to the Circuit Court in Missouri.

A month later the New York Court of Appeals, the highest State court in New York, asked for additional judicial help to bring its docket to date. Furthermore, it stipulated that Judge Cardozo be one of the appointees. This was despite the fact that Judge Cardozo was not only a beginner on the bench, but not assigned to the Appellate Division. Gov. Martin H. Glynn, a Democrat, had his doubts about the wisdom of the appointment, but consented when the Court of Appeals persisted in its request.

Three years later, a Republican Governor, Charles S. Whitman, appointed Judge Cardozo permanently to the court. Since then he has twice been the candidate of both parties for the court, the second time for the post of Chief Judge. He is a Democrat—very much like the kind of Republican that Justice Holmes is—or was. The respect which both men command knows no political lines.

Among the stories about him that came from Albany when he lived there were these: that he had breakfast at 7 o'clock and set out for his court chambers 15 minutes later; that his only exercise was his work; that philosophy and biography were his favorite fields of reading outside the law; that he did not like fiction or the movies and that he apologized to a friend whom he had taken to see George Arliss play in "The Green Goddess" on the ground that the performance was too melodramatic.

Old Principles Pass and New Are Born.

IT was not the purpose of this article to attempt to chart the future and it is with no intention of intimating its course that still another quotation is taken from the writings of Judge Cardozo. If it contains a note of prophecy, let us remember that to such a thinker as he the past and present and future merge in one continuous stream of time and that the lines of division, if indeed, they exist at all, are waving and blurred.

Here is the Cardozan philosophy in its expounder's own shining language:

"I was much troubled in spirit, in my first years upon the bench, to find how trackless was the ocean on which I had embarked. I sought for certainty. I was oppressed and disheartened when I found that the quest for it was futile. I was trying to reach land, the solid land of fixed and settled rules, the paradise of a justice that would declare itself by tokens plainer and more commanding than its pale and glimmering reflections in my own vacillating mind and conscience. I found 'with the voyagers in Browning's "Paracelsus" that the real heaven was always beyond.'

"As the years have gone by, and as I have reflected more and more upon the nature of the judicial process, I have become reconciled to the uncertainty, because I have grown to see it was inevitable. I have grown to see that the process in its highest reaches is not discovery, but creation; and that the doubts and misgivings, the hopes and fears, are part of the travail of mind, the pangs of death and the pangs of birth, in which principles that have served their day expire, and new principles are born."

GUILD'S PRIZE EXHIBIT FOR ST. LOUIS ARTISTS

Open to Public April 24—Sculptures and Paintings From This District.

The nineteenth annual exhibition of oil paintings and sculpture sponsored by Artists' Guild, will be opened to the public April 24 at the Guild Hall, Union boulevard and Enright avenue.

The exhibition is open to all artists within 50 miles of St. Louis, who may submit work not previously shown in any public exhibition. Twelve prizes, totaling more than $1500, are offered.

There will be a reception and pre-view of the exhibition for members of the Guild the night before it is opened to the public.

Members of the jury which will award prizes are Takuma Kajiwara, Frederick G. Carpenter, Scott Mac Nutt, Oscar E. Thalinger, Frank B. Nuderscher, Martin Kaiser, Helen Beccard, Sheila Burlingame, Dorothy Jennings and Adele Schulenberg.

The prizes offered include the Artists' Guild award of $300 for the best work of art; the Chamber of Commerce award for the best painting of an industrial scene in St. Louis; the Halsey C. Ives and F. M. Crunden awards for landscapes; the Jessie L. Ray and George Warren Brown prizes for figure painting; the Parker prize for merit; the L. W. Baldwin award for portraits; the Otto L. Spaeth prize for modern painting and the award for decorative paintings. Sculpture awards are the Artists' Guild's and the Sylvester sculpture prize.

NO TRACE OF LARGE ESTATE, OBJECT OF NUMEROUS QUERIES

Probate Court Clerk Finds No Record of Property Said to Be Worth Billion.

In answer to numerous inquiries received during the last year about an estate here supposed to have been left by one Henry Garner, Fred H. Haid, chief clerk of Probate Court, has written that a search of court records since 1810 discloses no such estate.

Persons inquiring were apparently desirous of establishing themselves as heirs. The story they have related is that Garner leased 40 acres of land, now in the business district, for 99 years in 1814, and that the time had arrived to distribute the estate. One writer expressed belief that the estate was worth $1,000,000,000, which is nearly the assessed valuation for the whole city. The latest letter came from A. F. Murphy of Lexington, N. C., who said his wife's sister was an heir and that a man had been collecting money to organize the "1000 or more" heirs as claimants.

LOUIS D. REICHERT DIES

Former President-Treasurer of Lumber Company.

Louis D. Reichert, former president-treasurer of the Reichert-Bright Lumber Co., died suddenly of heart disease at his home, 3861 De Tonty street, early yesterday.

Reichert appeared in good health on retiring Friday night, his wife, Grace, reported. Since the failure of the Reichert-Bright Lumber Co., in 1927, Reichert has been distributer for a St. Joseph (Mo.) insulating concern.

City Tackles Last Phase Of Transportation Problem

obtainable under the city charter;" the second for a terminable permit dependent upon enactment of State legislation to confer "home rule" upon the city, and the third for a contract for purchase of the transit system by the city, to be paid for out of earnings, and to be privately operated.

A majority of the commission recommended the first plan, but President Neun and Alderman Edward L. Kuhs, both members, denounced both the first and second plans as franchise schemes.

The report of the Survey Commission is the particular matter before the present Transportation Committee. When the report came to the board, Neun declared he wanted something done about it; he was tired of transportation reports made at great cost being filed and forgotten, as at least two earlier ones had been. He introduced the resolution for creation of the special committee which is a consolidation of the board's standing committees on public utilities and legislation.

Chairman Wiehe has stated it is the committee's purpose to place a concrete proposal for solution of the transit problem before the board before adjournment of the present session in April.

The Transportation Committee voted against consideration of a franchise on the grounds that it offered no hope of satisfactory solution of the problem.

The city may ask whether certain street car lines could be used advantageously for the period of their remaining useful life, during which they could be paid for from earnings, if not over-priced. Even if it found an all-bus system was desirable, it might find it expedient to acquire and operate certain railway lines during the transition period. Some lines are known to be operated at a loss.

Comparing Two Systems.

The chief argument for street car service is economy from use of electric power. Where service is to be continued by an existing company there is the argument that it is wise economy to use existing facilities as long as they are suitable, rather than to scrap serviceable equipment and buy new throughout. This does not apply in equal force to a municipality just entering the transportation business with a free choice as to equipment. In the latter case the city may inquire if it would not be better to start fresh with complete new and popular facilities upon which the operating and maintenance charges would be lower, and to consider purchase of old facilities only when the use to be had from them would justify the price.

Objections to street cars, on the other hand, are noise, danger in boarding and leaving in the center of the street, unsightliness of overhead wires, necessity of running on fixed rails over routes laid out years ago and resulting in tying up a whole line when one car is in an accident, and comparatively slow service.

Some of the advantages claimed for the new type busses already have been mentioned, such as comfort, speed and safety. The flexibility of busses should be noted. If one breaks down others may go around it. In case of a street blockade the bus may detour. Express busses may operate on the same street with local busses with no interference. Routes may be changed without expense as the character of territory served changes.

There is this additional distinction between a bus and a street railway system. In the latter, investment in tracks, roadway and overhead trolley system exceeds that in vehicles. Replacement or relocation of tracks and wires is highly expensive, as the Public Service Co. has found in the cases in which it has substituted bus service rather than incur such expense. With a bus system the investment in vehicles is the large item, and the huge cost of tracks, wires and poles is saved. It would seem, therefore, that a bus system could renew its equipment more often and keep more up-to-date than can a street railway system.

Riding in one of the new busses used on Gravois avenue, as the writer has done and as thousands of St. Louisans do every day, is enlightening. The bus is the street car type, that is, in general appearance it is similar to street cars seen in St. Louis, but smaller and lower. The operator sits at the front as does the motorman of a street car. The bus draws up at the curb. Loading is at the front door, pay as you enter. A tall man may stand upright in the aisle. Seats, for 40 persons, are upholstered in leather and deeply cushioned. Windows are large, with small steel sash, giving abundance of light for reading. Pneumatic tires make comfortable riding.

From Ninth and Chestnut to Gravois and Grand is a 15-minute run. The bus accelerates quickly and stops quickly. It cruises along at speed comparable to that of a private automobile. Its steel body of latest design minimizes noise. Interior fittings are attractive. Heating is supplied from the engines, at no extra cost.

Even the fast Olive street cars make no better time for comparable distance than do these busses. Timing a ride on the Olive line starting at Ninth street, the writer found that in 15 minutes he had reached Vandeventer avenue, not so far from the starting point as is Gravois at Grand. Going on to Newstead for a comparable distance took three minutes longer. The Olive line from Twelfth to near Grand has the benefit of skip-stops.

Several busses of the street car type have been installed by the People's Motor Bus Co. on the run between downtown and Hi-Pointe, at the southwest corner of Forest Park. These busses are much like those on Gravois avenue, except that they have wide center exit doors instead of a smaller exit door at the rear.

An Actual Test.

A test ride on one of these busses from Sixth and Washington to Hi-Pointe took 32 minutes. From Hi-Pointe to Sixth and Market on the Market car took 35 minutes, the car running over a private right of way from the western side of Forest Park to the eastern boundary at Kingshighway. At points where the tracks were not in best condition the jarring and jolting of the street car was decidedly annoying.

Going into the street to board a street car has become a hazard, due to heavy automobile traffic. This is particularly noticeable on Olive street, where motor vehicles maintain high speeds. Safety zones offer some protection at the boarding points, but none between there and the curb. To construct adequate safety zones throughout the whole street railway system would require a huge expenditure on the part of either the city or the company.

Calls Japanese Invasion Affront To League of Nations

of the world crisis has forced its way into Geneva, too, and has taken its place at the conference tables. It has at last been possible to bring about a decision on the long-due European initiative concerning the reparations question and its hinging problems.

The participant Powers have agreed to decide upon a final, permanent solution of the reparations question at Lausanne in June and to tackle the solution of the remaining economic and financial problems brought up by the Basel special committee.

The German thesis regarding a final solution is already sufficiently known. It is unchanged and cannot be changed. It is to be welcomed that despite their knowledge of this situation, the Powers nevertheless have resolved to seek a final solution after the elections in France have taken place. Let us hope that every participant fully realizes the responsibility resting upon its shoulders, not only with regard to this question, but with regard to the decision, inasmuch as we will tackle with our united forces the entire economic and financial crisis.

Reconstruction in U. S.

While Europe is still negotiating or has decided to negotiate how to solve the crisis, the United States has acted. I consider the reconstruction banking bills to be two mighty projects, two gigantic exertions of force. Together they represent a deed embodying the possibility of exerting upon further developments the strongest possible influence.

"I know that the public of the United States is just as skeptical towards whatever emanates from the Government as is the German public. There comes a time when only centralized force that is applied to developments in a country, according to a fixed plan, can save it from destruction.

In economic crises such as the present one, the uncontrolled forces of individual organizations, each of them split up, are helpless. They must be held in check by a single, firm hand. Today we know that inflation and deflation both harbor within them a tendency to develop to their utmost extremes.

Only after the whole German nation was determined—in the same way as Baron Munchausen—to pull itself out of the swamp by its own bootstraps, did Germany master inflation. The Government pulled itself together, abruptly stopped the money presses, and the new medium of exchange issue was carried by the confidence of the nation in the Government.

An Example to Europe.

Similarly, deflation is only overcome by the intervention of a superior Power, but never by itself—that is, never by waiting placidly until better times return. It is high time for action here as elsewhere. The process of economic shrinkage has reached such an alarming degree and has been of such duration that the danger exists of no longer being able to revive business.

The narcotic of inaction is more to be feared than any of the evils of inflation. Besides, inflation would be only a counteracting of the poison which is producing the most devastating effects upon the economic body.

Every country must mobilize its reserves. They have been accumulated and saved for such a time as the present. They must be used now. With these reserves, the numb and paralyzed organism of credit must be revived. This must happen wherever reserves exist. Those forces which the United States are exerting today will be of great significance for the economics of Europe as an example and a definite cause.

Above all, they will be able to create a favorable atmosphere for the solution of the economic and financial questions with which the European Powers will be confronted when they meet beside Lake Geneva in June.

GASOLINE TAX SUIT UNDER ADVISEMENT

People's Motorbus Co. Seeks to Enjoin Collection of City Fee on Stored Fuel.

Suit of the People's Motorbus Co. of St. Louis to enjoin the city from enforcing a recently enacted ordinance providing for payment of a license fee of one-half cent a gallon for gasoline or other motor fuel in excess of 10 gallons which has been stored, was taken under advisement yesterday by Circuit Judge Nortoni.

Former Circuit Judge William T. Jones, representing the company, argued that the ordinance was void as being discriminatory against certain firms and corporations. He further contended it was an illegal and unjust tax in view of other taxes imposed for the use of motor vehicles.

A temporary restraining order issued at the time the suit was filed was also made effective in favor of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., which intervened as co-plaintiff. The order continues pending termination of the suit.

It was brought out that the bus company before the enactment of the ordinance in controversy had been paying three different motor vehicle taxes to the city, the payments last year totaling $64,000. These are the regular motor vehicle license tax, a tax of $25 a year for each bus and 3 per cent of the company's gross receipts. The new tax would cost the company about $8000 a year on the basis of an average yearly storage of 1,600,000 gallons, it was stated.

Arthur C. Meyers, auditor in the City Comptroller's office, was called to the stand by the city in defense of the ordinance. He explained the tax was necessary to help the city in its cost of street maintenance for the benefit of motor vehicles. With all expenses considered, he declared that the cost for maintenance of street facilities for automobile owners is approximately $700,000 a year greater than the taxes for this purpose, to which deficiency the general property owners are asked to contribute.

Oliver J. Senti, Associate City Counselor, argued that the ordinance was valid. He asked the Court to dissolve the restraining order and dismiss the suit. He said the new tax ought to increase the city's revenue at least $200,000 a year, as it affects many concerns. James M. Douglas, attorney for Anheuser-Busch, estimated the increase to his company would be about $700 a year.

PIANIST HOLDS CHILD AUDIENCE IN ENTHUSIASTIC INTEREST

Guy Maier, Celebrated American Player, Tells Fanciful Stories With Music.

The Piano Teachers Round Table of St. Louis presented Guy Maier, the celebrated American pianist, to an audience consisting largely of children yesterday afternoon at the Sheldon Memorial. A printed slip which was handed out at the door gave the numbers which Mr. Maier proposed to play, but, as he explained himself, this was unnecessary since every number was caught up in one long and fanciful narrative, which he told as he went along.

This story which concerned a trip through the North woods and which involved dreams and subsidiary tales as well as real adventures, took up the whole first half of the program, and when it was through the children and the adults who came with them had heard numbers by Bach, Mozart, Gossec, Ibert, Stevens, Grieg and J. P. Scott. The second half of the program was given over to "Krazy Kat," the pantomime ballet by John Alden Carpenter, with Mr. Maier not only playing the music but describing the action as he went along.

The success of the concert was assured from the first number. Mr. Maier held his young audience in the hollow of his hand. They not only listened with every evidence of interest, but when he asked them to help out by singing a short melodic fragment or by making insect noises with their hands they did so with the utmost enthusiasm.

The technique which Mr. Maier employed with such ease and with such happy results is one that the sponsors of the Children's Symphony concerts might ponder with a great deal of profit.

Mr. Maier's appearance yesterday was his first in St. Louis since the dissolution of the Maier-Patterson two-piano team. One hopes that his concerts for young people will be an annual event in St. Louis.

JURIES CONVICT IN TWO OF 3 CASES IN WEEK

Murder Charge Results in Five-Year Term—Criminal Court Record.

Two of three cases tried before juries last week in the criminal divisions of Circuit Court resulted in convictions. The third case, that of Paul A. Richards, attorney charged with kidnaping for ransom in the case of Alexander Berg, resulted in a mistrial.

Those convicted by juries were George Curtin, charged with murder in the first degree for the killing of Glenn Nagel, and Mrs. Evelyn Mayhew, 3874A Utah place, charged with felonious wounding for maiming Miss Gloria Sties, 16, 3930 Lafayette avenue, with her automobile. Curtin received a five-year penitentiary sentence and Mrs. Mayhew was fined $200 and costs.

Seven persons charged with robbery pleaded guilty and were sentenced to imprisonment. Among these were Frank Lampke and Harry Wolf, who received five years in the penitentiary for holding up the office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. at 4362A Warne avenue on Sept. 15, taking $4579. Everett R. Williams, a Negro, received a five-year penitentiary sentence for an attempt to rob William Batavia, politician and bondsman, whom he summoned to the vicinity of Vandeventer avenue and Washington boulevard on a pretense of supplying a client for bond.

Sentences of 10 years in the Boonville Reformatory were imposed on Peter Raster, a clerk; Arthur Shackelford, a waiter, and Carl Bryan, a painter. They robbed several small merchants last July. Alonzo Pierce, Negro, was sentenced to five years in Boonville for holding up and robbing Arthur Spelbrink of $140.

Others who entered pleas of guilty and their punishment were: Claude Hester, burglary, two years; Charles M. Wade, burglary, three years; Tyrus R. Cobb, carrying a concealed weapon, 50 days; Ben Johnson and Robert Loffell, larceny of motor vehicle, 90 days and six months, respectively; William Mosby, malicious destruction of property, 90 days; Bernard Ellis, permitting gambling device on premises, $250 and costs; Malcolm Morgan, tampering with automobile, six months and paroled for one year; William Rose, malicious trespass, six months; Arie Casey, malicious trespass, six months; Pete Harris, Thomas Parrish and James Saunders, petit larceny, six months; John Brummel and Melvin Forgher, petit larceny, three months; John Garey, petit larceny, year; Clyde Rossman and Alvin G. Smith, petit larceny, three months, and Robert Falls, petit larceny, four months.

OWES $53,578; HAS ASSETS OF $110, ALL IN FURNITURE

Israel L. Carp, Former Merchant, Files Voluntary Petition in Bankruptcy.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court yesterday by Israel L. Carp, residing on Vassar avenue, University City, who listed liabilities of $53,578, principally in personal notes, and $110 in assets, consisting wholly of household furniture.

Carp, who gave his occupation in the petition as clerk, stated the notes, amounting to $35,578, were signed in connection with the conduct of Carp & Co., Mount Vernon, Ill., a firm which went bankrupt last year and sold 11 general merchandise stores operated in Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas. Other liabilities listed by Carp are secured debts of $12,000 protected by real estate mortgages and $5843 additional in unsecured debts.

Sister Who Reared McNarys Dies.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 27.—Miss Nina McNary, 74, sister of Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon and of Federal Judge John H. McNary, died here today. Charles and John were small boys when their parents died and Nina McNary took over the task of rearing the children. The family was in straitened circumstances, but Miss McNary saw to it that the boys were educated, and she lived to see each gain distinction in legal and political fields.

FRIENDLY SUIT TO TEST POLICE PENSION LAW

Court Takes Under Advisement Question of Whether It Is Retroactive.

A test suit to determine whether the law authorizing pensions for retired members of the police force and their dependents is retroactive was taken under advisement by Circuit Judge Hall yesterday.

The suit was filed in the name of John Hunt, a city employe, who sued as a taxpayer. He seeks to enjoin the Board of Trustees of the police retirement system from continuing to pay a monthly pension of $108.33 to Mrs. Rose T. Rice, widow of Edward C. Rice, a detective Sergeant, who died June 18, 1930.

The pension was granted last July, the board deciding that Rices' death was caused by a gunshot wound inflicted in 1903 by a Negro whom he was attempting to arrest. It is pointed out in the petition that the pension law became effective Nov. 1, 1929, and that Rice's injury occurred years before that time, he apparently having recovered and being able to resume his duties as a policeman. The law contains no provision authorizing a payment in a case of this kind, it is contended.

Members of the Board of Trustees, including Henry W. Kiel, Louis Nolte, John B. Edwards, Chief of Police Gerk, E. H. Bartelsmeyer, Frank J. Steffen and Charles Gerlach, with City Treasurer William G. Buechner, are named as defendants. Through City Couselor Muench they filed a demurrer alleging that the suit fails to state a cause of action. The hearing before Judge Hall was on the demurrer, which was submitted on briefs. Charles J. Dolan, representing plaintiff, said the suit was a friendly action which it was decided to file after doubt had been raised by the actuary, who devised the pension system as to legality of the board's award in the Rice claim.

SOUTHWESTERN CARLOADINGS DROP LESS THAN OTHER AREAS

Chamber of Commerce Survey Shows Maintenance of Level Since December.

Although railroad carloadings in the Southwestern district, St. Louis' major trade area, have declined as compared to last year, the decrease in this district has not been as severe as in the rest of the country, according to a study of carloadings since the first of the year, made by the Chamber of Commerce Research Bureau.

A comparative table of percentage decreases, both in the United States as a whole and the Southwest for each week of this year, as compared to the same week in 1931, follows:

Week Ending.	Pct. of Decrease in the Southwest.	Pct of Decrease for Entire Country.
Jan. 2	4.3	18.1
Jan. 9	15.6	19.7
Jan. 16	10.3	21.
Jan. 23	15.6	21.3
Jan. 30	16.9	22.
Feb. 6	17.1	20.1

From November until the end of December, the Southwestern carloadings showed a steady decrease. However, since then there has been some increase and up until Feb. 13, when the latest figures were made available, the carloadings have remained at about the same level.

CLEANUP CAMPAIGN PLANNED

Mass Meeting to Launch Effort April 18 to 30.

Plans are being completed for a mass meeting of citizens to launch a campaign for cleaning, repairing and painting throughout the city April 18 to 30, under the direction of the Civic Development Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. The campaign is being sponsored by the General Council on Civic Needs, the Associated Retailers, Real Estate Exchange, St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade and several other groups in an effort to remedy the physical appearance of the city and to provide odd jobs for unemployed persons.

P. C. Frayser is general chairman of the campaign committee. Efforts are being made to have R. A. Plumb, Detroit, Mich., chairman of a national Clean-up, Paint-up Committee, attend the mass meeting here.

HOW this play came to be written and produced is interesting. It all started by Rollin Kirby's reading of Roark Bradford's book, "Ol' Man Adam An' His Chillun"—Mr. Kirby, it may be recalled, was the chief cartoonist for the New York World. Marc Connelly, who had terminated his collaborations with George Kaufman, was casting about for play material and Kirby mentioned the Bradford tales to him. After reading the book and scenting its possibilities, Connelly got in touch with Bradford, received his blessing and commenced his labors.

Late in the summer of 1929 the play was finished and hardly before the ink was dry it was in the hands of Jed Harris, the producer of "Broadway" and many other successes. Mr. Harris was favorably inclined towards immediate production of the Connelly offering, but the author did not feel disposed to entrust its direction and casting to another, and thereby the negotiations between the two were abandoned.

The Theater Guild was about to produce Shaw's "Apple Cart" at the moment. Accepting "The Green Pastures" involved a journey over uncharted waters, and being dubious of the reaction of their subscribers, the Guild concluded it best not to undergo the perils of the passage.

Crosby Gaige, next favored with a reading, declared that he enjoyed the proceedings immensely. It was a meritorious work of art, and he trusted it would receive early production—in the hands of some other producer. He believed it would be a financial failure.

AND so "The Green Pastures" in manuscript form went begging until it was brought to the attention of one who dabbles in the theater primarily for the joy of doing something creative.

The man is so remote from the commerical theater that his name does not appear in connection with the production. A great lover of the stage arts, and more particularly music, Rowland Stebbins, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, saw in Marc Connelly's play something that the commercial dictators of the theater entirely overlooked.

He had previously made two productions with indifferent commercial success, shrinking from the public gaze under the trade name, "Laurence Rivers, Inc." There is no Laurence Rivers, and probably never was. But the name, appearing in a novel along metaphysical lines which he had enjoyed a quarter of a century ago—Lucas Malet's "The Gateless Barrier"—impressed Mr. Stebbins so forcibly as implying beauty that he chose it as the sponsorship for his artistic efforts.

THE firm has made two productions since. But in each instance has overestimated the cultural progress of the theater-going public and met with loss. All its losses in experimentation have been absorbed by the tremendous receipts from "The Green Pastures"

The central figure of the drama, "the Lawd," is played by a Negro who stepped from the lecture at a Chatauqua platform to the stage at the age of 66 to make his theatrical debut in that role. Although more than 800 consecutive performances have been given, no other man ever has played the role, for its creator, Richard B. Harrison, never has missed a performance. And his characterization of Deity, as conceived by the more humble members of his race, has lifted him to a pinnacle where he is hailed as one of the really great actors of the English-speaking stage.

"Green Pastures" Arrives

The Deep-in-the-South Negroes' Idea of Heaven, as Told in Marc Connelly's Unusual Drama, Comes to The American Theater for a Stay of Two Weeks With "Grand Hotel" Set for the Shubert, March 14.

THAT remarkable drama of a Negro idea of Heaven, "The Green Pastures," which won the Pulitzer Prize for 1930, comes to the American Theater tomorrow night for a two weeks' visit which promises to be most successful. It will have the local stage entirely to itself for the Shubert will remain dark until March 14 when another New York hit of great proportions, "Grand Hotel," arrives at the Grand avenue playhouse.

"The Green Pastures" was produced at the Mansfield Theater, New York City, Feb. 26, 1930, and immediately attracted nation-wide attention because it was probably the first time that the character of God was presented upon the stage in New York.

The drama consists of the playwright, Marc Connelly's retelling of Roark Bradford's Bible stories as seen through the eyes of Negro children of the deep South, found in Bradford's book, "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun." The fifty Biblical characters speaking in Negro dialect proved a novelty that made sophisticated Manhattan sit up and take notice.

Such high points as the Heavenly fish fry, the launching of the Ark, the death of Moses, and the thrilling advance of the Children of Israel on the desert, and other episodes disclosed in 18 scenes, contributed to the sensation, which was repeated in Chicago. These are the only two cities where the play has been presented as yet.

A treadmill sunk into the stage is employed in several episodes, imparting to the spectacle a resemblance to the older stage classic "Ben Hur," "The Lawd," Cain, Noah, Moses, and other characters walk the treadmill at various times during the play. Because of this, the stage of the American Theater has been rebuilt for the engagement.

THE WEEK'S NEW FILMS - - - By Nie

PERHAPS to those who did not see the fine drama, "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," when it was presented at the American Theater early this season—and few enough saw it then—the film version at the Ambassador this week may prove absorbing. It is not exactly a story to appeal to the common or garden variety of movie fan, however, and the picturizing of incidents which were only talked about in the original play have added nothing to the value of the offering. Then, too, the picture is somewhat cluttered up by the acting of Ruth Chatterton, who has come to believe that an actress should act, always. As a result there are few times when Miss Chatterton appears natural, so that the customer cares very little whether her hopes, in the story, come out or not. You see, Ruth is a dreamy sort of person in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," who wants to have a son—and has him through a slightly irregular combination of circumstances. Later she wants to run away from home with the boy's real father, but when she finds out how much her husband loves the youngster, she decides to settle down and mope around the house for, the rest of her life. Ruth is one of the best mopers we have on the screen today, and if you are interested in seeing perfection in that line, you will find it in "Tomorrow and Tomorrow." Cliff Edwards, the Ukulele Ike of the movies, is appearing in person on the Ambassador's stage and is a valuable addition to the program.

Gold Diggers Again.

PEOPLE who wonder how Will Hays, czar of the cinemas, earns the impressive salary paid him by the movie magnates, need wonder no longer. Mr. Hays devotes his time to supervising the moral standards of the films, and as a result of his labors the title of Zoe Akins' stage comedy, "The Greeks Had a Word for It," has been changed, for screen purposes, to "The Greeks Had a Word for Them." "It," we are told, was considered too suggestive by Mr. Hays, even for the few movie customers who didn't possess a Greek dictionary. And then right here in St. Louis any one might have asked Spyros Skouras what it was the Greeks had a word for, and just what that word was. All in all, the possibilities were overwhelming and so Mr. Hays, after some months of study, we presume, saved the morals of the picture fans. The "Them" in the present title refers to gold diggers, a perfectly respectable expression today no matter what the Greeks called 'em. And gold digging is the subject of the screen comedy at Loew's this week with Ina Claire, Joan Blondell and Madge Evans, finding New York millionaires pretty soft picking and wisecracking their way into ermine coats and pearl necklaces in a most enjoyable manner. Perhaps the moral tone of the affair is not so very high, but Mr. Hays made everything O. K. by working over the title.

Brotherly Love.

WE don't know just where the scenarist got his idea for "Strangers in Love," at the Missouri Theater, but it seems to be a sort of combination of Bert Lytell's stage play, "Brothers," and Guy Bates Post's "The Masquerader." This time twin brothers who hate each other, look so much alike that when one of 'em dies suddenly the other is able to step right into his place and fool the wide wide world, which includes the dead man's sweetheart, and takes in a number of his girl friends. Frederic March plays both boys in the film and a lot of trick photography makes the doubling very effective. The Missouri's other picture is one of those murder mystery things with dead men scattered all over the scenery and everybody baffled until reel eight.

Down by the Rio Grande.

"THE GAY CABALLERO," at the Fox, is one of those rootin', tootin', shootin' mellers of the wide open spaces with George O'Brien and Victor McLaglen whipping most of the hard-boiled Mexicans who live along the border. You know, just an old fashioned, hard riding Western with cowboys and guns and soldiers and everything. Charlie Chase, movie comedian of the one reelers, is appearing in person on the stage at the Fox this week, but he is snowed under by Eddie Peabody and his banjo.

Appendicitis Drama.

IF there is anything you want to know about how surgeons take out an appendix just drop in at the St. Louis this week and see "Impatient Maiden." The title hasn't got anything to do with the appendicitis operation however. The maiden, Mae Clark, was impatient about a love affair but anyway, the operation is the big spot in the film for every one who enjoys scenes in hospitals. Otherwise the picture is just so so. Helen Kane heads the RKO vaudeville on the St. Louis stage.

Introducing the Scandinavians.

In arrestive contrast to his pictured description of Switzerland, given last week, Burton Holmes, when he returns to the Odeon Theater tomorrow night, is to offer a new story of wayfaring through the capitals and countries of Northern Europe. Beginning his phantom journey in Berlin as it appeared to him last summer, the tour is continued to Sweden, Denmark and Norway, with an excursion to Iceland.

German Play Tonight.

"Doktor Klaus," a play by Adolph L'Arronge, will be given tonight by the German Theater Stock Co. under the auspices of the German House Ladies' Society in the German House Auditorium, 2345 Lafayette avenue.

Yehudi Menuhin, Boy Violinist, At the Odeon Wednesday Night

NEXT Wednesday evening, St. Louis will have its first opportunity to hear the youthful American violinist, Yehudi Menuhin, who will appear in a recital at the Odeon, for the benefit of the League of Women Voters of this city.

Yehudi is now 15 years old, and world-famous. He has played in every large city in the United States from New York to California, and in Europe, where there is an unwritten law against the appearance of children with orchestras, Yehudi has been invited to play with every great orchestra on the Continent and in England.

When Menuhin was invited to give a concert in the Dresden Opera House, it was the first time in the history of this famous music center that opera was suspended to give place to a virtuoso. The public, irritated that such an unprecedented honor should be bestowed on an American, was very cold to Yehudi when he appeared on the stage. When he paused after the first movement the audience and the orchestra players were on their feet, applauding thunderously.

The program in which he will be heard on Wednesday evening follows:

Sonata in G Minor	Tartini
Sonata for Violin, Unaccompanied, in A Minor	Bach
Concerto in G Minor, Opus. 26	Bruch
Guitarre	Moszkowski-Sarasate
La Ronde des Lutins	Bazzini
Tambourin Chinois	Kreisler
Serenade	Tschaikowsky
Caprice XXIV	Paganini

He will be accompanied at the piano by Arthur Balsam.

Little Theater's "Berkeley Square" Open for Public

SIX performances of "Berkeley Square," John L. Balderston's delightful play dealing with eighteenth century London, will be open to the public beginning tomorrow evening at the Artists' Guild Building, Union boulevard and Enright avenue.

Presented as the sixth production of the season by the Little Theater of St. Louis, "Berkeley Square" concerns an American of the present day who is rather unceremoniously thrust into the life of the eighteenth century in England. His ancestors, with whom he meets and talks, have actually been dead 100 years before his birth.

Neal Caldwell, associate director of the Little Theater, is seen in the leading role of the play, which opened last Thursday evening to special subscription audiences.

Spanish Play Thursday By Dramatic League

The Dramatic League of St. Louis will present the first of a series of Theater of Nations play, next Thursday night at the Soldan High School auditorium, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

The Mexican, Cuban and Colombian groups will give the initial productions that will be held this season. The German, Russian, Italian, Scotch, British and Irish, Hungarian, Grecian and others will stage their plays at a later date.

The play that will be given Thursday night is "Malditas Sean Las Mujeres," written by Luis G. Iza and members of the cast will give the play in their native tongue.

Mu Phi Epsilon in A Benefit Concert

The St. Louis Alumnae Club of Mu Phi Epsilon is planning a concert to be given for the benefit of the Nursery of the Good Will Industries, a non-sectarian charitable organization located at Thirteenth and Tyler streets. It has been in existence 10 years and takes care of young children of working mothers.

Mu Phi Epsilon is an honorary musical sorority national in scope. It was founded in 1903 and now has over 50 chapters located in colleges, universities and conservatories throughout the country with approximately as many alumnae clubs. It numbers among its personnel most of the prominent women musicians of the day.

GARRICK—Burlesque.

W. U. Players to Do "Uncle Tom's Cabin"

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be presented by Thyrsus-Little Theater, the dramatic organization of Washington University, next Thursday. Friday and Saturday nights, in the January Court Room on the campus.

All the traditional scenes and tableaux are to be presented seriously, including such memorable spectacles as Eliza's crossing of the ice, little Eva's rise to heaven, the beating of Uncle Tom by Simon Legree, and the death of the villain Legree.

Three Thumb-Box Plays by Art League

The Art League will put on the second evening of Thumb-box Plays at the old Courthouse on Saturday, March 5, at 9:45, when three prize plays from the University of Missouri will be presented. These are "Judas Iscariot," by J. Scott Robertson; "A Half Hour Reformation," by Richard Fowler, and "Women in the House," by Aletrice Rutherford.

The casts have been selected from the various dramatic groups of Columbia. The plays will be followed by a supper and cabaret performance.

When Talkies First Talked

How Phillips Smalley Made Them Audible With an Old Style Phonograph Some Twenty Years Ago—The Names of Maurice Costello and Norma Talmadge Appear Again After a Lapse of Many Moons—The Ambassador to Play the Musical Comedy "Girl Crazy."

HOW old are talking pictures? Four years at the outside, perhaps. But Phillips Smalley, the old-time movie idol who makes a come-back to the screen in "The Greeks Had a Word for Them," which is at Loew's Theater this week, can tell you that talking pictures are really a good twenty years old—and that he, in his early days, had a major hand in producing them.

There was no hundred million dollar investment in sound reproducing equipment then; in fact, Mr. Smalley remembers getting only between $15 and $25 for each talking picture he turned out. They were crude and never made much noise in the world; but they were talking pictures all the same.

The system was one he used for the old Gaumont Company, long before there were any de luxe theaters or huge salaries. He would get off some monologue sketches or songs into one of those old-time phonographs with a megaphone on it, and make a record of his voice. Then he would play the record and go through the appropriate motions in front of a motion picture camera, experimenting until motions and voice were timed properly. In the theater where the picture would be exhibited, the phonograph was started at the same time as the film and there you were—that is, if nothing went wrong.

A good many things could go wrong, of course. The phonograph might not get started on time, or it might be necessary to cut some bits out of the film and then the phonograph with its unalterable record was just out of luck. It was the same sort of difficulty that presented itself in the first modern sound picture equipment, which was an elaboration of the same idea. Nowadays, with a sound track, of course, the sound is cut along with the film and all is well.

Phillips Smalley has been in retirement for many years, having made a considerable competence out of his early pictures. But now he has returned to the screen at the request of Lowell Sherman, director of "The Greeks Had a Word for Them," who wanted him to play the roles of its elderly millionaire.

Ina Claire, Joan Blondell and Madge Evans play the three chorus girls on the loose to whom elderly millionaires are the answer to a maiden's player.

THE complete musical comedy, "Girl Crazy," by Guy Bolton and George Gershwin, which had a long run in New York last season, has been booked into the Ambassador Theater here for a week starting March 11. It will be played as a stage show in connection with the regular picture offering.

"Girl Crazy," after completing a run at a legitimate theater in Chicago moved over to the Oriental, a picture house, and, in somewhat condensed version enjoyed another success there. It has since been seen in picture theaters in Buffalo and Detroit at regular cinema prices such as will prevail here at the Ambassador.

In its present form "Girl Crazy" runs about an hour and a half. It is the first successful musical comedy to take to the movie theaters.

THE names of Norma Talmadge and Maurice Costello appeared in the newspapers on the same day recently.

Miss Talmadge said she was getting ready to divorce Joseph Schenck.

The coincidence is interesting, in view of this flashback:

In 1911, Costello, dean and veteran of the now almost forgotten Vitagraph company, saw young Norma, who had played an insignificant role in a one-reel film. He thought she had unusual talent, but the officials of Vitagraph had already decided Norma would never become an actress.

Perhaps to humor "Cos," or mayhap because he felt the force of his argument, so goes the story, the director of the star's current film, "The First Violin," cast Norma as leading lady.

THAT two-reeler was followed by another, equally as ambitious, called "Tale of Two Cities," with Costello and Miss Talmadge made again the stars. It was highly successful, Costello therefore was vindicated and Norma became an actress.

Costello was independent in the old days as well as years later, when he became the screen's biggest star.

When the motion picture was in its beginning, it was the accepted practice to use actors as carpenters, scene painters or property men.

"I am an actor and I will act," Maurice declared with great dignity, "but I will not build sets or paint scenery."

Although she has been cinematically inactive for nearly three years, Miss Talmadge's retirement is not due to any idea that she is getting old.

On the contrary, she appears now almost as youthful as ever.

She is not under contract to United Artists, but Schenck, president of that organization, says his soon-to-be ex-wife will star again in United Artists pictures.

Her last film was "Madame Du Barry."

New German Film.

"Eine Freundin so goldig wie du" (A Friend as lovely as you) is the title of the musical comedy picture which will be shown, beginning today, in the German Film Theater, 2345 Lafayette avenue.

Vladimir Horowitz, Russian Pianist, as Symphony's Soloist

VLADIMIR HOROWITZ is to be soloist at the Odeon next Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra's concerts and under the baton of Vladimir Golschmann will play Rachmaninoff's D major concerto—the work with which he made his debut in St. Louis four years ago. It is the feature of a program which offers also Deems Taylor's "Through the Looking Glass" and Arthur Honneger's "Pacific 231," together with Berlioz's "Carneval Romain."

Still under 30, Horowitz grew up in the very heart of the Russian revolution, making his escape from that country in 1924. He had toured Russia, accepting anything that was edible for concert tickets, during the days of the utmost revolution confusion. Germany was first to acclaim his international position in the pianistic world. European successes followed, and then his debut tour of America in the course of which he first visited St. Louis. This is his fourth engagement with the orchestra here.

Honneger's "231" is a celebration in music of the power, the movement, the speed, of an American locomotive. Its composer was first introduced to the symphonic concert world by Vladimir Golschmann in the Concerts Golschmann, Paris, in 1919. Deems Taylor, former music critic of the New York World, composed his "Through the Looking Glass" under the inspiration of Lewis Carroll's classic companion to the adventures of "Alice in Wonderland."

Jewish Drama Tonight.

Max Gabel and his New York company will appear at the Shubert Theater tonight only in a drama written by him called "The Great Love." As in most Jewish dramas, this one also will be performed with incidental music.

Negro Poet in Recital Tuesday.

Langston Hughes, a well-known Negro poet, lecturer and novelist, is scheduled to appear at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the Berea Presbyterian Church at 3027 Pine street. His appearance here is sponsored by the Berea Presbyterian Brotherhood.

Pinchot's Travel Picture.

The all-talking film "South Seas" made by Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania will be shown at the Film Guild of the Y. M. H. A. tonight at 8:30. Pinchot, prominent Republican official, planned this expedition for 40 years before he made it.

Helen Kane in person on the stage at the St. Louis Theater.

Four New Nash Eights and a Six Shown in St. Louis

Worm Drive in Three Models—All Have Aerodynamic Body Designs.

Five new Nash lines—four eights and a large six—are being displayed in the St. Louis area by the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., distributer, and its associate dealers. There are 27 models in the five lines.

Leading the presentation is the Ambassador Twin-Ignition Eight series with 125 horsepower and a wheelbase of 142 inches. The Advanced Twin-Ignition Eight series, with 133-inch wheelbase, develops 125 horsepower; the Special Twin-Ignition Eight, with 128-inch wheelbase, 100 horsepower; the Standard Straight-Eight, with 121-inch wheelbase, 85 horsepower, and the Bix Six, on an extra long 116-inch wheelbase, 70 horsepower.

Silent, underslung worm-drive axles—a major engineering advance on the Ambassador 8, Advanced 8 and Special 8 series—are among the most important of the new Nash comfort, economy and performance achievements.

Some of the Features.

Other features of the entire five new lines include new "x-dual," twist-proof frames, with a massive "x-dual" member extending practically the entire length of the chassis to virtually supply two frames in one and afford battleship strength; new dash-regulated, full-range shock absorber control; new Centrifuse, cast iron lined brake drums on all eights; aluminum alloy connecting rods, drilled for oil—an exceptionally costly engineering practice in all of the motors—and aluminum alloy pistons; silent, synchro-shift transmission and synchro-shift free wheeling; new improved carburetion with air-cooled gasoline lines; complete and unparalleled sound-proofing of all bodies and chassis; new silent dual mufflers; larger tires on smaller, sturdier wheels, and scores of intriguing and valuable body and chassis refinements.

The new Nash "slip-stream" body designs tend to minimize air resistance, making it possible for the cars to slip through the air with less effort, less fuel consumption and at higher speeds. They also permit better utilization of space for the comfort and pleasure of driver and passengers.

"Beavertail" Rear Ends.

The attractive V-shaped fronts of all the cars serve to split the wind at high speeds. Slanting windshields slip the air stream upward instead of offering a flat surface to air pressure, and the curve of the handsome new fenders merging into the new steel-and-rubber running boards also reduces the elemental pressure. The sweping curve of the roof line continues the slipping action. New Nash bodies are widest at their center, narrowing down toward the rear. This also tends to slip the air away at both sides.

The curving or "beavertail" back design, which is a distinctive feature of the new Nash, reduces the "pull" set up by swirling air which ordinarily whirls behind a swiftly moving car and creates a vacuum behind the body, thus holding the car back.

The Worm Drive.

The new, underslung worm drive, which is designed to improve with use and is said to be one of the longest-lived, most silent and trouble-free units known to motor car engineering, permits two essential improvements. It reduces the overall height of the cars without decreasing headroom, thus increasing driving safety and roadability; and makes it possible to cradle the rear seat in a position ahead of the rear axle, instead of directly over it as in conventional bodies. With both front and rear seats located between the axles and consequently away from direct axle contact, road jars and vibration, a new "cradled" riding action is produced. Each inch that the new Nash cars have been lowered eliminates 40 square inches of air pressure against the car at high speeds.

Design features include new color combinations, pronounced V-type fronts, new headlight brackets and tie-bar, two horns mounted on lamp brackets, single-bar bumpers front and rear, exceptionally long, graceful hoods with door-type ventilators and concealed hood fasteners, slanting, non-glare windshields, slip-stream fenders merging into massive steel-and-rubber running boards, refined fender and tail lights with two rear fender tail and stop lights on the Ambassador 8, Advanced 8 and Special 8 models; smaller, sturdier demountable wood and wire wheels with larger tires, three-spoke, pressed, hard rubber covered steel steering wheels and tilted tire carriers.

Bodies Soundproofed.

Bodies are unusually long and wide for comfort and riding pleasure. They are completely soundproofed and insulated against heat and cold. Chassis points are silenced by insulation best suited to the purpose. Wider front and rear doors and wider seats with high, restful backs and wide arm rests add to luxury. New, roller-type adjustment of the front seat is operated by "finger-tip" control instantly and easily to suit the driver.

All new Nash doors lock from the inside as a protection for driver and passengers against intrusion.

Upholstery is in mohair, broadcloth, Bedford cord or leather.

Dan Hyland Guest Of Service Managers At Bureau Meeting

Alemite Co. Speaker Says Less Than 15 Per Cent of Cars Are Properly Lubricated.

Dan F. Hyland of the Stewart-Warner Corporation and the Alemite Co. was a special guest at a meeting of the Service Managers' Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at the Gatesworth Hotel Thursday night. Hyland was introduced by Robert E. Lee as the man who made the first address to the bureau when it was organized six years ago.

E. E. Jensen, special representative of the Alemite Co., talked at length on "What Is a Lubricant—What Is a Grease?" He said that less than 15 per cent of all the cars on the streets were being properly lubricated. In detail, he told of the different kinds of greases manufactured and why one kind of grease would suit certain gears or parts of a car while others would not.

Lubrication manufacturers, he said, were devoting much engineering and chemical skill to the scientific combination of mineral, vegetable and animal fats in making lubricants to fit specific bearings or gears. A lubricant with a lead base is required for heavy bearings while for water pumps an acidless tallow is necessary. For front wheel bearings still another grease is required. Free wheeling devices brought need for still another kind of lubricant, one that would be adhesive but not cohesive. In this grease a chemically compounded sulphur ingredient is necessary.

A. A. Kiekhofer of the Packard Electric Co. talked about special wiring to prevent the leakage of electric current from spark plugs to the frame of a car. This, he said, causes much of the slowing up, laziness and missing in motors. He showed a talking moving picture entitled "Live Wires," which illustrated the manufacture of automobile wiring of various kinds and their application and sale by dealers.

Dolph Moore of the Tigges Motor Co., chairman of the bureau, told of the success of the post graduate course in service management which is being conducted at the Hadley Vocational School. This class is under Kenneth J. Weber and is fostered by the Board of Education of St. Louis. Forty-one service managers connected with St. Louis automobile dealers are taking the course.

Cars in Chicago Pay High Tax.

The automobile is the most heavily taxed property in the State of Illinois today. In Chicago, the car owner pays an average of $44.03 in taxes annually. The value of the average car in the city is estimated at $205.88. Consequently, the city owner pays a yearly tax of 21.4 per cent on his car, as contrasted with a tax of about 3 per cent on urban real estate.

Lucas Stresses Need Of Getting Hoarded Dollars Circulating

Advertising Manager of Studebaker Addresses Ad. Club in St. Louis.

"If we can get the 1,500,000,000 hoarded dollars back into circulation, we will have gone a long way towards business recovery in America," Ottis Lucas, advertising manager of Studebaker, said in an address before the St. Louis Advertising Club on Tuesday.

"Conservative estimates fix the total of hidden dollars—money kept in safe deposit boxes, cached in homes, etc.—at $1,500,000,000," he continued. "Bankers tell us that if this money were spent in ordinary business enterprises, it would release $10 in credit for each $1 spent. In other words, if we can allay the fear of John Public; if we can restore his confidence in America and American institutions, we will provide the equivalent of $15,000,000,000 for constructive business achievement.

"What do we propose to do about it? I can tell you what the automobile industry plans to do. In the words of Paul Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Sales Corporation, in his much quoted address before the National Automobile Dealers' Association recently, 'We must wage a creative rather than a competitive sales battle. We must get people into the market; we must make prospects out of suspects.'

"To do this it means increased sales activity and a different type of selling—the 1932 type—aggressive rather than passive. It means increasing the productivity of each individual salesman. It means greater effort on the part of everyone associated with the industry. But the result is clear. If each of the 100,000 automobile salesmen in the United States sells only five more cars than we plan, it will represent an increase of 500,000 cars or 25 per cent over the 2,000,000 set by our most pessimistic forecasters.

"Now 500,000 more cars mean 400,000 more tons of steel, 57,000 more tons of malleable iron, 18,000 more tons of rubber, 11,000,000 more square feet of plate glass, 2,000,000 more square feet of upholstered leather, 114,000,000 more board feet of hardwood lumber, 15,000 more tons of copper, 3000 more tons of aluminum, 1600 more tons of tin, 10,000 more tons of lead, 2500 more tons of zinc, 1,600,000 more pounds of nickel, 27,000 more bales of cotton, 5,000,000 more yards of upholstery, 2,000,000 more yards of side curtain and top material, 1,750,000 gallons of paint and, most important of all, the employment of 80,000 more men.

"Fortunately, there are movements under way which will make our task less difficult. The utter foolishness of a nation with an over-abundance of products becoming panicstricken is becoming more and more apparent. The new $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation under Gen. Dawes, as well as the Glass-Steagall bill which is about to become effective, are bound to be most helpful. But in spite of all these assisting measures, the individual business man cannot escape the responsibility of bringing back prosperity through his own efforts of creative selling. It is a task which rests squarely on his shoulders; it is a battle as important as any army was ever called upon to wage."

Importance of Industry.

"Price will be an important consideration in the minds of the public in buying automobiles in 1932. Studebaker now completely covers the price field in all classes," Lucas said.

"Our yardstick in advertising in 1932 is, 'Will our advertising sell automobiles at retail?' Consequently, our first step is to localize our markets, thereby making our newspaper campaign as simplified and effective as possible."

In stressing the importance of the automobile industry, Lucas said that since 1923 the automobile industry had been the largest advertised in the United States, and that one out of every 10 workers in the United States was directly or indirectly connected with the automobile industry.

"To my mind," he declared, "the automobile industry is in the best condition ever, with no unwieldly new car stocks and with used car stocks exceptionally low. Automobile factories and dealers have learned what the word 'budget' means and the salesmanagers have learned better to analyze their problems."

Lucas concluded his talk with an exhibition of Studebaker sales helps for dealers and distributers.

Safety Measure Planned.

A measure is before the State Legislature of New York providing for regular inspection of motor vehicles. Inspection of the motor equipment is to be made at official stations designed by the commissioner of motor vehicles, the fee to be not more than 50 cents. The law makes it compulsory for the car owner to remedy defects within a specifiied period, and all cars will be required to display a certificate of inspection.

Registration of Cars In All of 1931 Put Chevrolet in Lead

Complete registration figures for 1931, recently announced, reveal that for the first time a six-cylinder car led the industry.

During the year Chevrolet titled 583,387 six-cylinder cars, compared with 528,539 titled by the runner-up. Of the total of 1,908,016 passenger cars registered in the domestic market, Chevrolet obtained more than 30 per cent, the largest proportion of available business ever obtained by this largest producing division of General Motors.

Complete returns reveal that in 1931 Chevrolet obtained within 5 per cent of the same volume of business as in 1930, while the industry as a whole slumped 27 per cent from the preceding year.

During 1927 Chevrolet also led the industry in total volume of sales, although in that year a lull existed in the low-priced car market. But in 1931, in the highly competitive conditions existing throughout the industry, the company forged ahead early in the year and maintained its leadership by a margin which widened month by month.

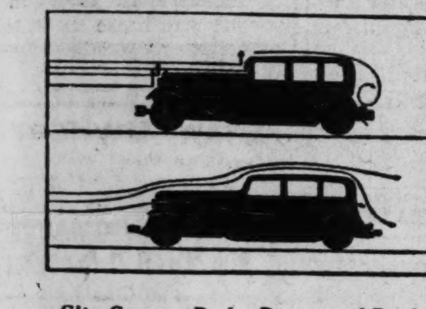
NASH

STEPS OUT AHEAD

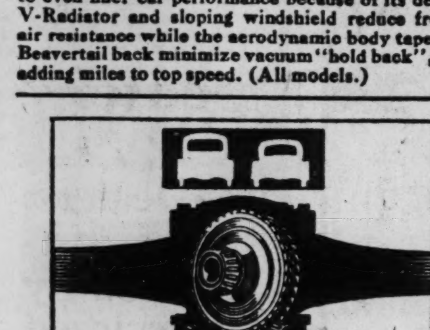
5 New Series

In the new Nash exhibited for the first time throughout America today, motor car progress achieves its greatest advance for 1932. ℂNew in conception—new in construction . . . entirely, delightfully new and different in riding ease and driving thrill . . . the new Nash steps out far ahead of anything heretofore offered to the motoring public. They are larger, longer, lower, more powerful cars—and their prices establish each series as a new value in its field. ℂYour first glance at this Slip-Streamed car with Slip-Stream fenders, V-radiator and Beavertail back will tell you the story of its beauty—but you must study its body and chassis design and its long list of features to appreciate the new character of this car in engineering. ℂAnd you must drive it to realize how remarkably different it really is in performance. ℂThese 27 new models are the fulfillment of the most unusual program of achievement ever undertaken in the Nash field. ℂEveryone who anticipates purchasing a new car should surely see and drive the new Nash.



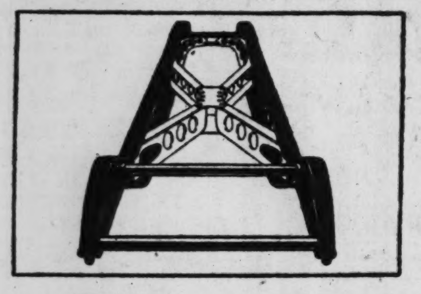
Slip-Stream Body, Beavertail Back

A new body style of unusual beauty that contributes to even finer car performance because of its design. V-Radiator and sloping windshield reduce frontal air resistance while the aerodynamic body taper and Beavertail back minimize vacuum "hold back", thus adding miles to top speed. (All models.)



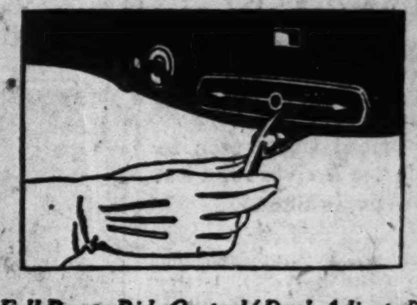
Silent Underslung Worm Drive Rear Axle

It permits lowering center of gravity 3 inches without decreasing head room or road clearance. It is one of the longest-lived and most trouble-free units known to motor car engineering. Records of 500,000 mileages for a worm axle are common. (Ambassador, Advanced, and Special Eights.)



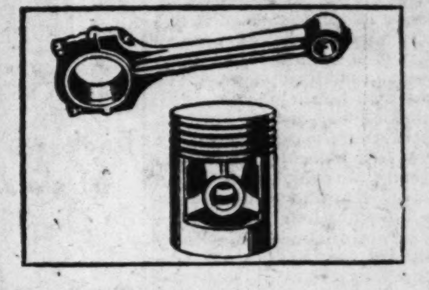
X-Dual Frame, Super-rigid

Strongest, most rigid type of frame. Extends practically entire length of Nash chassis, giving car, virtually, a double frame as positive resistance against weave or distortion. The massive inside girders extend clear from the front crossmembers to the rear kick-up. (All models.)



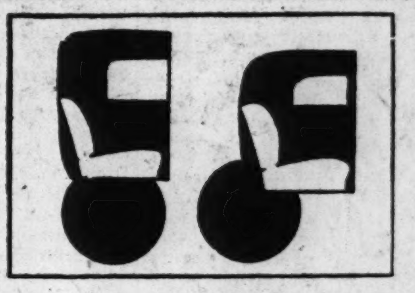
Full Range Ride Control (Dash Adjusted)

A lever conveniently located on the new Nash instrument panel enables you instantly to regulate your travel-comfort, regardless of road, or load, speed, or temperature. "Full Range" means you can regulate any degree desired. You are not confined to any limited number of adjustments. (All models.)



Aluminum Alloy Pistons, Connecting Rods

All models have Aluminum Alloy Pistons and Connecting Rods (Bohnalite). Their extreme lightness substantially reduces centrifugal load, resulting in greater power, and in faster acceleration. Pistons have Invar struts. Connecting Rods are drilled full-length for pressure lubrication.



Relocation of Rear Seat

New body design enables Nash to locate rear seat ahead of rear axle (with no decrease in leg room) instead of directly over it, as is conventional practice. In all new Nash models now both seats are away from any possible contact with axle mechanism, giving you "cradled" riding comfort.

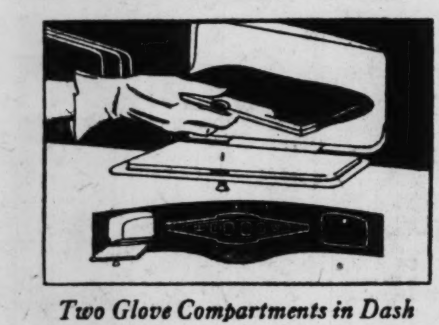
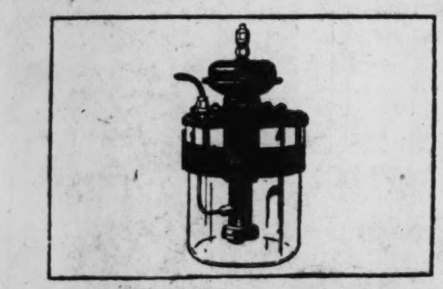
"Centrifuse" Brake Drums

A foundation of steel supports cast iron drums of special formula in all Eights. Assures you long and trouble-free service and softer and more positive brake action under all conditions. Swift dissipation of heat eliminates possibility of scoring. Brake lining wears five times longer.



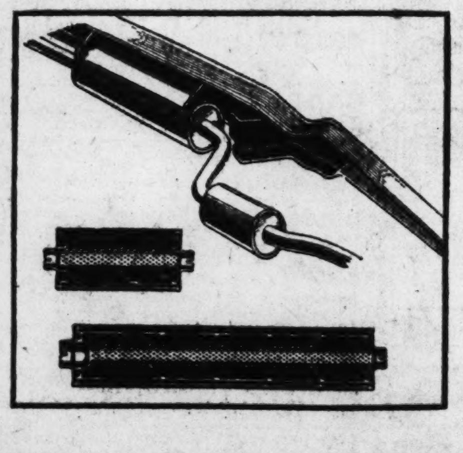
Two Glove Compartments in Dash

A feature of new instrument panel on all models, is the conveniently located glove and parcel compartments on both sides of panel. Other interior attractions include Inside Sun Visors; Inside Door Locks; Rubber Pedal Pads; and Roof Radio Aerials for all models except Convertibles.



Automatic Centralized Chassis Lubrication

This system positively insures properly metered charges of oil under pressure to all chassis points where needed. Saves owner time and expense. Lengthens bearing life and makes performance smoother. Needs no attention except at intervals to refill oil tank. (Ambassador, Advanced and Special Eights.)

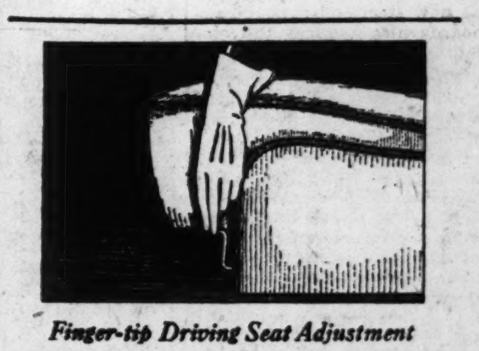


New Dual Exhaust Silencers

The new dual muffler has a resonator-type exhaust silencer which represents the latest advancement in silence engineering. The exhaust travels in a straight line instead of through conventional baffle plate muffler. All motor noise and back pressure is virtually banished. (All models.)

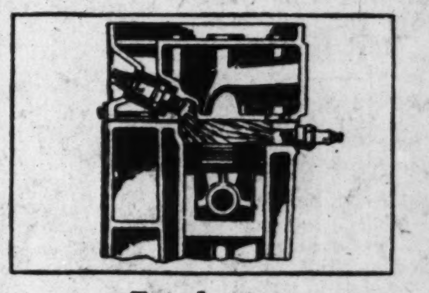
Sound-Proofed Body and Chassis

The new Nash is the most completely and scientifically sound-proofed car built. Its quietness is delightfully restful. At every point where noise ordinarily is present there is insulation to secure silence. The original quietness of operation lasts for years. (All models.)



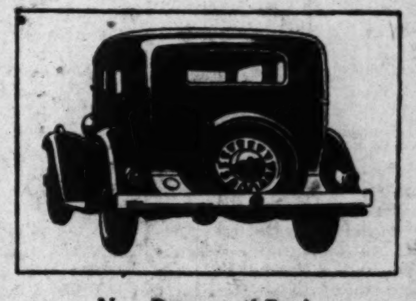
Finger-tip Driving Seat Adjustment

All Coupes and regular Sedans have new roller, sliding type front seat adjustment. It is extremely easy to operate. Provides positive control. Requires no effort to move forward or backward to meet exact requirements of the individual. Seats are wider. All seat backs are high with deep, comfortable cushions.



Twin-Ignition

Superiority of Twin-Ignition is that it provides two spark plugs for each cylinder. These two plugs, firing simultaneously, ignite gas quicker and more efficiently, increase power 22%, add 5 miles to top speed, and save gas. All Ambassador, Advanced, and Special Eights have Twin-Ignition motors.



New Beavertail Back

This unusually beautiful new Beavertail back created by Nash not only gives pleasing distinction to the rear end but is aero-dynamically designed to free the car from the "hold-back" caused by rear-end vacuum and thereby to save power-waste at high speed. (All models).

Rockne Six '65' Models Here for Display Today

Lower-Priced Companion for Rockne '75' Arrives for First St. Louis Showing.

The Rockne 6 "65," companion car to the Rockne 6 "75," arrived in St. Louis yesterday and will be featured in an informal auto show today in the Rockne display rooms of Arthur R. Lindburg, Inc., at 2309-11 Locust street.

The Rockne 6 "65" is in the lowest price field, with six models ranging from $585 to $695 at factory. It is mounted on a 110-inch wheelbase with a 66 horsepower, six-cylinder motor cushioned in live rubber at all four points of suspension. This engine is designed for smooth, sustained speed of 65 to 70 miles an hour.

All Rockne "65" models—in fact, all cars in the Rockne line—have improved free wheeling in all forward speeds, plus full synchronized shifting, quiet in all speeds and especially advantageous when the braking power of the engine is preferred to the economy of free wheeling.

Switch-key starting, standard equipment on all Rockne cars, simultaneously turns on the ignition of the "65" and starts the engine. If the driver accidentally stalls his engine, switch-key starting automatically and immediately starts it again.

Artistically streamlined bodies, developed by a famous designer to reduce wind resistance and give the style of custom design, give the "65" a distinct personality. Interiors have been made roomy and comfortable, even for the tallest motorists.

The "65" Rockne line includes a five-passenger, four-door sedan; a five-passenger, two-door coach; a five-passenger, two-door convertible sedan; a convertible roadster with rumble seat; a two-passenger coupe with roomy storage compartment in the rear deck, and a four-passenger coupe with rumble seat.

All regular models have five wire wheels with large chromium hubcaps. De luxe models carry six wire wheels, two extra wheels being mounted in fender wells on either side of the hood.

Each Rockne "65" all-steel body is scientifically designed from one-piece steel front fenders to tail light to reduce wind resistance and increase speed. The "header" panel"—where the sloping windshield meets the top—is visorless, a design that adds three miles to the top speed of the car. Sloping radiators and windshields, streamlined tops and air-foil aprons at the rear, which conceal gasoline tanks and subdue the rear end wind turbulence, are other features of design that add to speed and style.

Color combinations have been chosen to harmonize with the hues that fashion dictates for spring. Wide chromium-faced bumpers are found on all models.

The sloping radiator is of distinctive design. Hood louvres slope at the same angle as the radiator and add to the sweep of the aerodynamic design. Headlamps are mounted on fender brackets and "tied" to radiator shells for additional strength.

Statement by Cord On Century Air Lines Pilot Controversy

President of Company Says Pilots Are Not Underpaid and Are Not Incompetent.

He said: "We have no wage dispute with our pilots, who are daily operating our tri-motored planes to all of our terminal cities. They are of the highest type of flying personnel, and we feel that we have an obligation to them as their employers to correct malicious propaganda.

"An attempt has been made to show that Century Air Lines is trying to employ only cheap, inferior and incompetent pilots.

"Century pilots are not underpaid and they are not incompetent. Century Air Lines were started in March, 1931, despite the depression. We felt then, and do now, that what America needs is capital put to work in business, and not donations to the unemployment fund. By starting Century, jobs were created not only for pilots, but for many more ground employes; for men in motor factories; for workers in airplane factories, and for multitudinous other workers in various lines of business that supply the materials necessary for the building of motors and planes and the maintenance of an airline.

"Economic conditions must of necessity largely govern what an airline can do, the same as what any line of business can do. All business has found it necessary to make readjustments and to cut costs, in order to meet present conditions. We have found this policy necessary in the conduct of Century Air Lines, if aviation is to be built on a sound business basis.

"The truth is that when we started Century Air Lines, pilots were paid $350 per month straight salary, whether they worked or not. When we started Century Pacific Lines about five months later, general business conditions were worse, and according pilots pay was $300 per month, which is the present rate.

"The impression has been given out that the readjustment in pilots compensation on the middle western lines reduces them to only $150 per month. This is not the truth, and the people who made these statements knew that they were not the truth. The facts are that the $150 per month is a minimum guarantee each pilot receives, even though through no fault of his own, he does no flying during the month. The new wage basis enables the pilot to make money when he works, on a basis of $3 an hour for daylight flying and $5 an hour for night flying.

"The year round average of all of our flying has been 70 per cent by day and 30 per cent by night. Weather premitting operations of schedules of up to 105 hours per month, pilots will have the opportunity to make $378 per month on this basis in the good weather months, and an average of $300 per month or better the year round, based on the amount of flying he does.

"As to Century pilots being incompetent, the truth is that the United States Department of Commerce has the entire responsibility for determining the competency of transport pilots working for any and all air lines. This department issues the licenses and personally inspects every pilot as to his qualifications as to be a transport airline pilot, to fly a definite route and to handle the equipment used by the air line. Century pilots have an average of over 3200 flying hours, or more than 16 times the flying experience required by the United States Government."

The tires come fitted to wheels which can be slipped on the axles of 15 makes of cars.

Packard Light Eight Models Included in Display This Week

A Packard "National Spring Showing Week" begins tomorrow. Special displays of the new cars will be made by all Packard distributers and dealers.

The Berry Motor Car Co. has received, and will be able to show, a virtually complete color assortment available for the new light eight. Throughout the week, it will also specialize on demonstrations of the new light eight. A number of these cars have been placed in demonstrating service.

These demonstration rides are not restricted to buyers. Any motorist may experience the performance of this new car and use the finger control free wheeling and note the performance of the new quiet-in-all-speeds syncro-mesh transmission.

A feature of this special display will be a comparison of parts used in the light eight and in the highest priced Packarw de luxe eight.

The Berry Motor Car Co. sales rooms will be open evenings throughout this special spring showing week.

The Packard Motor Car Co. is in full production of its new Light Eight. The Packard factories in Detroit are working on a full schedule of eight hours a day the usual five days a week. Some departments are operating 18 and 24 hours. Between 8600 and 8700 persons are at work on full time.

Shipment of cars from the Packard plant has increased heavily and daily shipments are now being made of the Light Eight as well as the Standard and De Luxe Eights. Production of the Twin Six will soon be under way.

First Pontiac Auto Still Runs 100 Miles Daily on Rural Roads

Pontiac No. 1, which was built early in 1926, has just returned to Pontiac, Mich., after starting its seventh year of service with a 1200-mile trip into the South.

The first Pontiac is owned by W. E. Rohrer of Pontiac, who bought it a year ago from a used car dealer. Rohrer, a salesman for an Eastern plant nursery company, uses the car to call on farmers in Southern Michigan. He averages 100 miles per day, much of it on back country roads. Although the car has been driven more than 125,000 miles, Rohrer says fuel and oil consumption are exceptionally low. He has spent nothing for upkeep.

The increase in car values during recent years is illustrated by the following comparison between Rohrer's 1926 coupe and the same body model for 1932:

	1926 Pontiac Six.	1932 Pontiac Six.
Displacement	186	200
Horsepower	36	65
Wheelbase, inches	110	114
Tires	4.75	5.25
List price	$825	$685

In addition, the buyer of the 1932 Pontiac Six obtains many other motoring advantages such as syncromesh transmission with quiet second gear and free wheeling, ride control, a stronger chassis cushioned with rubber at 47 points, big Bendix four-wheel brakes and smart Fisher bodies in which every provision is made for comfort and convenience.

Goodyear Airwheel Tire Demonstrations In St Louis This Week

Demonstrations of the new Goodyear airwheel tires—the big, pillow-like balloons which make automobiles look and feel as if they were riding on comfortable rubber doughnuts, will be given this week by Goodyear Service, Inc., it is announced by George H. Kemmerer, manager. A service truck will exhibit these new type tires and demonstrate their advantages on neighboring streets and at the main store, 2843 Washington avenue.

"Fifteen of the popular makes of cars can now be fitted with the new Goodyear airwheel tire," Kemmerer said, explaining that the new type tire is made at present in four sizes; 6.50-16, 7.50-15, 8.25-15 and 9.00-13. The first three sizes are available with the silent all-weather tread design which eliminates hum or rumble.

"Air pressure in the new tires varies with the weight of the car and the size of tire. On the 6.50-16 which is the suggested tire for Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth cars, the pressure is 12 to 15 pounds of air. In the 9.00-13 the pressure ranges from eight to 12 pounds.

"Made up in complete units of airwheel tire, tube and discs, the new equipment is ready to slip on the axles of 15 makes of cars."

Cars with airwheel tires are easy to steer, park or turn, and the car is low-swung and close to the road because the rolling radius is practically identical with the present size of balloon tires.

Buicks Reports Sales Indicate Industrial, Commercial Gains

A trend toward more prosperous conditions among the commercial and industrial enterprises of the country is reflected in the purchases of Buick automobiles, the Buick Motor Co. reports. This trend is revealed in a study of the company's current sales to vocational groups in various parts of the country as compared with similar records compiled last year.

The greatest improvement shown by the Buick survey is in the group composed of manufacturing and mechanical industries. Included in this group are manufacturers and contractors and their workers, according to the classification set up by the U. S. Department of Commerce. The total gain in this group is 5.7 per cent, 16.1 in the current survey as against 10.4 last year.

In the trade group, which includes merchants, salesmen, bankers, brokers and dealers, the gain is 2.4 per cent, increasing from 25.9 in 1931 to 28.3 for the current period. In this group the increased purchases of Buicks by salesmen in various lines is significant of greater business activity, rising from 10.0 to 12.3.

Among the professional occupations, including doctors, lawyers, teachers and others, sales increased from 10.7 to 13.2 per cent. Housewives also increased their purchases, increasing from 4.6 to 6.3 per cent. Sales to persons in the public service rose from 2.3 to 4.9.

The most activity is shown in the Eastern states, with the Middle West and the Coast following in close competition. The third group includes the Northwest and the Southwest.

Length of Auburn Springs Based Upon Fatigue-o-Meter Tests

The Society of Automotive Engineers, at its annual meetings in January, was informed of progress in study of the amount of fatigue suffered by the average rider in an automobile.

A new device, called the "fatigueometer," which registers the jolts and jars to the human system during five, ten or twenty-mile ride in city or country, was presented to the meeting, with the results of its use in many different makes of cars.

It was found that the automobiles that had the greatest spring length, other factors being equal, registered the least on the "fatigue-o-meter." It was in line with this knowledge that the Auburn 12-160 was constructed with 70.5 per cent of its wheelbase as spring length, according to E. J. Johnson, Inc., the St. Louis distributer.

The wheelbase of the Auburn 12-cylinder car is 133 inches. Front springs are 37 inches long and rear springs are 56¾ inches long. To make the riding qualities of the new 12-cylinder cars even better, the Auburn engineers substituted rubber bushings for the conventional bronze type.

Both the front and rear springs were made two inches wide and they are of slico-manganese steel, one of the more expensive alloys.

Sweden Doubles Auto Tariff.

Import duties on foreign automobiles and parts have been doubled in Sweden. The increase is 15 to 30 per cent and comes under the head of luxury taxes.

Upton Close To Lecture at Junior League

Will Speak Tomorrow on India—Dr. Richard von Kuhlmann to Address St. Louis Woman's Club March 8.

TWO lectures, one before the Junior League and the second for the St. Louis Woman's Club, occupy important places on the Lenten calendar of the next 10 days.

Upton Close, interpreter of Asia, will speak to the Junior League at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the clubrooms, 4914 Maryland avenue, on "India, the Climax of the Revolt of Asia."

Mr. Close, whose real name is Josef Washington Hall, was born among the Indians and lumberjacks of the Columbia River, of a Yankee father who was a miner and a French mother who was educated at the court of Sweden. After graduating from school in Washington he went to China to do newspaper work, and during the war was called on to aid the American Government in secret investigations. The name Upton Close was evolved from Up Close, the name he signed to a telegram to signify his nearness to the front.

He became a member of the Explorers Club of New York as a result of his findings concerning the famine of 1920, during which he worked far into the interior of China. He has founded courses in Pacific Asian Life, Literature and Politics in the University of Washington and is the author of several books including "In the Land of the Laughing Buddha," and "The Revolt of China."

Miss Helen Heissler will introduce the speaker.

The Junior League lecture committee also announces that Howard Y. Williams, executive secretary of the League for Independent Political Action, will give a special address to subscribers and their friends at 10 o'clock tomorrow, preceding the Upton Close address. Mr. Williams represents a group of men including John Dewey, Oswald Garrison Villard, John Haynes Holmes and others who are planning a new independent and progressive political party. Mr. Williams' talk tomorrow will be "Prospects and Issues for a New Political Party 1932.'

The Lenten program at the St. Louis Woman's Club includes the appearance of Dr. Richard von Kuhlmann, Tuesday, March 8. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock and the lecture will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. Kuhlmann, former Ambassador and Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs of the German Empire, will speak on "Germany's International Position." In addition to being a diplomat, Dr. Kuhlmann is an art connoisseur, author and sportsman. He was born in Constantinople and educated in Germany, where he took the degree of doctor of law at Heidelberg University. As the result of his interest in politics he entered the diplomatic service and, following an appointment to the Foreign Office in Berlin, was sent to St. Petersburg, Persia, London, Morocco, Stockholm, Washington and The Hague.

The Woman's Club Lenten speaker for Thursday morning will be the Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block of the Church of St. Michael and St. George, whose subject will be "The Dignity of Personality."

Additional Lenten events at the same club include a discussion and review by Thomas Wood Stevens, director of the Little Theater, of Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra," March 10. Miss Bertha Doane will give the last two of a series of book reviews March 17 and March 24. On Thursday, March 31, there will be an exhibit and talk on rare old Oriental rugs by Mrs. David B. White, formerly Miss Nellie Ballard. The rugs were part of the collection of her father, the late James F. Ballard.

The regular card day falls on March 10. Luncheon will precede the card game. Miss Nellie Robnett is directing the senior bridge tournament which continues Tuesday afternoons, March 1, 8 and 15.

The World Bridge Olympic tournament will be held at this club Friday evening, April 1. This has been arranged through Mrs. Felix Anderson, chairman of the Card Committee.

The Junior Committee, of which Mrs. M. E. Holderness is chairman, announces an Easter dinner dance for Friday, April 8, at 8 p. m. One-half of the receipts from this dinner will be donated to the Citizens' Relief Fund.

Party for Judge and Mrs. Mix.

JUDGE AND MRS. GEORGE E. MIX of the Gatesworth Hotel, who were married Feb. 29, 1908, will celebrate the sixth reoccurrence of their wedding anniversary tomorrow. They will be entertained at an informal party to be given by Mr. and Mrs. C. Leslie Cox at their home in Osage Hills tomorrow evening. Mrs. Mix was Miss Irene Angell Zent, formerly of Belleville.

Colonial Garb at Washington Ball

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27.

SOCIETY in hoop-skirts, knee breeches and lace ruffles, with powdered hair on wigs, gave the most gorgeous show of the season at the Washington Bicentennial ball Monday night.

The ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel was thronged with men and women in official life in Colonial costumes. Vice President Curtis was there with his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann. She wore a turquoise blue taffeta costume trimmed with coral. Mrs. Sol Bloom, wife of the associate director of the Bicentennial celebration, was gowned in lavender moire draped over a petticoat of silver lace.

A demure rose pink silk gown was worn by Miss Caroline Hyde, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture. It was trimmed with rare old lace which had belonged to her grandmother.

Mr. and Mrs. William Jeffries Chewning Jr. came as Mr. Chewning's ancestors, Col. and Mrs. William Ball. Mrs. Chewning is the daughter of Senator James Couzens of Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fairfax of Virginia went attired as Lord and Lady Fairfax. Mrs. Fairfax wore a ring given by George Washington to his brother, Lawrence, at the time of the latter's marriage to Anne Fairfax. The ring has since been handed down to the eldest member of each succeeding family. It contains a large diamond surrounded by 13 small diamonds, which represent the original colonies. Mrs. Fairfax's gown was of garnet velvet trimmed with duchesse lace.

Mrs. Hoover left Wednesday night for a week's rest in Florida. She was accompanied by Mrs. Edgar Rickard of New York, who has been a guest at the White House for several days, Mrs. Mark Sullivan and Capt. and Mrs. Joel T. Boone. At Charleston, S. C., the party boarded a Department of Commerce boat for Miami.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson entertained a large company at luncheon Wednesday in the Wilson home on S street in honor of Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith of Des Moines, Ia., widow of the Secretary of Agriculture under President Wilson.

Large Out-of-Town List for Dog Show

MEMBERS of the board of governors of the annual spring dog show, to be held at The Arena, April 1, 2 and 3, have been announced by Gerald B. O'Reilly, president of the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club. Edward K. Love is chairman. The other members are Samuel C. Davis, George D. Dodd, Paul R. Grace, Louis M. Hall, D. Calhoun Jones, Edwin A. Lemp, Virgil A. Lewis, A. Sproule Love, William J. McBurney, Samuel Plant, Dr. Horace W. Soper, Claude Vrooman, Asa Brookings Wallace, and Samuel Graham Wilson Jr.

More than 40 out-of-town entries have been received. S. I. Pautler, secretary-treasurer of the club, said this was a record number this far in advance. The dates do not conflict with those of any other dog show in America, and Pautler looks for the largest out-of-town entry list in the history of the club.

LIGHTHOUSE
...for protection

Marine life is hazardous at its best. Ships that sail the Seven Seas are guided by accurately charted trade routes. Close to shore lines . . . or far out at sea . . . lighthouses or lightships protect and guide courageous pilots through the blackness of night and fog and storm.

How like the lighthouse—the store that safely guides the buying of its patron-friends! And there is a store, the Kline store, which can be likened unto a beacon of fashion-safety for the women of this great community. Some stores claim to always be "FIRST" in fashion. And while Kline's usually have the new "styles" as quickly or quicker than most stores . . . we do not present a new garment . . . a new style of hat . . . or gloves . . . or anything until we are sure that it is CORRECT in fashion . . . and exactly what the majority of well-dressed women want. That's why so many women depend on this store for their every apparel need!

Exciting things have been happening during the past few weeks at Kline's! Skilled craftsmen are building an entirely NEW Fourth Floor! . . . a floor of what will be the most beautifully appointed apparel shops this side of New York! Soon you will see them! We think you'll like them a lot.

Move to License Teachers of Music

MISS ANNA LOUISE PETRI, 4678 Clark avenue, will give a report for the Eighth District Missouri Federation of Music Clubs on the movement to license teachers of music in Missouri, when the State Federation of Music Clubs meets in annual convention in Kansas City, Mo., April 16 to 20. The report will be made with a view of having a bill drawn for introduction in the Legislature.

The State Federation now issues certificates to teachers who pass its examination according to their preparation to teach the primary, intermediate or advanced courses. It only remains to have a law on the subject to place the teaching and credits of music in Missouri on the same basis as it occupies in most other states.

Miss Petri is secretary of the Missouri Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. She holds two bachelor of music degrees from the Chicago Musical College, which is a member of the National Association of Schools of Music.

Activities of Women's Clubs

THERE will be but one meeting of the Wednesday Club Wednesday when the Current Topics Section, Mrs. Henry Leverett Chase, chairman, will have charge of the program.

The leader of the day, Mrs. Albert E. Taussig, will introduce Dr. E. V. Cowdry, who will speak on "Infantile Paralysis in the Light of Modern Research." Dr. Cowdry, who is internationally known for his investigations, has followed three lines of work: Yellow fever, infantile paralysis and a cattle disease which he studied in Africa under auspices of the British Government.

Mrs. Frank Y. Gladney will present the current topics of the month.

The Leisure Time Neighborhood Club activities are every Tuesday and Thursday evenings, and Thursday afternoons at the Madison School, 1118 South Seventh street.

The College Club will meet at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday for a business session. Informal bridge or sewing will follow.

Tea will be served at 3 p. m. with Mrs. E. P. Schluer and Miss Ruth Coulson as hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Milton Louenstein, Miss Margaret Shapleigh, Miss Edith Souther and Mrs. F. C. Woerman of Smith College, Miss Ethel L. Mills of H. Sophie Newcomb College and Mrs. Fred Armstrong Jr. of Syracuse University.

Wednesday the French group will meet at 3:15 p. m. "La vie privee de Michel Feissiey," by Edward Rod, will be reviewed by Miss Gladys Guener. "L'ombre s'etand sur la montagne," also by Rod, will be discussed by Mrs. Phillips W. Moss.

The Art Section of the Scottish Rite Woman's Club, Mrs. Otto W. Vossmeyer, chairman, will meet Wednesday for luncheon at noon. Mrs. A. L. McGuire, Mrs. H. P. Doyle, Mrs. W. During, Mrs. C. L. Fischer, Mrs. Frank Sohns, Mrs. V. Steinberg and Miss A. Mayme Seibel will be hostesses. A business meeting will follow at 1 p. m. The leader of the day, Mrs. William D. Buchanan, will present the guest artist, Miss Dorothea Pohlmann, whose topic will be "The St. Louis Art Museum and Community." The soloist, Miss Jane Lewis, will be accompanied by Miss Marjorie Pugh.

The Social Section, Mrs. Harry Bischoff, chairman, will meet Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. After a short business meeting there will be cards. Mrs. J. Langenbach, Mrs. B. H. Bertell, Mrs. Irene M. Smith, Miss May Osborn and Mrs. Louise Zumstein will be hostesses.

The Music Section, Mrs. Walter D. Hulett Jr., chairman, will meet Friday at 10 a. m. Type 9-A, chamber music, will be taken up under the direction of Prof. O. Wade Fallert.

The Monday Club of Webster Groves will sponsor a benefit bridge party tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Mrs. C. B. Kenamore and Mrs. C. P. Dyer have charge of the arrangements.

The music and drama group will meet at 10:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, Mrs. R. C. Heath, chairman, presiding. Mrs. Doyne C. Neal, organist at Central Presbyterian Church, will talk on "The Pipe Organ." Mrs. Harry H. Seidell has been chosen chairman of this group for the year. Meetings will be held once a month, instead of twice a month. Modern music will be studied by the group on alternate Wednesdays.

Choral practice precedes this meeting at 9:30 a. m.

The executive board of the Cornelia Greene Chapter, Daughters of American Revolution, will meet tomorrow at 1 o'clock at the home of Mrs. John Trigg Moss, 6017 Enright avenue. After luncheon the following officers will report: Mrs. W. Antoine Hall, regent; Mrs. W. H. Dickey, Mrs. Frank A. Ruf, Mrs. Ray Havens, Mrs. Frank Henderson, Mrs. B. H. St. John, Mrs. George I. Rollin, Mrs. Herbert Krietz, Mrs. William S. Jencks, Mrs. Joseph Jamison, Miss Essie Matlack and Mrs. J. Moss. The Membership Committee will present several new names.

The monthly meeting of the Cornelia Greene chapter will be held Wednesday at 2 o'clock in the tower room of the Congress Hotel. Mrs. William Harvey England, Mrs. G. I. Rollin and Mrs. A. E. Farrar will serve as hostesses. A lighter washday—but a whiter wash —by C.A. Voight

SO YOU HAVE A NEW WASHER, GRACE. HOW DO YOU LIKE IT?
THE WASHER'S JUST FINE! BUT FRANKLY I'M DISAPPOINTED WITH THE CLOTHES. THEY'RE NOT AS WHITE AS I EXPECTED
DON'T TELL ME YOU HAVEN'T BEEN USING RINSO IN YOUR MACHINE. I THOUGHT EVERYBODY KNEW THAT RINSO GETS CLOTHES WHITER
I REMEMBER NOW! THE SALESMAN USED RINSO IN HIS DEMONSTRATION—I MUST TRY IT
HELLO, GRACE. WHAT'S THE GOOD NEWS? YOU'RE ALL SMILES
I'M SO HAPPY! I TRIED RINSO TODAY AND IT GOT THE CLOTHES SO WHITE, I DIDN'T EVEN HAVE TO BOIL
I TOLD YOU SO! WAIT TILL YOU TRY IT FOR DISHES—THE SUDS ARE WONDERFUL
YES, THEY'RE SO CREAMY AND SO SAFE,—EVEN IN OUR HARD WATER, AND HOW BRIGHT AND FRESH MY COLORED THINGS LOOK!
THAT NIGHT
THESE SHIRTS LOOK WHITER THAN EVER, GRACE. ARE YOU USING YOUR NEW WASHER?
YES—AND A MARVELOUS NEW SOAP—RINSO. A LITTLE GIVES SUCH A LOT OF RICH, LASTING SUDS. IT'S A REAL MONEY-SAVER
Rinso The Granulated

Don't you, too, want a whiter, brighter wash?
No scrubbing—no boiling—clothes last longer

HOW foolish to work for hours and hours—scrubbing and boiling clothes—when all you have to do is soak and rinse for the whitest wash ever! You will find that Rinso gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. No softeners needed, even in hardest water.

Rinso is safe for your finest cottons and linens—white or colors. The makers of 40 famous washers recommend it. Try Rinso's rich suds for dishwashing and all cleaning, too. Get the BIG household package.

To the Mothers
whose children won't eat

NATURE knows best. Never coax a child to eat! Remove the cause of a youngster's poor appetite. When appetite fails, tongue is coated white, eyes are a bilious yellow, don't give small children a constipating cathartic that drains the system and weakens the bowels! California fig syrup is all the "medicine" they require.

The Child's Appetite Will Always Respond

Specialists will tell you that a sluggish appetite almost always means the child has a sluggish colon. Correct this condition called stasis, and see how quickly a listless, drooping boy or girl begins to eat—and gain! The only "medicine" such children need is pure, unadulterated fig syrup.

California fig syrup is doing wonderful things for ailing, sickly children all over the United States. Children who get fig syrup, now and then, soon have the appetite and energy of young animals! They keep well and avoid colds and sluggish spells.

Nature never made a finer laxative for children; and they all love the wholesome, fruity flavor of the real California fig syrup. It's purely vegetable, but every druggist has it all bottled, with directions. Begin with it at once. The very next day, your child will be eating better and feeling better. Keep on with the fig syrup a few days and you will see the most amazing improvement in appetite, color, weight, and spirits.

A single IF

The promises made by the bottlers of California fig syrup are true—and it will do the same for you—IF it's genuine CALIFORNIA fig syrup. Don't accept any bottle that does not plainly say CALIFORNIA. Every druggist has the genuine.

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

BOY SCOUTS PREPARE FOR CIRCUS AT ARENA

The fourth and final section of the 1932 achievement roundup for St. Louis Council Boy Scouts will start next Tuesday, when troops will begin preparation for the two final roundup objectives: participation in the annual Boy Scout Circus and sale of troop quotas of circus tickets. The circus will be held at The Arena April 1 and 2.

The 1932 achievement roundup, which started Dec. 1, is an attempt by St. Louis Council troops to advance in membership, individual scout rank, and both troop and individual accomplishment. Each of the four sections has had certain objectives, such as enlisting new members, passing a certain number of tests, holding a troop court of honor, and performing troop good turns.

Troops completing their objectives during the sections in which the latter are in force will receive gold streamers at the circus. Troops completing all objectives, but not on time, will get blue streamers, while red and white streamers will be given for completing certain proportions of the total.

The objectives for the final section differ from those of the preceding three in that they are concerned entirely with the circus. Three points will be awarded for selling a troop's quota of tickets, while two points will be given for participation in the circus. The quotas are determined on a basis of five tickets per active scout, while participation means at least eight scouts taking active part in a circus event. The opening parade will not count as an event.

Should a troop not be able to qualify in either or both of these objectives, it may make up points either through recruiting new members or by passing tests and scout advancement. One point will be allowed for each new member while scores for test passing and advancement are awarded according to a system set up before the roundup began.

To aid troops in winning points by passing tests, the council will hold a council-wide court of honor at Scottish Rite Temple, March 28, to present badges of higher rank. Advancement points are not awarded until the new badge is presented.

Applicants for Eagle badges to be awarded at this court must file applications on or before March 14. Candidates for Life and Eagle Palm badges must file applications on on before March 18.

West District.

Ten recruits, Roger Elliott, Bob Lynch, Manson Hunt, Dick Platt, Chase Morsey, Claude Dello, Bill Weaver, Knox Taussig, Bud Weaver and Bob Franklin were admitted into Troop 2 of Pilgrim Congregational Church

Senior Patrol Leader Ben Baer, a member of Troop 46 for eight years, was commissioned assistant scoutmaster of the troop at a troop court of honor held at Immanuel Baptist Church, troop headquarters, last week. The court, which was witnessed by parents and former members of the troop, was preceded by a dinner given by the Ladies' Aid Society. Scout Justin Richardson received a first-class badge at the court. Scouts Alden Royer and James Ballard each received several merit badges, Scouts Joe Quilone and William Hampe got trumpeters' badges and Scout Gilbert Parker received a quartermaster's badge.

Troop 98 of St. Roch's Church received a standard troop rating for its fourth successive year at the troop's annual fathers' and sons' banquet at Knights of Columbus Hall a week ago Monday. More than 120 men and boys were present at the banquet. A scoutmaster's gold key was awarded to Scoutmaster Staley. The scouts presented a pageant, "Mightier Than the Sword," and the Sea Scout division of the troop gave a demonstration. The Rev. J. P. Spencer, William F. Yorger, A. B. Eberle and William F. Fahey spoke. Charles Schmusker, Harold Pins, Dwain Gite and Robert Stith have been admitted into the troop in the last two weeks.

A new scoutmaster, Harold F. Boyer, has been commissioned head of Troop 101 of West Park Baptist Church. Robert Kirchner has been appointed senior patrol leader, Arthur Monken quartermaster and Rudolph Switowicz librarian. A new interpatrol contest has been started, with a free camping trip as a prize.

Twenty-five scouts, Assistant Scoutmaster Jack Brassil and Committeemen Hart, Lapping and Devereux of Troop 154 held a three-day camp at Nadja, Mo., over Washington's birthday. Despite frequent showers, several tests were passed and a bridge was built for a pioneering project. Scout Minton captured, skinned and prepared for mounting a muskrat, as one requirement for the taxidermy merit badge. A troop court of honor will be held tomorrow evening at St. Mark's Church, troop headquarters, as part of the troop's achievement roundup program.

To Address Electrical Board.

Dr. R. F. Lischer of Mascoutah, Ill., will deliver an address on "Knocks and Boosts of a Country Doctor" at a meeting of the St. Louis Electrical Board of Trade at Hotel Statler at noon Tuesday.

Troop Notes

Central District.

Troop 16 of St. James' Catholic Church, held its first Troop Court of Honor last Monday evening. An investiture ceremony also was held. In the latter the troop has the assistance of Warren Shull of Troop 155.

A Troop Court of Honor was conducted by Troop 23, of Gibson Heights Presbyterian Church, last Tuesday evening, as part of an elaborate entertainment program given for parents and friends of the scouts. A large crowd attended and complimented the troop for its efforts. In addition to the court, the principal act was a playlet, "First Aid Teaches a Lesson." The Rev. Mr. McIntyre acted as master of ceremonies, while talks were given by Field Commissioner Flach and Mr. Williams, a representative of the District Court of Honor.

The Troop Committee presented the awards at a Troop Court of Honor held by Troop 67 of Madison School, last Wednesday evening.

Troop 105 is now meeting at the Humboldt School on Monday evenings, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Frank Dwyer. The School Patrons' Association is planning to sponsor the troop.

Troop Committeeman C. F. Miller, C. S. Johnson and F. A. Bobel presented awards at a Troop Court of Honor conducted by Troop 155, of McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church last Friday evening. Chairman W. R. Tubbs of the committee presided at the court.

South District.

Several changes have been made in the assignment of troops to South District Deputy Commissioners, who will hereafter be known as Field Commissioners. Troops 20, 63, 86, 180 and 200 will report to Field Commissioner R. T. Shepherd, Troops 76, 182 and 183 to Field Commissioner H. A. Kirchmer, and Troops 27, 198 and 234 to Field Commissioner De Witt A. James.

Ten scouts received second class badges and four received handicraft merit badges at a Troop Court of Honor conducted by Troop 129 of St. George's Catholic Church last Sunday evening. Activities Director Charles H. Mills of the St. Louis Council gave the principal talk of the evening. The Rev. Joseph A. Seibert spoke on co-operation between parents and scouts.

Second class, first class, merit and star badges were awarded at a Troop Court of Honor held by Troop 180 of Rose Fanning School last Monday evening. The presentations were made by members of the troop committee. Dr. R. S. Witt, newly-appointed chairman of the South District Court of Honor, complimented the troop on its record. District Chairman H. P. Mueller spoke.

Troop 183 of St. Paul's Evangelical Church has been reorganized under the leadership of Scoutmaster R. S. Iglehart, a scout leader from Springfield, O.

Troop 217 of Southhampton Presbyterian Church has reregistered under a new scoutmaster, John S. Leighton.

Scout Frank Lindhurst received a star badge at a Troop Court of Honor held by Troop 244 of Kennard School last Friday evening. Ten merit badges and two second class badges also were awarded at the court, which was witnessed by several parents and friends. The Rev. Ben Ridpath gave a talk on scouting. He was a charter scout in Webster Groves 3 when it was organized 17 years ago next month.

Troop Court of Honor was held by Troop 27 of Grant School last Wednesday evening in honor of the troop's sixteenth anniversary. More than 100 parents witnessed the ceremonies. Field Executive C. H. Laemmli presented the troop's sixteenth charter, while Prof. Moreland, principal of the school, spoke on Washington and scouting. Committeeman Edwin Dangel awarded two star scout, one first class, three second class and 15 merit badges. The scouts presented a sketch, "A Day in Winter Camp."

Nearly 200 parents and friends attended a Troop Court of Honor and Investiture Ceremony held by Troop 166 of Dewey School, Feb. 19. Both the court and investiture were built around "Washington—Boy Scout." Former Judge George Mix gave the principal talk of the evening, while William Neukun, president of the school Parent-Teachers' Association, and Dr. R. R. Lewin, chairman of the troop commitee, also spoke.

Eight mothers of scouts organized a Mothers' Club for Troop 189, Shaw Avenue Methodist Church, last Tuesday. Mrs. C. C. Fawcett was elected president. Five merit badges and eight tests were passed by scouts of the troop last week, in the second week of a new inter-patrol contest. Plans for a hike to Eureka, Mo., March 5 and 6 were made.

Two Star, two second class, and several merit badges were awarded at a Troop Court of Honor held by Troop 202, Centenary Church, a week ago Friday evening. The entire troop committee was present for the ceremonies. After the court the committee announced that plans were being made for the troop to attend Camp Irondale as a unit this summer.

Assistant Scoutmaster Arthur Wilde of Troop 227, Lafayette Park Baptist Church, has been made a Field Commissioner of the Central District.

SALVATION ARMY HOME IS SHORT OF FUNDS

This Will Force Curtailing of Hospital Service, Maj. Lundgren Says.

The Salvation Army Home and Hospital, 3740 Marine avenue, will be forced to curtail its service during the remainder of the year owing to a reduced budget, which is less than half the amount needed, Maj. Victor Lundgren, divisional commander, announces.

"This means turning away many women, who have no funds, and no other place to go," Maj. Lundgren said.

Last year, because of lack of funds, the hospital turned away all women not residents of St. Louis, who could not pay one-third of the expense of the service they received, but managed to take care of all St. Louis women applying for aid. This year it will be necessary to refuse service to some women living in the city, Maj. Lundgren states.

The deficit at the beginning of 1931 was $4500, and at the beginning of this year, $3939. If the hospital is to do full duty an additional $10,000 is needed, Maj. Lundgren says.

"We have no money in sight to make up this deficit and the needed additional sum, except from the few patients, who may be able to pay part of the expenses," Maj. Lundgren asserts.

The Salvation Home and Hospital is entering on its forty-fourth year of service. It was the first institution of the kind established in the United States by the Salvation Army.

Troop Notes

12 Scouts, junior assistant scoutmaster, scoutmaster and chairman of the Troop Committee. The Flying Eagle Patrol won an inter-patrol contest.

Three second-class tests were passed during the meeting of Troop 3 of Grace Holy Church last week.

Troop 83 of St. Paul's Church took charge of a special Scout service at the church last Sunday evening, with a troop court of honor, candle-light investiture ceremony, and a pantomime demonstration of how George Washington put the Scout laws into practice in his daily life. The Rev. Talmadge Witt presided at both the court of honor and the investiture. Scoutmaster Hertenstein spoke on "The Twelfth Scout Law," and Assistant Scoutmaster Dister read the Scriptures.

Suburban District.

Troop 186 of Country Day School re-registered for the year with Frederick D. Blanchard as scoutmaster, and Thomas Howard Elliott as assistant scoutmaster. The Troop Committee will consist of Committeemen Thompson, Browne, Duncan, Gray and Shinkel.

Kirkwood 2 of Grace Episcopal Church held a camping trip over last week-end. During the camp the Scouts met a marksmanship merit badge examiner, and three boys passed his test.

Seven new tenderfoot Scouts were admitted into Webster Groves 1 of First Congregational Church, at an investiture ceremony held last Monday evening.

Eight new Scouts were invested and one first-class, four second-class, and 21 merit badges were awarded at a troop court of honor held by Webster Groves

Belleville Area.

Scout Milton Freeman is leading in an individual achievement contest staged by Belleville 4 of Washington School, with Scout Peter Jacobs second and Scout Kenneth Voland third. The Fox Patrol, with 217 points, is barely leading the Mohawks, with 216, in an inter-patrol contest.

Scout Louis Penetti passed fire building; Russell Hoehn passed Scout oath and Scout laws, and Robert Oughton passed all his tenderfoot requirements at the meeting of Belleville 9 at Union School.

A new recruit, Fred Steober, was introduced to Belleville 10 of Henry Raab School by Scout Bernard Ruser at the meeting two weeks ago. The Roaming Ravens are leading in an inter-patrol contest with 301 points, the Skunk Patrol being second with 273. Scouts Bernard Rusef and Floyd Vetter passed tests at the meeting.

A new Scout, Harry Kindelsperger, was initiated into Belleville 12 of St. Paul's Hall last week.

FIVE NEW BROWNIE PACKS

Formed Since Visit of National Adviser to City.

Five new Brownie Packs have been formed under the Girl Scouts of St. Louis since the visit in January of Miss Julia Williamson of New York, Brownie adviser for the national organization. Brownies are the younger sister organization of the Girl Scouts, their members being from 7 to 10 years of age. The new packs are at Clinton School, Kennard School, Wesley House, B'Nai El Temple, and at the Normandy Presbyterian Church. The leaders of the new packs, who are known as Brown Owls, are Mrs. M. R. McCarthy, Mrs. F. Reifeiss, Miss Rebecca Hayes, Miss Belle Weissman and Mrs. Dorothy Schneeman.

All Brownie Packs are affiliated with registered Girl Scout troops. St. Louis city and County Girl Scout troops which have the younger sister organization are Troops 8, 11, 59, 89, 94, Clayton 1 and Normandy 4.

UNIONS ARE INVITED TO CONFER ON WAGE CUT

Building Contractors Arrange Meeting for Thursday to Consider Proposal.

A meeting with union representatives has been called for Thursday by contractors to discuss a proposed cut in the scale of wages paid building mechanics here.

The contractors point to reductions in wage scales in other large cities, and say wages in the building industry are higher in St. Louis than in any other large city, except New York, where a cut of 25 per cent is under discussion.

The contractors, while seeking an amicable agreement, have set April 1 as the date for a reduction of 33 1-3 per cent in wages. Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the Building Trades Council, has stated that the St. Louis unions will not consider a cut. Cassidy is one of the leaders invited to Thursday's meeting.

At a conference Friday in which contractors representing 19 branches of the building industry participated, it was reported that several building projects were waiting on reduced costs. R. L. Murphy, secretary of the Associated Building Interests, stated that in some instances contractors had given estimates on work, only to have owners refuse to go through with the contract on the ground that costs were too high. Local architects had something of the same experience, Murphy stated.

"The report of contractors and architects indicates that the public will not buy until prices come down," Murphy said. "The general condition of the bond market is also influencing the hesitancy on the part of owners, but we believe a reduction in labor costs would help materially to stimulate business."

WALLACE VAN CLEAVE WINS JUNIOR POETRY CONTEST

Country Day Student Writes Free Verse on the Futility of War.

Wallace Van Cleave, 26 Kingsbury place, 16-year-old student at Country Day School, won the annual junior poetry contest sponsored by the Wednesday Club, with "Armageddon," a long poem in free verse dealing with the futility of war. It was his first effort at poetry.

The first award carried with it a price of $25 in gold offered by Mrs. A. R. Smyth. The contest was open to children of high-school age or younger.

Honorable mention was awarded to Flontine Pickens, whose verse was submitted through the Neighborhood Association; Glen Carr Bagot and Caroline Sue Fuller, students at The Principia, and Mary Virginia Goerner of Hosmer Hall.

BARBER SHOP SET UP AT OZANAM SHELTER

Washroom Facilities Provided —Horseshoe Courts Soon to Be Laid Out.

A barber shop and washroom with facilities for 25 men has been established at Ozanam Shelter for Men in the old Mullanphy Hospital building at Montgomery and Coleman streets. The barbers' union has offered the services of three barbers a week to cut hair of guests at the shelter and a supply of safety razors has been contributed by a drug company.

More than 200 men residing at the shelter have been at work cleaning up the spacious yard. The Rev. John J. Butler, president of the Catholic Charities of St. Louis and managing director of the shelter, said he planned to set up horse shoe courts "as soon as the horse shoes are donated."

Several of the guests who became ill last week were treated at De Paul Hospital. Physicians from the hospital visit the shelter three times a week. Father Butler said some of the men had suffered from exposure before the shelter was opened about 10 days ago.

The clothing department, opened this week, is still in need of shoes, hats, suits, overcoats and underwear. Father Butler has acknowledged receipt of $25 each from Mgr. P. P. Crane, Miss Julia Keane and the Irish Society of St. Louis. Other donations include clothing, three cases of soap, 250 pounds of fish, 50 pounds of coffee, a keg of sauerkraut and other food supplies.

WASHINGTON U. TO OFFER DEGREE FOR ART TEACHERS

Will Confer Bachelor of Science Diplomas in This Branch Beginning Next September.

A degree of bachelor of science for teachers of art will be offered by Washington University, through University College, beginning next September. As the School of Fine Arts does not confer degrees, this will be the first degree in art offered by the university.

The curriculum will consist of two years of pre-professional work and two years of professional work. The first two years will be in the College of Liberal Arts, with the curriculum essentially the same as that for freshman and sophomores seeking the degree of bachelor of arts. The last two years will be in University College, which will direct the work in co-operation with the School of Fine Arts, the School of Architecture and the College of Liberal Arts.

Students who have completed two years in the College of Liberal Arts or have taken the first two years of the A. B. curriculum in University College may be admitted to the last two years of the new curriculum, but will be required to make up the work in art required in the pre-professional curriculum.

BIG BROTHERS CARING FOR 350 UNDERPRIVILEGED BOYS

Gale F. Johnston, President, Makes Annual Report to the Organization.

The Big Brothers of St. Louis are caring for about 350 under-privileged boys, about 10 per cent of the total, Gale F. Johnston, president of the organization, reported yesterday at its annual meeting.

During 1931, he said, the executive secretary and his assistant had 4875 interviews with Little Brothers; 1672 with Big Brothers; 351 with parents or relatives of the boys; obtained jobs for 35 boys, sent 54 to camps and obtained medical, dental and legal services for 97.

"In addition," Johnston said, "more than 150 Big Brothers worked with individual boys as friends and counselors. In most every case they saw to it that the boys did not suffer through want. It is impossible for me to tell you how much was done in the way of providing food, clothing, shelter, medicine and opportunities for education, recreation and spiritual development."

ADDRESS ON MADAGASCAR

C. F. Swingle to Tell of Exploring for Trees.

Charles F. Swingle of Washington, associate pomologist at the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, will address the Washington University Association on "Exploring for Trees in Madagascar" at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday in the Soldan High School auditorium.

The lecture will be illustrated with slides and moving pictures describing the speaker's expedition two years ago to learn more about the medicinal and scientific value of tree products in Madagascar. General information about life and social conditions on the island will be discussed.

EDUCATION SESSION APRIL 1-2

Annual Midwest Conference to Be Held at Washington U.

The fifth annual Midwest Education Conference will be held at Washington University April 1 and 2, Dr. Frank Wright, chairman of the Department of Education, announces.

Speakers will include Dr. M. E. Haggerty, dean of the College of Education, University of Minnesota, and Dr. Louis Hayden Meek of the Teachers' College of Columbia University.

Reports Chow Dog Stolen.

Mrs. Ruth Gross, 3659A Botanical avenue, yesterday reported that a Chinese chow dog had been stolen from a back yard at her home. The animal was described as a five-month-old female with a red-brown body and a black tipped tail.

REAL ESTATE

PART SIX.

UPWARD TREND IN MORTGAGE VOLUME

Total Filed in January Is 39 Pct. Above That of December.

The dollar volume of real estate mortgages recorded in January showed a substantial upward trend for the first time in recent months, according to a monthly compilation of official reports by Nelson, Hunt & Co. of Chicago, specialists in real estate financing.

Analysis of official figures from selected representative metropolitan districts showed that the volume of real estate mortgages filed in January was about 39 per cent larger than in December. This increase, however, failed to bring the January total near that of the same month in 1931; the decrease below January a year ago being about 41 per cent.

The Nelson, Hunt & Co. compilation covered 37 urban districts, comprising more than half of the city population of the country. They reported a total of $182,546,382 in real estate mortgages filed during the month of January. Thirty-four cities on which comparative data is available showed a total of $177,797,026 for January, as compared with $128,032,343 in the previous month of December.

Thirty-five cities, which reported figures on real estate mortgage volume for January, 1931, showed a total volume of $173,392,258 for January this year as compared with $295,628,048 the same month a year ago.

Five Districts Report Gain.

Five districts reported a gain in January over the volume in the same month a year ago. These were Detroit, Mich.; Greenwich, Conn.; Kansas City, Kan.; Omaha, Neb., and Youngstown, O.

Thirteen districts, including some of the country's largest metropolitan areas, reported in January a volume of real estate mortgages larger than in the previous month of December. These were Chicago, New York, Detroit, Fort Wayne, Ind.; Greenwich, Conn.; Kansas City, Kan.; Milwaukee, Oakland, Cal.; White Plains, N. Y.; Philadelphia, Rochester, N. Y.; Tampa, Fla, and Youngstown, O.

Detroit with a total of $12,611,439 in January showed an increase of 142 per cent over the same month a year ago, and was about 290 per cent larger than the December total of $3,227,929. Other cities, with a much smaller dollar volume, reported unusually large per centage gains over last January and December. Kansas City, Kan., with a total of $1,751,048, was 476 per cent ahead of January, 1931, and 936 per cent greater than in December. Youngstown, O., with a total of $1,728,456, was 162 per cent ahead of last January, and 149 per cent more than in the previous month. Fort Wayne's total of $645,840 was nearly five times larger than in December, but little more than half of January, 1931.

New York and Chicago, the two largest metropolitan areas in the country, both showed a decided upward trend. Chicago, which has been showing a declining tendency for more than a year, reported a total in January $12,757,863 as compared with $12,538,080 in December. The January volume was, however, about 44 per cent below that of the same month a year ago.

Total in New York.

The five boroughs of New York reported a total of $77,838,588 in mortgages filed in January. This is a gain of about 219 per cent over the December total of $24,404,504, but 49 per cent below the January, 1931, volume of $153,033,296. Bronx was the only borough to show a loss in January; its total of $3,080,600 being less than half of last January, and about $900,000 below December. The largest increase was in Queens, which reported a total of $54,884,000 as compared with $4,783,906 in December, a gain of $50,100,094. This total, however, was little more than half of the January, 1931, volume of $104,466,000. Manhattan reported a volume of $10,845,592 as compared with $7,639,800 in December, and $28,456,217 in January a year ago. Brooklyn and Kings County had a total of $8,406,078 as compared with $7,275,594 in December and $12,535,400 last January.

Westchester County, which comprises an important section of the Greater New York metropolitan area, reported mortgages filed totaling $6,280,126 in January as compared to $5,456,540, an increase of about 15 per cent. In January a year ago, Westchester County reported a volume of $7,122,160.

Decline in Los Angeles.

Among the larger cities of the country to show a heavy decline in real estate mortgages from January, a year ago, was Los Angeles, with a total of $18,367,944 as compared with $80,375,018 in January, 1931, a loss of about 40 per cent. Milwaukee's total of $3,206,643 was little less than half of last January's total of $6,465,120, and Pittsburg's total of $3,644,879 was a loss of $4,744,000. San Francisco, with a total of $7,680,686, was $3,034,000 behind a year ago, and Seattle's total of $807,481 was less than one-third of that reported last January.

Boston's total for January of $4,593,402 wa sa loss of about 39 per cent from last year, and $1,642,000 less than in December. Cleveland had a total of $2,707,532, which was about one-third of the last January

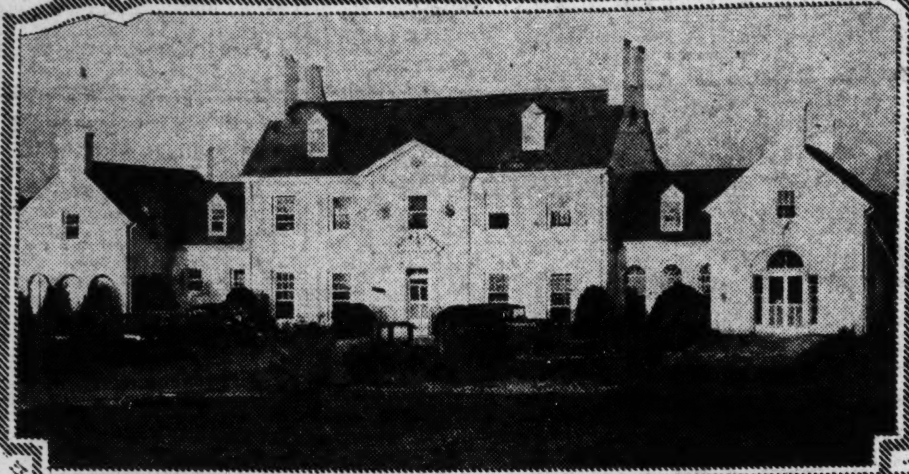
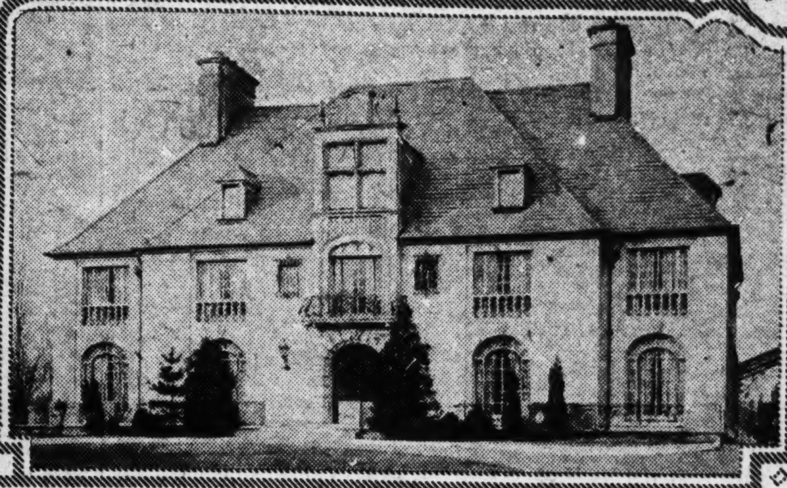
Residences, Apartment and Office Building; Design for Airport Terminal



Beverly Hall residence of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Jones in Huntleigh Village, bought by Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Johnson. It was erected in 1930 from plans by Study & Farrar, architects. Edward L. Bakewell represented the seller and the Franciscus Realty Company, the purchaser.



Residence of Morris M. Corn, opposite Forest Park, at 5855 Lindell boulevard, which has been purchased by Mrs. Paul Brown. The house is in the French style, built from plans by Maritz & Young, architects. Negotiations were handled by the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co., in connection with Walter C. Haeussler of Paul Brown & Co.

Drawing of Airport Terminal Building to be built at Bridgeton, in St. Louis County. Estimated cost, $150,000. Kaplan-McGowan Co., contractor.

AIRPORT TERMINAL PLANS ANNOUNCED

Construction of $150,000 Builuding to Get Under Way This Week.

Work on the St. Louis Airport Terminal Building at Lambert-St. Louis Field will be started this week by the Kaplan-McGowan Co., who were awarded the general contract by the Board of Public Service last Tuesday. This airport terminal will cost more than $150,000.

The building will be 199 feet long and 67 feet wide, with stone steps. Facing the east, the two-story building will have an observation tower in the center of the roof. This glass tower will serve as additional guide to incoming planes as well as affording view for sightseers. The east of the building has a stairway 41 feet wide and the eight stone steps lead to a landing containing four great pillars the entire height of the building. Between the columns on the second floor are wrought iron porches above the arched entrances. The west elevation is like the east except for the stairway.

In the basement will be a barber shop, a washroom. large storage space and boiler room and pump room. In one corner will be the first aid room.

The waiting room is on the first floor. Here, too, is a postoffice, baggage room, ticket office and women's rest room. The north wing will contain a coffee shop and kitchen and sight-seeing pavilion.

The second floor will have hotel rooms and an open air promenade for guests. The north wing will be devoted to a dining room with beam and paneled ceiling, terrazzo floor and decorated walls. From the dining room to the north will be also a promenade above the pavilion.

The building will be connected with the flying field by a tunnel.

LOCAL INTERESTS ACQUIRE E. ST. LOUIS OFFICE BUILDING

Negotiations have been concluded by which St. Louis interests have acquired the 12-story, fireproof Spivey Building at 417 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, erected four years ago by the late Allen T. Spivey. For convenience, the title to the building has been taken in the name of Clyde L. Powell pending formation of a holding corporation, he having secured all of the capital stock of the Spivey Building Corporation from the estate of the late Allen T. Spivey.

The property was sold subject to $445,000 first and second deeds of trust, with the St. Louis Union Trust Co. as trustees. Clyde L. Powell, in the interest of the new corporation to be organized, arranged the financing for the purchase of the equity in the property.

Howard E. Kelsey Co. to Move.

The Howard E. Kelsey Realty Co. will move March 1 to 8309 Gravois avenue. It is now in the Farmers & Merchants' Bank Building, 3548 South Grand.

BEVERLY JONES HOME SOLD TO J. L. JOHNSON

Country Residence With 10 Acres of Rolling Ground Valued at $200,000.

Beverly Hall, the country residence of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Jones in Huntleigh Village on the Denny road between Clayton and the Manchester roads, has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. James Lee Johnson. The purchase price was not announced. The property was listed for sale at $200,000. Edward L. Bakewell represented the seller, and the Franciscus Realty Co. the purchaser.

The Jones estate includes 10 acres of rolling country, a few hundred yards to the northwest of the Bridlespur Country Club and adjoining the estates of Adelbert Von Gontard, Percy Orthwein, Louis Hager and others. The property includes within its limits a splendid woods and stream.

The residence itself was designed by Study & Farrar, architects, and reflects the Virginia atmosphere. The exterior walls are of brick painted white and the roof is of gray green slate.

The central part of the building includes living room, dining room and hall. This is flanked by two wings, one containing the guest quarters of bedroom and bath, a loggia, a sunroom and study, the other wing including pantries, kitchen and garage. On the second floor of the main portion of the house are three master bedrooms, each with a bath and an exquisite dressing room with French paneling. Over the service wing are three servants' rooms and two baths.

REALTY LOAN OFFICER QUITS AT SOUTH SIDE NATIONAL

Harry F. Tacke has resigned as real estate loan officer and as a director of the South Side National Bank. He had been connected with the bank in this capacity since its formation in 1928, before which time he was in the real estate and building business on his own account. He has been identified with many noteworthy transactions and building enterprises.

It is understood he has resigned with plans for forming a real estate company of his own.

LE GRAND JONES ARRANGES LOCUST STREET LEASE

LeGrand Jones, Inc., report arranging the lease of the building 2018-2020 Locust street for the Alva Realty Co., to the Mid-West Upholstering Co. The building is four stories high and contains 37,500 square feet of floor space.

MAYOR TO CALL MEETING ON REALTY ASSESSMENT CUT

Accepts Neun's Committee — To Meet President Dickmann and Others of Local Exchange

Mayor Miller yesterday told Bernard F. Dickmann, president of the Real Estate Exchange, that he would call a meeting of the conference committee of city officials and representatives of the Exchange, to discuss the question of reducing real estate assessments, within a short time.

The Mayor also decided who the city's representatives on the committee should be. He and President Neun of the Board of Aldermen each appointed a committee, and the Mayor now agrees that Neun's committee shall serve. His own committee, insofar as it differs in personnel from Neun's committee, will be held in reserve as an advisory body.

Dickmann, who desires a blanket reduction of 25 per cent in realty assessments throughout the city, appeared recently before the Board of Aldermen, when Mayor Miller was present, and asked for the appointment of a conference group. The Mayor replied that he would name the members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, who are himself, Comptroller Nolte and President Neun, also Richard Murphy, president of the Board of Education; Chief of Police Gerk, Director of Public Safety Steininger, Hospital Commissioner Lohr and Assessor Gehner. Neun, as presiding officer of the Board of Aldermen, held that he was entitled to appoint the committee, and named the Board of Estimate, Alderman Wimer and Alderman Neumann, chairmen of the Special Tax Committee and the Ways and Means Committee, respectively.

MRS. PAUL BROWN ACQUIRES CORN RESIDENCE ON LINDELL

The residence of Morris M. Corn at 5855 Lindell boulevard, opposite Forest Park, has been purchased by Mrs. Paul Brown, widow of Paul Brown, founder of the stock brokerage concern of Paul Brown & Co.

The price paid was withheld. Negotiations were handled by the Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co. in connection with Walter C. Haeussler of Paul Brown & Co.

The house, which is in the French chateau style, has six rooms and four baths on the second floor. The site has a frontage of 100 feet on Lindell by a depth of 530 feet extending the entire width of the Catlin tract, in which it is situated. Ground values on Lindell boulevard in the Catlin tract range from $250 to $300 a front foot.

MARYLAND-HANLEY RESIDENCE IS LEASED TO CHICAGOANS

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Adams have acquired a lease of a residence at Maryland and Hanley roads, in Clayton, through Mary Potter Love, Inc. The Studt-Wilson Co. represented the owner.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams, who are moving from Chicago to St. Louis, will take possession March 1.

HUNTLEIGH CITIZENS ACTIVE IN ROADSIDE BEAUTIFICATION

The village of Huntleigh, in line with the suggestion of the St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce and the Garden Club of St. Louis County, is among the foremost in the beautification of the sides of highways.

Clayton road west from the North and South road out to the Denny road will be made 40 feet wide, commencing in the near future, and the Denny road between the Clayton road and Manchester road, which now carries a 20-foot concrete slab, will be improved with 20 feet more of concrete.

Huntleigh citizens are now planning to plant ornamental trees, shrubs, honeysuckle vines and roses.

IT IS safe to say that many persons will turn to the Want Ads today and carefully scan the Lost and Found Columns to learn whether the articles they have lost are advertised as having been found.

Scores of other persons will compare the various Used Car Lists — in the Automobile Columns — to learn whether the make and model of the car they wish to purchase is advertised at the price they are willing to pay and they will find bargains.

So various groups of persons interested in the many different lines of advertising turn to these "want" pages to have their needs filled.

These readers find many more offers in the Post-Dispatch than appear in all of the other St. Louis newspapers and many readers go no farther in their search, which accounts for the greater responsiveness of Post-Dispatch "want" advertising.

When a Want Ad
Calls for a Family
Conference

It may relate to the purchase of a new car or a new home, to the sale of furniture displaced by new purchases or to getting a music teacher for Junior or the daughter. All of these come within the Post-Dispatch want ad field of successful want filling. If, by chance, the advertisements do not give the information desired, use a want ad to get it.

ARMS CONFERENCE PICKS HENDERSON FOR CHIEF POSTS

Briton Chosen Head of Political Commission, Defeating French Candidate, Titulescu of Rumania.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Feb. 27.—Organization today of the constituent commissions of the World Disarmament Conference greatly magnified the importance of the role of Arthur Henderson and thereby placed a curb on the dominance of France.

Henderson was elected president of the political commission which was formed on the insistence of Premier Andre Tardieu of France for the purpose of considering the French security proposals and other political questions. The former British Foreign Secretary won out over France's candidate, Nicholas Tituelescu, of Rumania.

The American delegates took a leading part in this choice and the Americans had a hand in electing delegates of four "neutral" states to head the political, military, naval and air commissions.

Henderson, who always has been a severe critic of the French thesis, now is president of the conference and of its three major organs.

French Maneuvering Fails.

After he had been chosen president of the conference, the French dlegates sought to place great authority in the conference bureau, and then the Briton was chosen to head this organization. Subsequently the French delegates, over the protest of the Americans, succeeded in depriving the bureau of what had been expected would be its dominant role by referring the determination of procedure to a general commission. Thereupon Henderson was elected president of the general commission and Tardieu moved to create a new commission to deal with political questions. Now the British delegate heads it.

Refuting reports that his health was about to force his retirement, Henderson asserted today that he was growing stronger daily. If it became necessary for him to retire, Nicholas Politis of Greece, an ally of France, would be left as chairman of both the general and the political commissions.

Prepares to Hear China's Appeal.

Preparations were going forward at the League of Nations Secretariat for the impending extraordinary session of the League Assembly. The belief was expressed that the United States and other non-League members would not be invited, although they may have observers present at Assembly committee sessions.

The Assembly probably will open with a speech by Dr. W. W. Yen, Chinese representative, setting forth the grounds for the Chinese appeal for the extraordinary meeting. Then there will be brief general debate. Subsequently the assembly probably will set up a large committee to draft a resolution expressing the assembly's attitude toward the Far Eastern conflict.

Japanese representatives here say their people at home are much concerned about the special session. The Chinese, apparently quite calm about the diplomatic situation, are elated at the news from the Shanghai front.

MOVIE ACTRESS TO APPEAR AT WELCOME INN BENEFIT

Helen Kane, moving picture actress, has volunteered to appear at the Welcome Inn benefit auction, which begins Tuesday night, and to take part in the entertainment.

The 2500 articles which are to be sold to the highest bidder were numbered yesterday so that those who plan to attend may take advance notes on items they wish to bid for. The articles are on display at the Glancy Building, Eighteenth street and Washington avenue, where the auction is to be held. Following the Tuesday night opening there will be sales Wednesday afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Nat Brown, general chairman, pointed out that all proceeds of the sale will go to Welcome Inn, which has been feeding 1200 families from its relief station beneath the Free Bridge.

SUES PATROLMAN AND WIFE

Mrs. Hazel Hess Says Pair Estranged Her Husband.

Mrs. Hazel Hess, 2819 Lafayette avenue, filed suit yesterday in Circuit Court for $50,000 damages against Mrs. Myrtle Muffler and her husband, Frank X. Muffler, a patrolman, 5510 Rhodes avenue. Mrs. Hess alleged they alienated the affections of her husband, Frank Hess, a Terminal Railroad engineer. She filed another suit asking for a divorce, alleging general indignities.

Her divorce petition stated she and Hess were married at St. Charles, on June 26, 1914, and separated last Wednesday. According to Mrs. Hess' attorneys, the law firm of Kreisman & Kirschner, she provided the funds and worked with her husband in the establishment of a hauling business, which it is alleged, later became bankrupt. Mrs. Muffler declined to comment. Neither of the other defendants could be reached.

ALLEGED NARCOTIC CHIEF HELD

Officers Listen in While He Tells Woman of Operations.

By the Associated Press.

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 27.—Charles McKeahen, termed the leader of a narcotic ring operating in Erie, Cleveland and Buffalo, N. Y., was held for the grand jury under $5000 bond today. McKeahen, operator of taxicabs here, was arrested last night by city, Federal and State officers. They said they listened in while he told a woman informant of his activities.

The officers quoted McKeahen as saying he brought narcotcs worth $480,000 from Canada last summer, and boastng that "I know some of the biggest shots in the business." John Charlie, alleged to be an accomplice of McKeahen, is under arrest, but police said they doubted there is sufficient evidence to hold him. Four other men, two of them cab drivers, were arrested, then released.

Crime Control Radio Talks by St. Louisan

GUY A. THOMPSON of St. Louis, president of the American Bar Association, will open a series of WJZ chain talks on crime control at 11:45 this forenoon. Thompson will speak from the KWK studios. His topic will be "The Lawyer's Relation to the Crime Problem." Attorney-General W. D. Mitchell will discuss "Federal as Distinguished from State Control of Crime" in the second of the series, set for March 6.

'Doug' and 'Mary' Broadcasts Planned

WEEKLY chain broadcasts by Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford are reported to be assured before long over the CBS network. Fairbanks' part of the programs will come from the South Sea Islands, it is said, while Mary Pickford will do her part in Los Angeles. . . . Charles Hackett, the opera tenor, and Bebe Daniels, movie actress, have signed radio contracts and probably will be broadcasting on sponsored programs soon. . . . The Associated Press reports that when Bing Crosby's twice-a-night broadcasts are consolidated into a single program over the CBS chain at 6:30, starting Tuesday, he will go on without a sponsor. Freddie Rich's orchestra will play with him. Crosby will broadcast Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday evenings instead of six nights a week. . . .

A Knights of Columbus fiftieth anniversary program is set for the night of March 29 on the WEAF chain. . . . Blossom Seeley, Benny Fields and Jack Haley are billed for the Broadway Thrills program on the CBS net at 7:45 p. m. Tuesday. . . . The International Review, in which Sam Lanin's orchestra and a "guest" will attempt to depict scenes in night clubs in various places in the world will open at 9:30 next Sunday night. . . .

School of the Air Program from London

AN address by Commander Stephen King-Hall on "The Changing British Empire" may be heard in the School of the Air program on KMOX and the CBS chain at 1:30 next Friday. It will come from the British Broadcasting Corporation studios in London. The speaker will deal especially with the recent Imperial Conference recognition of national status for the Dominions.

A quarter tone piano, which produces 24 tones to the octave, will be played by Hans Barth during a CBS chain concert next Sunday. Barth also will play the harpsichord and a modern piano during the program.

Early struggles of Alexander Graham Bell leading to the development of the telephone will be dramatized over the WEAF chain at 1 p. m. Thursday.

Only Because Set Was Selective

POSSIBLY the finest 'cello recital the writer has heard on the air was that by Alexandre Barjansky last Sunday night. It was the more interesting because the accompanist was Leo Ornstein, the pianist. KSD was unable to carry this recital, which was scheduled over the WEAF chain. Static was so bad that reception from WOW, WDAF and WEAF was ruined. The only other Mid-West station that broadcast the recital was WTAM. Fortunately, the one break in the ring of static surrounding St. Louis was in the direction of Cleveland and the writer's set was selective enough to bring in WTAM (1070 kc) without interference from KMOX. Owners of nonselective receivers miss many fine programs which are not carried by St. Louis stations.

Crooks in Tibbett's Place Tomorrow

RICHARD CROOKS, the tenor, will take Lawrence Tibbetts' place in the KSD program at 7:30 tomorrow night. Tibbetts will be singing at the Metropolitan Opera House. . . . Cliff Edwards, who "crooned" songs as "Ukelele Ike" before he won movie prominence, is to be featured over WIL at 6 o'clock tomorrow evening. He is appearing at a local theater. . . . Starting this week Sammy Watkins' orchestra from Memphis, Tenn., is to take Rudy Vallee's place in the late night NBC broadcasts. Vallee, who has been on vacation in California before his Broadway show goes on the road, will continue his Thursday night broadcasts over KSD and the WEAF chain from whatever city he happens to be playing. . . .

"The Mystery Girl" is to sing with George Jessel and Rubinoff Sunday night, March 13. It is intimated that the idea of calling her the "Mystery Girl" originated in the fact that her name "didn't mean anything" as she had done little or no public entertaining. . . . Russ and Lovina Gilbert, who have sung and played in the Cheerio morning broadcast for five years, now have their own program on the WEAF chain at 12:45 noon Fridays. They will continue with Cheerio. . . . The first of the Today and Yesterday broadcasts set for 7:30 Friday nights will go on the CBS chain this week, replacing the News Dramas. A feature will be the re-enacting of an event of the past suggested by some news happening of the day. A cast of actors with Coburn Goodwin as narrator; Gladys Britain, soprano; a quartet and an orchestra led by Don Voorhees, will take part. . . . The CBS chain is said to be planning to mitigate the flood of daytime household programs by spotting a number of singers and orchestras.

GRACE MOORE

SOPRANO of the Metropolitan Opera who is to sing over KSD at 4:30 this afternoon.

WGY Building New Transmitter

WGY, THE 50,000-watt station at Schenectady, N. Y., has started work on a new transmitter that will work with the same power, but probably will be capable of experimental broadcasting with power up to at least half a million watts, as is the new KDKA transmitter near Pittsburg, Pa. The main amplifier will consist of a 50-watt tube, then a push pull stage with two 250-watt tubes, and a final push pull stage using two or more giant tubes in parallel. The new transmitter is being built to improve the quality of WGY's broadcasting and for the benefit of the radio art.

CBS May Buy Back Stock From Paramount

MARTIN CODEL reports from Washington that the Columbia Broadcasting System, of which William Paley is president, is seriously considering buying back the 50 per cent of its stock which it sold to the Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corporation in June, 1929. Although the stock has been earning dividends, the directors of the movie corporation have been discussing its sale. Banking interests are known to be willing to take over the stock from Paramount and place it on the market. The CBS executives retained control and management. It was understood at the time that Paley and his associates received around $5,000,000 for the 50 per cent of the stock. Much of the price, however, was paid in Paramount stock.

As is the case with the National Broadcasting Co., the Columbia System owns a few stations, but mostly furnishes programs by wire from its New York and Chicago studios for broadcasting by stations in the chains. Most of these stations are independently owned and operated, merely using chain programs as a newspaper used the news dispatches of the Associated Press or the United Press.

A SIXTH National Radio Audition is announced for 1932. First place prizes will be $5000 for the youth and young woman rating highest in their groups. Other prizes will be as in previous years—money and scholarships. Any non-professional singer, aged between 18 and 25 years is eligible.

Roy F. Britton, president of the Automobile Club of Missouri, will be one of the speakers in a tax protest broadcast at 9:30 Wednesday night over the WEAF chain. Britton will go to Chicago to take part in the program with representatives of other Mid-western states.

Another National Radio Audition

The Schwarzmeier Children's choir of 50 voices will sing in a broadcast from Berlin over the WEAF chain next Sunday.

"Wired radio," long talked about in the United States, is a fact in Switzerland, where a system somewhat like one in Holland has been established. A switch on the telephone circuit enables subscribers in Basel, Berne, Geneva, Zurich, Chur and Lausanne to listen to Switzerland's two large broadcasting stations without owning radio sets.

The broadcasts are picked up at a central point and sent along the wires to a simple receiver in the home, which can be operated without interrupting ordinary use of the telephone. The charge is 2.50 francs, about 50 cents per month. With telephone service, the cost runs about $2.17 per month. The Swiss Telegraph and Telephone Administration is exploiting this new service with a view to securing more telephone subscribers.

Trade Notes

Radio Trade Association Annual Election Wednesday.

The annual election of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association will be held at a dinner meeting at 6:15 next Wednesday evening at Hotel Kingsway. Candidates nominated for directors are: Walter Tiemann, Dan Hyland, N. E. Hill, John F. Meyn, Arthur C. Brandt, Otto A. Buder and Roger Putnam. There will be an attendance prize.

New Clarion Receivers.

Introduction of new Clarion receivers is reported by Otto E. Heilman, factory representative. Among them is a nine-tube superheterodyne short and broadcast wave set designed for use without having to change coils.

The line includes six-tube superheterodyne mantel and console sets and seven-tube receivers in both styles of cabinet.

There is also a 10-tube de luxe set with phonograph attachment and a six-leg highboy cabinet.

"Comet" All-Wave Receiver.

A new all-wave Hammerlund-Roberts set called the "Comet" is reported by Jules W. Beneke, factory representative. This tunes from 15 to 550 meters, and has a superheterodyne chassis designed for unusual selectivity and distance range. The cabinet is of Oriental burl walnut.

Trade Notes

Radio Trade Association Annual Election Wednesday.

The annual election of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association will be held at a dinner meeting at 6:15 next Wednesday evening at Hotel Kingsway. Candidates nominated for directors are: Walter Tiemann, Dan Hyland, N. E. Hill, John F. Meyn, Arthur C. Brandt, Otto A. Buder and Roger Putnam. There will be an attendance prize.

New Clarion Receivers.

Introduction of new Clarion receivers is reported by Otto E. Heilman, factory representative. Among them is a nine-tube superheterodyne short and broadcast wave set designed for use without having to change coils.

The line includes six-tube superheterodyne mantel and console sets and seven-tube receivers in both styles of cabinet.

There is also a 10-tube de luxe set with phonograph attachment and a six-leg highboy cabinet.

"Comet" All-Wave Receiver.

A new all-wave Hammerlund-Roberts set called the "Comet" is reported by Jules W. Beneke, factory representative. This tunes from 15 to 550 meters, and has a superheterodyne chassis designed for unusual selectivity and distance range. The cabinet is of Oriental burl walnut.

IN MEMORIAM

BAUMANN—In memory of my dear husband, Emil J. Baumann, who died March 2, 1931:
Sweet and peaceful be his rest,
Forget him, I can never,
God called him, He alone knows best,
His will be done forever.
LOVING WIFE, MOTHER AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

BOWER-HINGHAUS—In loving memory of Blanche Hinghaus-Bower, who departed this life March 1, 1925, and her son, Bobby, who died March 10, 1925.
Sadly missed by her MOTHER AND SISTER.

BRINNER—In loving memory of my dear husband and our father, Henry Brinner, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 27.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's worried troubles are past;
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and true in heart and mind,
Beautiful memories he left behind.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

CELLA—In loving remembrance of our dear daddy, Anthony J. Cella, who departed this life Feb. 25, 1927:
In our home he is fondly remembered,
Sweet memories cling to his name.
Those who loved him in life sincerely
Still love him in death just the same.
Sadly missed by
HIS WIFE, MRS. MAMIE CELLA, AND LOVING CHILDREN.

DOERNER—In sad and loving memory of my dear husband, Charles A. Doerner, who passed away two years ago, March 2, 1930:
Gone, but not forgotten,
Nor will you ever be,
For as long as life and memories last
I will always think of thee.
LOVING WIFE, MARY.

IN MEMORIAM

DRUMM—In loving memory of James J. Drumm, who departed this life Feb. 28, 1931:
A year full of tears, lonely and blue;
Life is so empty without you;
A wonderful husband, a pal of my heart,
A loving daddy, life's dearest part;
Your memory cherished, you lived not in vain.
Our dearest possession bearing your name.
Death did not sever the broken hearts it left,
For you were ours and we remember, though all the world forgets.
Sadly missed by
HIS WIFE, ANNA DRUMM, AND CHILDREN.

DUFFNER—In memory of our beloved husband and father, Henry A. Duffner, who passed away Feb. 19, 1928.
WIFE AND FAMILY.

EBERLIN—In loving memory of Gertrude Eberlin, who departed this life March 1, 1928. Sadly missed by GANDER—Christina. In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away Feb. 27 1931.

Sadly missed by CHILDREN.

GOEBEL—In loving memory of Christina Goebel, who passed away March 1, 1931.
Her memory is as dear today
As in the hour she passed away.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND FAMILY.

GRAFEMAN—In loving memory of our darling Myrtle who departed this life Feb. 23, 1923:
There's a face that is loving as ever.
There's a voice that we're longing to hear,
There's a smile we'll remember forever
Though we try to forget every tear.
There's a sad but sweet remembrance,
There's a memory fond and true,
There's a token of love, our dear Myrtle,
And heartaches all for you.
Sadly missed by HER PARENTS.

HACKER—In memory of my beloved husband and our father, William Hacker, who passed away 11 years ago, Feb. 21, 1921.
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen,
His heart was the truest in all the wide world.
His love the best to recall,
For no one on earth can take his place,
He is still the dearest of all.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

HELLE—In memory of our dear mother, Magdelena Helle, who passed away March 3, 1930:
Two years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away,
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
Sadly missed by
A. HELLE AND FAMILY. (c)

JOHNSON—In loving memory of my dear wife, Sarah E. Johnson, who departed this life Feb. 27, 1930.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND THOSE WHO LOVED HER.

KERN—Anna L., who departed this life March 2, 1930:
Time speeds on, two years have passed
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will;
Her vacant place there's none to fill;
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.
JOHN KERN AND FAMILY.

KRIEG—In loving memory of our dear son, Charles Krieg, who died one year ago, Feb 26:
One year has passed since that sad day
When you, dear one, were called away.
Sadly missed by

His memory is as dear today,
As in the hour he passed away.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND SON.

ZIMMERMANN—In loving memory of our darling Jeanette Zimmermann, who passed away March 2, 1930:
Faith within the heavenly harbor,
Sweetly may she rest;
Though we loved her very dearly,
Jesus loved her best.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS, SISTER AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

EVENING,

DEMPSEY'S EXHIBITION IN ST. LOUIS CALLED OFF

By W. J. McGoogan.

Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, will not box the exhibition here March 31, for which he had been scheduled by Kid Bandy and Tom Packs, at The Arena.

The contract which Leonard Sacks, manager of Dempsey, forwarded to Packs was not approved by Seneca C. Taylor, State Athletic Commissioner for the eastern district, and was returned to Sacks by Bandy and Packs with the notation that they could not handle the performance under the conditions.

Sacks, in a telephone conversation from Chicago with the Post-Dispatch, said that the agreement which he drew up and sent to Packs was the same under which Dempsey had worked in all of his many other appearances in many states, and which had been accepted by every commission under whose jurisdiction Dempsey appeared.

Wanted Limit on Passes.

The contract contained stipulations that there was to be no decision rendered by the referee or the judges; that the gloves were to be furnished by Sacks; that Sacks would have the privilege of voicing an opinion as to whether the supporting card was satisfactory, and that the number of passes would be limited to 300, with the proviso that in the event it proved necessary to issue free tickets, Sacks would split the cost with the promoters of such additional tickets up to 200.

In explanation, Sacks declared that he had discussed the no-decision angle with Taylor when he made a visit to St. Louis recently and that Taylor had agreed to that stipulation. This Taylor denied. Sacks said the gloves he proposed to furnish cost three times as much as ordinary gloves and the only reason he insisted upon furnishing them was that they are made especially for Dempsey's hands. He declared that the gloves would be put into the commission's hands in advance for examination.

Appeared in Kansas City.

Sacks said it seemed strange that Taylor would take the view that the proposed agreement was contrary to the Missouri law when Dempsey already had appeared in Kansas City under a similar agreement and that Ben Harrison, secretary of the Missouri commission, had invited him to appear in Springfield, Mo., to box under the same conditions.

As to that Taylor said he could not control what went on in other parts of the State, but that he makes an effort to live up to the law and to the regulations of the commission and that he would not permit Sacks to came into St. Louis

SPORTS ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH SECTION

PART EIGHT. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 28, 1932. PAGES 1—4F

EVENING, A FILLY, CAPTURES $10,000 FLORIDA DERBY

BEATS CATHOP BY 5 LENGTHS; TROMBONE IS A CLOSE THIRD

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—Evening, owned and bred by George D. Widener at his Erdenheim Farm near Philadelphia, reached the peak of her career when she smashed her way to a glorious victory in the rich Florida Derby, outstanding event of the Miami Jockey Club's 39-day meeting, which ended here today. The largest crowd of the season, including contingents from Cuba, New Orleans and Northern points, let out a mighty roar as the daughter of St. James-Crepuscule, with Bobby Leischmann in the saddle, swept past the pagoda pole a winner by five lengths.

Cathop Gets Place.

Cathop, half-brother of Mike Hall, owned by R. M. Eastman, Chicago publisher, made a valiant effort for the West, sticking his head in front of G. W. Ogle's Trombone in the closing stride to take the place position. Bay Angon was a well-beaten fourth. Lucky Tom and Renaissance, J. J. Robinson's highly regarded invaders from New Orleans, never figured seriously. Lucky Tom, with which Robinson declared to win, acted fractious at the barrier and was placed on the outside. He finished last. Renaissance was fifth.

It was Evening's fifth consecutive victory in Florida. It was a popular victory, the filly ruling a close favorite at $5.60 for $2. She ran the mile and a furlong in the fast time of 1:50 4-5, a fifth of a second off Lightning Bolt's record, under 113 pounds, without being fully extended.

Race Worth $9725 to Owner.

Evening's victory was worth $9725 to her owner, who is a nephew of Joseph E. Widener. Jack Joyner, trainer in chief for the stable, received a loving cup in the stewards' stand after the running. Evening is not eligible for the Louisiana Derby.

The start was good and Bay Angon dashed to the front in the run to the first turn. Cathop was shuffled back, but recovered entering the back stretch. Evening's high speed asserted itself as the field straightened out for the run up the back side, and she drew into a good lead, with Renaissance, Trombone and Cathop on her trail. Through the stretch Evening was just toying with her opposition and Leischmann looked back. Trombone held on surprisingly well as Cathop made a strong finish to take the runner-up position in the final stride.

A total of $319,296 was wagered during the day, a record daily handle for the meeting.

How They Have Grown.

BALKLINE billiards hasn't much of a vogue among the casual players of the game today, but that it is constantly developing more and better experts, even among the amateurs, is evident from the statistics.

This writer and many followers of billiards who hark back to the days of these old masters, Ives and Schaefer, the "fathers of balkline," will recall that a grand average of 30 for a tournament was almost unheard of. Later, with the advent of Hoppe and the international expansion of the game, this improved somewhat. Nevertheless, for about 17 years so few players knew the balkline game in its upper ranges that Hoppe remained in a class almost alone for 16 years.

After that time the rise of great players of national and international fame began and Hoppe became just one of a number of great cue celebrities. Schaefer and other stars have outdone him in high grand average, high single average, high run and even in his own "championship game" of 18-inch balkline, with one shot "in."

Amateurs Excel, Today.

EVEN more astonishing has been the rise of the amateurs. St. Louis 25 or 30 years ago had three amateur players of national note—Wayman McCrea-

Cards' Hurlers Ready For Hitters, Street Says, Orders a Sunday Off

By J. Roy Stockton.

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 27.—Gabby Street's Cardinal battery men finished their first week of spring training this afternoon and the Old Sergeant was so well pleased with the condition of his athletes that he declared a holiday for tomorrow and announced that he had never seen pitchers take longer strides toward physical fitness in one week.

"We're ready for the hitters," Street said after the second workout of the day. "Many of our infielders and outfielders will arrive in camp Monday and we're all set to give them batting practice as soon as they can put on uniforms. Of course, I wouldn't think of letting Haines pitch just yet, but I wouldn't hesitate to let every other hurler in camp take his turn on the mound right now.

"The weather has been perfect for training, and I can say that the Cardinals are further advanced than they were last year after one week, and last year our pitching staff left Florida prepared to win more than 100 games in the National League race. Of course, the young pitchers have advanced more rapidly than the older men. But so many of the youngsters are in shape that we could actually start our exhibitions now, as far as our mound staff is concerned."

Hurlers Get Leg Work.

Street gave his pitchers their first outfield work this afternoon. They spent the morning session in pepper games and throwing to catchers and running around the park, but after lunch the Old Sergeant had them shagging flies.

That is one of his favorite conditioning stunts. He lines up three or four pitchers in each field and a batter is assigned to each group. The Old Sergeant takes personal charge of one group, which includes men he wants to watch particularly. Then the men are chased to the left and to the right. The fungo hitter tries to make the pitcher run as far as possible, and any time the ball is caught, the fungo hitter feels that he has been too lenient. And regardless of whether the man has any chance to make the catch, he must try for it as though a world series depended on the fly. And if anybody tries to loaf, the Old Sergeant reverts back to the old army days and the old army vocabulary.

Main Squad Due Tomorrow.

Joel Hunt, the young outfielder who is conceded a good chance to gain a place on the roster this year, reached camp today and all infielders and outfielders who are not holdouts or who have not been excused will be in uniform by Monday afternoon.

Baseball Games On Air Six Days A Week This Year

THREE radio stations will broadcast the Cardinals' home ball games six days a week during the 1932 season, President Sam Breadon of the club announced last night. Saturday games will be broadcast this year.

The same three stations that put the games on the air previously—KMOX, WIL and KWK—will broadcast during the coming season.

Arrangements for broadcasting of the Browns' games at Sportsman's Park are in the hands of Vice President L. C. McEvoy, who is out of the city, Owner Phil Ball said last night.

BOB FISKE OF ST. LOUIS SETS SKATING RECORD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Bob Fiske, youthful St. Louis skating star, set a new world's record this afternoon in winning the semifinal heat of the junior boys' 880-yard race of the Western Open Indoor Championships at the Stadium here.

In winning the event young Fiske skated the half mile in one minute 26 1-5 seconds, and 1 2-5 seconds faster than the mark set by Clayton Burnett at Chicago. Fiske defeated Leo Fleisinger, the national champion, in this heat.

Charleen Power Wins.

Charleen Power of St. Louis won the class A 440-yard dash for women when she defeated Jean Wilson of Toronto and Dorothy Franey of St. Paul, Minn., in 46.4 seconds. Helen Bina and Kit Klein, Olympic stars, fell.

Charleen Power tied for the Western Championships with Leila Brooks Potter of Toronto, when Miss Potter won the three-quarter mile final. Each scored 30 points.

Vernon Goldstein, also of St. Louis, defeated his teammate, Ted Young, for first place in the class C senior half mile. Howard Robinson qualified for the event, but he failed to finish. Goldstein's time for the distance was 1 minute 28.8 seconds.

Lamar Ottsen was the only St. Louisan to reach the final in the 500 meters, senior class A race, racing second to Eddie Stundl of Chicago, but he fell on one of the turns in the final. The race ultimately was won by Frank Stack of Winnipeg, Stundl coming in third behind Mel Johnson of Detroit.

All three St. Louis intermediate boys qualified for the intermediate half-mile finals. They were Truman Connell, James Mackey and Jerry Cohen.

VENZKE BREAKS ANOTHER WORLD TRACK RECORD

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Gene Venzke of Pottstown, Pa., tonight set a new world's indoor record for 1500 meters in the Knights of Columbus games at Madison Square Garden. Venzke's time of 3 minutes 53 2-5 seconds for the classic Olympic distance shattered both Lloyd Hahn's American indoor record of 3:55 4-5 and Ray Conger's record of 3:55 outdoors.

Venzke, who 10 days ago established a new world record of 4 minutes 10 seconds for the indoor mile, eclipsed the 1500 mark just as easily as his admirers had anticipated. Taking it easy until more than half the distance had been covered, he moved into second place five laps from home and did not take the lead until two laps from the finish, when he swept past Frank Crowley of Manhattan College and won going away.

Crowley finished second, 35 yards behind Venzke, barely beating out Frank Nordell, New York University sophomore, who was third. Conger, holder of the outdoor record for the event, was fourth, while Leo Lermond of New York A. C. was fifth and E. F. Cahalan of Boston A. A., sixth.

World Outdoor Mark Stands.

Although Venzke's time eclipsed all recognized records for this country, it fell short of the listed world's outdoor record of 3 minutes 51 seconds held by Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany.

With Leo Lermond setting the pace, the first quarter pole was passed in the fast time of 60 1-5 seconds. They passed the half-mile post in 2:06 4-5, with Lermond still holding doggedly to the lead. At the three-quarters pole Nordell had forged to the point in 3:14, with Venzke in second place.

Two laps from the finish, Venzke made his bid. Giving everything

Five Players in Browns' Squad Going South Today; Practice Begins Tuesday

By James M. Gould.

With a very small squad and without the fanfare usually attendant upon the departure for the South of a pennant-contender, the Browns' first spring squad pulls out for West Palm Beach, Fla., this afternoon. This group, augmented by Pitcher Dick Coffman at Atlanta and by the remainder of the pitchers and catchers at Jacksonville, the St. Louis contingent will arrive at the training ground Tuesday morning and begin work that afternoon.

In the squad leaving here will be Business Manager Bill Friel, Traveling Secretary Willis Johnson, Trainer Tommy Bramell, Pitchers Blaeholder, Kimsey and Florid, the latter a Wichita Falls player, and Infielders Storti and Jimmy McLaughlin.

Blaeholder Signs Contract.

Blaeholder arrived in the city Thursday night, held a brief conference yesterday over his contract and signed up with little hesitation. Blaeholder is said to have received a cut instead of an increase this year and his hesitation over signing may have been dissipated by the flashing of his four-year record with the Browns, which shows that he has won 46 and lost 58 games.

There will be no "second squad" to go from here this year, as all the infielders and outfielders, due to report a week from Tuesday, have been ordered to go direct from their homes. Manager Killefer has been on the camp ground now for several days and, in a wire to club officials, reports that the park is in fine shape, the new hotel satisfactory and everything ready for the serious work which will be necessary to transform the Browns into a flag contender.

McNeely Goes to Milwaukee.

The Browns will have plenty of time to get in condition before they are called upon to play exhibition games. Their schedule of such contests has been skeletonized this spring and their first game is with the Buffalo club of the International League at West Palm Beach on March 19.

Announcement was made yesterday that Outfielder Earl McNeely had been released outright to the Milwaukee club of the American Association. McNeely came to the Browns from Washington with Pitcher Dick Coffman in October, 1927, in a deal which sent Pitcher Milt Gaston to the Senators.

Hoyt Gets Chance With Brooklyn

By the Associated Press.

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 27.—Waite Hoyt, former Athletic and Yankee hurler, has accepted the terms offered by Brooklyn, Manager Max Carey announced here today.

Carey said he expected Hoyt to strengthen the team considerably. He would not discuss the terms which Hoyt accepted.

VALLEY TRACK ATHLETES LEAD FAR WEST TEAM

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 27.—The team representing the Missouri Valley against the Los Angeles Athletic Club in dual competition at the twenty-seventh annual Kansas City Athletic Club indoor track carnival here tonight took a 23-22 lead over the Westerners after five of the 10 events were completed.

The Midwest team cleaned up in the half-mile run and went ahead by taking all three places in that event, won by Asher of Nebraska. Nagel of Iowa State was second and Brown of Kansas State Teachers' College of Pittsburg, third.

Ed Dunkin, one of the speed twins from Brownwood, Tex., representing the University of Missouri, won the feature event for Big Six schools, the Shannon Douglass Cup race at 600 yards, which is a test between quarter and half-milers. Dunkin defeated Bob Ostergard of Nebraska, and Clifford Mell, the University of Oklahoma track team captain, who won the trophy from Ostergard at the carnival last year. Mell was third tonight.

JAPANESE DAVIS CUP TENNIS TEAM NAMED

TOKIO, Feb. 27.—The Japanese Lawn Tennis Association today named Jiro Sato, Ryuki Miki and Takao Kuwabara to represent this country in 1932 Davis Cup play.

Sato is the only one of the three with Davis Cup experience. He has just completed a series of tournaments in Australia and now is on his way to Europe.

Miki, long a resident of London, has competed in the Wimbledon tournament, but this is his first Davis Cup assignment. Kuwabara, who graduated from Kobe College last year, was ranked No. 1 in Japan for 1931, Sato and Miki being unranked because of their absence from the country.

Score at end of half: Washington 14, Concordia 14. Time of periods: 20 minutes. Referee—Pete Thorne, Wabash.

By James M. Gould.

The city collegiate basketball championship will be decided next Thursday when St. Louis U. and Washington U. play off the tie at the Field House. The Bears remained in the running for the title by defeating Concordia, 39 to 19, last night at the Field House, before a crowd of 1500.

Washington was played on even terms for the first half, both teams scoring 14 points, but in the second period the Bears ran wild to count 25 points while Concordia was held to one field goal and three free throws. Incidentally, the last point of the contest was counted by Captain Billy Rueter, who was awarded the try for the free throw on Bob Mautz's foul. It was a fitting climax for Rueter, who, with Bob Etzler, closed their careers as members of the Preachers' five.

The crowd enjoyed the game immensely as the play was rough at times, but interesting throughout, especially when the Preachers were holding the pre-game favorites in the first half. The commanding lead that Washington obtained in the last 20 minutes permitted Coach Don White to use all 11 members of the Bears' squad. Coach Al Oehlers of Concordia sent in eight players.

Herb Steideman led the Bears in scoring with four field goals and a free throw, while John Herzog was high for Concordia with two field goals and three free throws for seven points.

As a result of the game Washington has three victories and one defeat, as has St. Louis University, and Concordia finished the city series in last place with no victories in four games.

In a preliminary game, the St. Louis University Freshmen team defeated the Washington University Freshmen, 30 to 15, for the second time this season.

MICHIGAN SWIMMERS SET INTERCOLLEGIATE 300-YARD MEDLEY MARK

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 27.—The University of Michigan medley relay swimming team bettered the national intercollegiate record for the 300-yard medley tonight by doing the distance in 3:06 1-5. The old record of 3:09 was made by Northwestern at St. Louis Feb. 21, 1929. The Michigan time compares to the national record of 3:05 2-5, made by the Illinois A. C. in 1928.

The Michigan swimmers defeated Minnesota, 53 to 22, in tonight's dual meet, taking seven of eight first places.

PERKINS UNABLE TO PLAY, TITLE GOES TO GOODWIN

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 27.—Tommy Goodwin, youthful Monroe, N. Y., golfer, was crowned Dixie amateur golf tournament champion without playing a hole today.

His opponent, T. Philip Perkins, former British amateur champion, is in a hospital with wounds suffered early in the day in a holdup of the Embassy Club here.

Tournament officials held that Perkins had defaulted after his physicians ruled he would not be able to enter links competition again for at least a month. A plan to play the scheduled 36-hole round final match of the tournament later had been considered but was abandoned when Perkins' physician made his announcement.

PITCHER BENGE COMES TO TERMS WITH PHILS

By the Associated Press.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., Feb. 27.—Ray Benge has come to terms with the Phillies, Business Manager Gerald P. Nugent announced today, and will sign his 1932 contract when he arrives here from Huntsville, Tex., to begin training next week.

With Benge signed, every member of the pitching and catching staffs will be in line. The righthander won 14 games for the Phils last season and lost 18. He had an excellent earned run average.

FLYERS PLAY AT ARENA TUESDAY AND SATURDAY

Two games are on the schedule for the St. Louis Hockey Club this week, both of them to be played at The Arena. The Flyers meet Chicago Tuesday and Tulsa Saturday evening.

With their chances for getting into the playoffs becoming slimmer, every game is of the utmost importance, for with Duluth four points ahead and Tulsa only four points behind St. Louis, it behooves the Flyers to score some victories. They have only nine games left to play, seven at home and two on the road. To finish in the first three they would have to win most of those contests.

The team is in such a deplorable scoring slump that it is hard to predict that it will do anything for in the last 13 games of which it has won only one, while losing nine and tying three, the Flyers have scored but seven goals to 26 for the opposition.

In seven of the games the St. Louis club was scoreless and in only one did they count more than once and on that occasion one of their goals was awarded by use of a rule infraction by the opposing team.

It has been announced that Tuesday night will be "Ladies Night" with women being admited free, while Saturday children under 16 years of age are to be admitted without charge.

Harry S. Taber, president of the club, announced that negotiations looking to the purchase of the team by a Chicago man and some St. Louisans have progressed during the past few days when an attorney representing Perry Smithers, Chicago, was here for conferences with Taber. The attorney returned to Chicago last night and said that he probably would make an announcement within the next few days.

AMERICAN-OWNED HORSES WIN IN TWO ENGLISH RACE FEATURES

By the Associated Press.

MANCHESTER, England, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Marshall Field's Quarter Session, quoted at 7 to 4, today won the Egerton Handicap hurdle race over two and one-half miles. The American-owned jumper defeated F. Usher's Gowan Lodge by three lengths. Nine ran.

By the Associated Press.

KEMPTON, England, Feb. 27.—John Hay Whitney's American silks scored another victory over the English turf today when Long Eagle, favorite at 2 to 1, won the Novices' Chase and £200. The winner defeated F. Schlesinger's Laminaria by two lengths.

SUGAR CREEKS BEAT CAPE GIRARDEAU TEACHERS BY ONE POINT

By the Associated Press.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Feb. 27.—The Sugar Creeks, St. Louis independent basketball team, barely nosed out the Cape Girardeau Teachers here tonight, 21 to 20, in the final game of the year for the Teachers' quintet.

EDINBURGH, Feb. 27.—Ireland defeated Scotland in an international rugby football match at Murrayfield today, by 28—8.

Redbirds' "Farm" Clubs to Play in Houston Tourney

PHIL G. BARTELME, assistant business manager of the Cardinals, departs tonight for Houston, Tex., where he will be in charge of the training activities of three of the Cardinals' "farm" clubs—Houston, Rochester and Columbus. These are the principal teams in the Redbirds' minor league organization.

The three clubs will play in a round robin tournament, starting March 11 and ending March 29. Fifteen contests will be played. It is probable that a cup will go to the club owning the best percentage at the close. Columbus and Rochester are Class AA teams, while Houston is in Class A.

CARD'S HURLERS READY FOR HITTERS TOMORROW, GABBY STREET SAYS

Charley Gelbert are the only players who are expected to be missing when the squad assembles then. Hafey and Gelbert are considered stubborn holdouts, while Frisch, though he has expressed dissatisfaction with his new contract, calling for the first salary cut of his long and brilliant major league career, has stated that he expects no trouble in reaching an agreement after his contemplated conference with the club officials.

Ray Blades, an outfielder, suffered an attack of appendicitis today and was ordered to bed by Dr. Robert Hyland, the club surgeon. Dr. Hyland said he did not anticipate the necessity of an operation, but wanted to keep Blades under observation for several days.

CLEVELAND HIGH SECOND IN RIFLE EVENT AT KEMPER

BOONVILLE, Mo., Feb. 27.—University of Iowa won the Kemper Military School basic R. O. T. C. rifle tournament championship here today, scoring 716. Kemper was seconw with 713 points and the University of Missouri third with 707 points.

Kemper won last year's meet when Iowa was second.

University of Wichita defeated the University of Missouri, 396 to 395 points for first place on the girls' division, making the second year in which the Kansans defeated the Tiger marksmen by one point for the championship. University of Oklahoma was third, scoring 386 points.

Winners in the high school division were East High of Kansas City, 739 points, first; Cleveland High of St. Louis, 714, second, and Lathrop High of Kansas City, 707, third.

Forty-five teams, including 300 marksmen, took part in the tournament.

Iowa won the advanced R. O. T. C. meet, scoring 733 points. Nebraska was second with 729 and Washington (St. Louis) third with 700 points.

Poepsels Play Newmans.

The Poepsels and Newmans start a series of three games for the St. Teresa Soccer League championship at Fairground No. 4 this morning. Play starts at 10 o'clock, with "Bull" Brannigan as referee.

GRIFFITHS TO BOX PETERSON

DAVENPORT, Ia., Feb. 27.—Gerald A. (Tuffy) Griffiths, Sioux City heavyweight, and Big Boy Peterson of New Orleans were matched today for a ten-round bout here, March 10.

Rockhurst Quits State Conference

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 27.—Rockhurst College of Kansas City today formally withdrew from membership in the Missouri State Conference, effective at the end of the present scholastic year.

It was indicated at a meeting of conference officials that Kemper Military School of Boonville will rejoin the conference. It withdrew last fall because of inequality of competitive conditions with Rockhurst, the only four-year college in the circuit.

Rockhurst has dominated athletics in the conference, particularly football and basketball. Its defection makes Rockhurst a free lance in athletics.

The present members are Wentworth Military Academy, Chillicothe Business College and St. Paul's College of Concordia. The membership may be increased to include some junior colleges now affiliated with the Missouri Junior College Conference.

INTER-CLUB MATCHES SOUGHT FOR BOXING TOURNEY ON MARCH 8

Inter-club bouts featuring boxers who starred in the recent Mississippi Valley A. A. senior championships are sought by Matchmaker Willie Miller as special attractions on the program for an amateur boxing tournament to be held at the South Broadway Athletic Club on Tuesday night, March 8.

Return engagements between Freddy Willen of the South Broadway team and Farrell Moore of the E-K Athletic Club, semi-finalists in the lightweight events of the recent valley meet; Earl Taylor of the E-K squad, and Eddie Edson of the National A. A., finalists in the middleweight competition, are two of the events Miller hopes to arrange for the South Side tourney.

Irwin Streibel, newly crowned senior heavyweight champion; Tony Viviano, former senior flyweight titleholder, who was dethroned in the recent contention, and Joe "Peanuts" Borich, runner-up to Victor Giamarino in the senior featherweight final, are other candidates for special bouts on the South Broadway program.

The preliminary events are open to registered amateur boxers of every weight division. Entry blanks may be obtained on application at the South Broadway gym, 2301 South Seventh boulevard.

DEMPSEY'S EXHIBITION HERE IS CALLED OFF

and usurp the duties of the commissioner and the promoter.

Packs could not be reached for a statement. Bandy stated that he had conferred with Packs at the time the contract reached him and they had come to the conclusion that they would not be able to handle the performance with a profit to themselves. Bandy said the contract contained a further stipulation that Dempsey was to receive 50 per cent of 95 per cent of the gross receipts, which would not leave the promoters enough margin to operate profitably.

Dempsey has been on his present tour through the middle West for some weeks now and has been drawing capacity crowds everywhere he showed. He lost a bout to King Levinsky at Chicago recently, in the opinion of newspapermen at the ringside, and on that occasion the Stadium housed the biggest gathering ever to see an indoor fight—23,322 paid.

After that setback Dempsey appeared in Louisville, Ky., and drew another throng to his four-round exhibition with Frankie Wine.

PURDUE BEATS WISCONSIN, ADDS TO BIG TEN LEAD

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 27.—Purdue's basketball team won another lap in the race for the Western Conference championship here tonight, defeating Wisconsin, 28 to 21, in a hard-fought game.

By its victory, Purdue went definitely ahead of Northwestern, idle tonight. The Boilermakers played like champions to win, although the Badgers spurted twice to make the game interesting.

Johnny Wooden, the scoring guard, again led in the point getting, finding the basket for five field goals and two free throws, despite sensational guarding by diminutive Lary Steen, Badger captain.

After getting a safe lead, the Boilermakers played cautiously during the last five minutes. Each team had 14 chances to score from the free-throw line.

Minnesota Noses Out Illinois Quintet, 27-26.

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 27.—The team which all but wrecked Minnesota's drive at the Big Ten basketball championship was forced to pay the penalty tonight as the Gophers fought to a 27-to-26 victory over Illinois.

The game, in which the lead shifted several times, entered the final three minutes of play with the Gophers starting a stall on a three-point margin and nosing out ahead.

Michigan Defeats Iowa Five, 35 to 27

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 27.—Michigan defeated the University of Iowa basketball quintet, 35 to 27, tonight. Two Michigan scoring aces, Daniels and Weiss, accounted for nine of the visitors' 13 field goals, making eight in the first period. The Wolverines started strong and were never headed, although Iowa once pulled up, 27 to 28, in the last four minutes of the game.

Chicago Drops Listless Game to Ohio State

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 27.—Ohio State finished on the long end of a 40-31 score in a listless Big Ten game with Chicago here tonight. The Buckeyes led, 23 to 14, at half time.

Ohio took an early lead and had things its own way for the first 10 minutes, during which Chicago failed to score a point. Both teams were ragged and seemed to be uncertain as to what to do with the ball when they had it.

FORMER TULANE STAR TO COACH JOHN CARROLL

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 27.—Harry Glover, backfield star for Tulane University last fall, today was appointed assistant football and head basketball coach of John Carroll University.

Glover, a senior at Tulane, will not graduate until June. He will begin his duties here next September.

Head Football Coach Ralph Vince said Glover would devote his attention to the backfield.

In addition, Joe Forshaw has announced, large contingents of skaters will be here from Chicago and Detroit.

Ossian Blomquist, Finnish star, has sent in his entry, while other entries are to be solicited by Forshaw in Chicago, where a big meet has been in progress.

Among the women entrants are Kit Klein, Buffalo, who won the 1500-meter event in the Olympic games; Jean Wilson, Toronto, Canada; Henlen Bina and Elizabeth Dubois, Chicago.

Notes From the Training Camps

Yankees' Manager Says His Pitchers Are Well Advanced—Heine Meine Still a Holdout—Babe Phelps Accepts Brooklyn Terms.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 27.—At the end of the first week of practice, Joe McCarthy, New York Yankees' manager, says he is satisfied with the progress his first squad has made. "These pitchers are as well advanced as they should be for the other players when the entire squad settles down to work on Monday," Joe said. "We have had a much better start than we had a year ago."

Second Pirate Squad in Camp.

By the Associated Press.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., Feb. 27.—Veterans and rookies shook hands tonight as the second squad of the Pittsburg Pirates got into camp. Tomorrow the long drills will begin in earnest, with the infielders and the outfielders joining the batterymen in the workouts. No word has been received from the only holdouts, Pitchers Meine and Swetonic.

Tigers Take Hikes.

By the Associated Press.

RICHARDSON SPRINGS, Cal., Feb. 27.—The Detroit Tigers will complete their 10-day preliminary training period here Monday and move to Palo Alto, where the first batting and fielding practice of the season will be started. All the Tigers did at Richardson Springs was get their legs into condition by hikes, baths and running.

Athletics in Good Shape.

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 27.—There wasn't a charley horse in camp today as the Athletics wound up their first week of training for the 1932 pennant campaign and Connie Mack was all smiles as he expressed his satisfaction with the progress made. A pair of rookies, Pitcher Wilbur Dumford and Catcher Eddie Madjeski, were another source of satisfaction to the old master as he looked over the outfit.

Connally Gives Indians' Curves.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—The ambitious rookies took a back seat for the oldest member of the Cleveland hurling staff today. Encouraged by a warm sun, George Connally of rubber arm fame, threw the first curves of the Indians' training season. He also zipped across his fast ball and pronounced his arm in great shape.

Three More Join Brooklyn.

By the Associated Press.

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 27.—The Brooklyn Dodgers had three more men in uniform today. Babe Phelps, the big pitcher, who has just come to terms with the club but has not yet signed his contract, joined the squad along with Murray Howell, an outfielder up from Hartford. Charley Moore, who managed Hartford last season, got into action as a catcher.

White Sox Play Ball.

By the Associated Press.

MINERAL WELLS, Tex., Feb. 27.—Manager Lew Fonseca today curtailed the Chicago White Sox mineral bath program in favor of some old-fashioned baseball practice. Baths and hiking were to have been the major features of the conditioning program, but the athletes wanted baseball, so Fonseca accommodated them.

Cubs' Infield Works Out.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA CATALINA ISLAND, Cal., Feb. 27.—What may be the regular Chicago Cub infield this season was given its first workout by Manager Rogers Hornsby today. Charlie Grimm at first base, Bill Herman worked at second, with Woody English and Stanley Hack at shortstop and third base, respectively. Herman and Hack, having been at work for two weeks, gave the two veterans who had just arrived, a terrific workout.

Maplewood High Relays Booked For April 15-16

The third annual Maplewood relays will be held on April 15 and 16 this year at Maplewood High School under the direction of Coach Armin A. Wahlbrink. Coach Wahlbrink inaugurated these relays, and each year has made them better than the year before. This year promises to see one of the best relay meets ever staged in this part of the country, inasmuch as all local schools and many out-of-town schools have signified their intention to enter.

The first Maplewood relays were held in 1930, but only schools in the St. Louis County League were admitted to competition. Last year every school in the district entered and some excellent marks were made. This year Coach Wahlbrink has sent out over 300 invitations to schools in the states of Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri, and acceptances are coming in rapidly.

The events will be: 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 140-yard low hurdles, shot put, discus, javelin, pole vault, high jump, broad jump, 440-yard relay, 880-yard relay, one-mile relay, two-mile relay, junior medley relay and senior medley relay. Medals will be given to the winners of the first four places. Cups will be awarded to the winners of the relays.

Track officials will be selected from colleges and universities in the various states from which the schools are entered.

KANSAS DEFEATS OKLAHOMA, WINS BIG SIX TITLE FOR SECOND TIME

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Feb. 27.—Bill Johnson returned by airplane from his father's funeral in Oklahoma City today and led the University of Kansas basketball team to a 33-29 triumph over Oklahoma tonight, giving the Jayhawkers the Big Six Conference championship.

The lanky Kansas center, who was brought by plane to Ottawa and rushed here in a motor car just before the game started, played a strong defensive game and contributed two field goals and four free throws before he retired near the end with four personal fouls charged against him.

The victory gave the Jayhawkers their second consecutive Big Six basketball title. Kansas State College helped them get an undisputed claim to the championship by beating Missouri at Manhattan.

Oklahoma and Missouri thus are tied for the runner-up honor, each having six victories and four defeats. Kansas' record is seven wins and three losses.

Missouri Five Loses Kansas State, 28 to 22.

By the Associated Press.

MANHATTAN, Kan., Feb. 27.—The University of Missouri basketball team lost to Kansas State here tonight, 28 to 22, and dropped into a tie for second place in the final standings of the Big Six Conference championship race.

The Aggies dominated the game throughout except at the start, when John Cooper, Tiger sophomore forward, sank a field goal just after the first tip-off and when Davis' free throw sent Missouri out in front by 5 to 4.

Showing the effects of their long road tour, including four games in eight days, the Tigers presented a ragged game, and missed many shots. Kansas State also was ragged at the start and the score stood at 4 to 2 after the first nine minutes of play.

Kick-off: Preliminary game at 1:30, with 25 minute halves. (St. Matthews vs. St. Ambrose of Muny League.)
Kick-off: Cup tie at 2:45 p. m. sharp.

By Herman Wecke.

Whether St. Louis is to remain in the hunt for the national soccer championship will be decided this afternoon, when the Stix team of the St. Louis League opposes the Sparta Club of Chicago at Sportsman's Park, starting at 2:45 o'clock. The match will prove a real test for the Stix team, since Sparta is regarded as one of the leaders in Chicago.

Although several new players have been added to the roster of the St. Louis club, the locals may not be at full strength, since it is doubtful whether Frank Pastor, star outside right, will be able to play because of a leg injury. If Pastor is unable to play, Jack O'Reilly will probably play the wing position.

Some Other Changes.

Manager Jimmy Burke has made other changes in his front line for the battle. Joe McCarthy, who in the past few weeks, has shown a return to his best form, will be at center, while Joe Hennessy, obtained from the Kavanaughs, will play inside left, with Eddie Hart, who has not been at his best, going to the bench. Willie McLean and Lou Ahrens will be the other forwards.

This front combination, going at its best, will make trouble for any group of defenders. There is plenty of speed and a real scoring punch in the center of the line.

Realizing the importance of the match, the Stix eleven practiced several times during the week to polish up on its team play and increase its speed. There are many who consider the Stix team, going at its best, one of the strongest which has ever represented this city in the national title series. Certainly the backfield is all that could be expected with La Barge in goal and Erbe and Gregg at the fullbacks.

There are capable performers in the halfback line in Nolan, Lehman and Hebberger, athletes, who usually come to the fore when the battling is the stiffest.

Same Old Spartans.

Sparta has been seen here on several occasions in past years and there is little new talent on the club. The main additions, Paul Baer, a German, reputed to be the best "goalie" in Chicago, and Smith, a former Kenosha star, who may see action at inside left. Joe Kratochvil, the club's star center forward, who has been on the suspended list, recently was reinstated so that he could play in the important game.

Sparta, like the Stix team, relies on combination play to advance into the scoring zone. Since the players have been together longer, the Sparta line probably is smoother working, but the St. Louis offense will in all probability exhibit more speed.

In previous cup matches, the defense of the two clubs has been outstanding. In three contests, only three goals have been scored against the Stix, while two have been tallied by Sparta's rivals in two battles. The Stix beat Gillespie (Ill.), 6—1; the Ben Millers, 3—1, and the Kavanaughs, 2—1. Sparta, in its first game, eliminated the Deutscher Sports Club of Milwaukee, 3—1, and then won from the Workers of Detroit, 2—1.

If the Stix club wins, it will be the tenth time in the 12 years that St. Louis has been in the competition that a local eleven has reached the Western final. The exceptions were in the 1926-27 campaign, when Sparta beat the Ben Millers, 1—0, on a goal by Kratochvil and in 1929-30, when the Bruell-Hungarians of Cleveland trimmed the Tablers, 3—1. Last season, the Ben Millers went into the Western final, defeating Slavia of Cleveland, 2—1.

To Meet Winner.

The winner of the local match will oppose the victor of the contest at Chicago between the Bricklayers and Slavia of Cleveland in the three-game series for the Western title, starting March 6.

Mike Curran of Cleveland will referee, with Oscar Mossman and Ollie Fink as linesmen. Halves will be of 45 minutes' duration, with two extra periods of 15 minutes each in case of a tie after regulation time. The admission will be $1 for men, with 50 cents for women and children.

As a preliminary to the cup game, the St. Ambrose Club of the Forest Park division of the Municipal League and St. Matthews of Fairground No. 2 will meet. The game starts at 1:15 o'clock, with Oscar Mossman as referee.

Arsenal Eleven In Semifinal of English Soccer

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Clear-cut victories sent Arsenal, Chelsea, Manchester City and Newcastle united into the semi-finals of the English Football Association soccer cup competition today.

Arsenal, present holder of the title, defeated Huddersfield Town, 1 to 0, in the feature match. The winners scored their goal in the second minute of play and then staved off frequent Huddersfield rallies.

The scores: Chelsea 2, Liverpool 0; Manchester City 4, Bury 3; Arsenal 1, Huddersfield Town 0; Newcastle United 5, Watford 0.

VENZKE BREAKS ANOTHER WORLD TRACK RECORD

he had, he swept past the last of the boys who had been put in there to extend him, and, with the crowd of 10,000 cheering him on, went the rest of the way like a sprinter. He appeared fresh as he broke the tape.

Toppino Ties World Mark.

Emmett Toppino equaled the world record time of 6.2 seconds in winning the 60-yard dash.

It was Toppino's final indoor appearance of the season.

Percy Beard, national indoor and outdoor hurdles champion, romped in first in the 60-yard high hurdles in 7.5 seconds.

Barney Berlinger, last year's national allround track and field champion, made his 1932 indoor debut in the pole vault, but obviously was not in good shape, dropping out when the bar reached 13 feet. He was competing for the Penn A. C.

Bernard McCafferty of Holy Cross retired the Cardinal Hayes' Trophy in the "Casey 600-yard run," winning the event for the third straight year with a time of 1 minute, 12 4-10 seconds.

Lermond Beats McCluskey.

George Lermond of the New York Athletic Club made a sensational closing sprint to beat out Joe McCluskey, Fordham distance ace, in the two mile run in 9 minutes 17 3-5 seconds. McCluskey, who Monday night set a new world's record for the indoor steeplechase, had a ten-yard lead as they went into the final lap, but he didn't have what it took to stand off Lermond's great spurt.

Dale Letts of the Illinois A. C. national 1000-meter champion, won the half-mile invitation after a brisk battle with George Bullwinkle of New York A. C. Letts' time was 1:55 4-5.

Fred Sturdy of Los Angeles, another national champion, could do no better than tie with Tommy Warne, former Northwestern star, in the pole vault, each making 13 feet 6 inches.

As usual, there was no one to stand against George Spitz, phenomenal New York University sophomore, in the high jump. The world record holder sailed over the bar at 6 feet 6 inches, and called it a night.

NORTH SIDE Y. M. C. A. WRESTLERS WIN MEET

The North Side Y. M. C. A. wrestlers defeated the Boys' Club of St. Louis by a score of 15 to 3. Sehl's boys succeeded in getting a fall in three out of four matches.

145-pound class—M. Occhi, North Side "Y", defeated M. Pretto, Boys' Club, by a fall in two minutes and 10 seconds.

SIXTH CORPS AREA AHTLETIC CARNIVAL WILL START MARCH 21

The local army post at Jefferson Barracks is preparing for the annual Sixth Corps Area athletic tournament, to be held at Jefferson Barracks during the week of March 21 to 26, inclusive.

The event will have competition in basketball between representatives of service organizations from Michigan, Illinois and Missouri. Approximately 150 visiting athletes will be here.

The entries in boxing include in the Jefferson Barracks squad two Mississippi Valley amateur champions, Earl Taylor and Lloyd Cartwright. Both of these boys fought under the auspices of the E. K. Athletic Club in the recent valley tournament. Each of the seven posts has several outstanding fighters.

PLUNKERT AGAIN TOPS OAKLAND TENNIS LIST

Jack Plunkert heads the 1931 men's singles ranking of the Oakland Tennis Club, according to the list announced last night by Martin Kennedy, chairman of the club's ranking committee. Plunkert won the same honors last year. The ranking committee listed 20 players in the men's singles and 16 in the women's singles. Ruth Anderson heads the women's list, replacing Hildegarde Glauser, No. 1 last year.

The rankings follow:

Burke Leads Pros, Ruth Amateurs in Belleair Golf

By the Associated Press.

BELLEAIR, Fla., Feb. 27.—Billy Burke, National Open champion and professional here, clipped a stroke from par on each 18-hole round today for a 70-70—140 to lead the pack at the half-way mark of the 72-hole West Coast open golf tournament.

Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y.; Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, Fla., and Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn, N. Y., tied for second place with 143s. Runyan had the best round of the day, a 33-35—68, this afternoon, which was within two strokes of equaling the course record held by Burke.

Babe Ruth, New York Yankees home run king, carded a 79-78—157 to lead the amateurs.

Gene Sarazen, Great Neck, L. I., defending champion, had trouble with his clubs, and just managed to qualify by scoring a 78-74—152.

Forty-one players who had 154 or better will play 36 holes tomorrow for the prize money.

SHERMAN ELEVEN IS PLAYGROUND SOCCER WINNER

The Sherman soccer team today holds the Municipal Playground championship by virtue of its 1-to-0 victory over Columbus yesterday afternoon at Murphy Playground in the third and deciding game of the title series. Sherman also won last week's game, 1-0, after losing the series opener, 2 to 0.

The winners put on a neat passing attack to score in the first period. Bohlman made the goal by taking a shot from Enright and booting it past Goalie Ventura.

Columbus came back strong after the tally and threatened repeatedly. In the second period, Steinmetz, Columbus center forward, passed up a wonderful opportunity when his try just missed Sherman's goal.

A few minutes before the close of the game, Mercurio, Columbus halfback, committed a penalty. Dempsey was selected to boot the free kick, but his attempt was wide. The game ended soon after the try.

The lineups:

SHERMAN (1).	Pos.	COLUMBUS (0).
R. Dolan	G.	Venture
Barsanti	F. B.	Hartman
McCarthy	F. B.	Zdan
Prindable	H. B.	Bammarito

WRAY'S COLVMN

ry, De Mun Smith and Frank Day. McCreary was far ahead of both his rivals. Still it was a remarkable average for him if, in a single game, he rose to the heights of 25.

Take it today: Late in March an international amateur tournament will be held in this country. There will be eight foreign entries, of whom five have already been named, and several Americans, led by Francis Appleby.

Of the foreign players, there are several who could have beaten McCreary at his best, with ease.

There is George Van Belle of Belgium. In last year's tourney Van Belle, although he did not win, had a high run of 250, a high average of 66 and a grand average of 29.

Edmond Soussa of Egypt last year had a high run of 196, a high average of 48 and a grand average of 28.

Then there is Albert Poengsen of Germany, who proved he was better than all the others by winning the tournament.

Today the averages and high runs of the amateurs would have put to blush the performances of Ives and Wizard Jake Schaefer.

And still they say that billiards is on the wane.

He Started It.

THE other day we read that the Louisville baseball club had sent to the Knoxville club on option three players, one of whom was Catcher Ray Thompson.

That may not mean much to most fans. But to Phil Ball it probably meant a pain in the neck. Let us rather say in the conk, for the name Thompson brings unpleasant memories.

This is the boy who launched Commissioner Landis on the anti-coverup tangent which has threatened at times to result in a wide open break in baseball. Its possible consequences were so serious that it was only at last December's joint meeting of the two big leagues that steps were taken to remove the lighted match from the fuse in the powder keg. When Phil Ball withdrew his appeal of the Fred Bennett case, it for the first time meant that he had hauled down the battle flag and was content to let things ride along rather than blow up the national game.

Here's the outline of baseball history:

Four years or so ago Ray Thompson was a member of the Milwaukee club, of which Phil Ball was half owner. Louisville wanted Thompson and claimed him on waivers, but the Brewers then decided to sell him to the Browns. St. Louis then passed him on to Tulsa, another property of Mr. Ball. Louisville complained to Judge Landis who ruled that it was a coverup deal and awarded Thompson to Louisville.

At the same time he announced that any future attempts at coverup transfers would result in the player involved being declared a free agent, with other penalties attached for the club involved.

The Judge Steps On Toes.

SUBSEQUENTLY Judge Landis has enforced this to the limit, inflicting several property losses on the Browns, the Athletics, Washington and other teams.

At one time the feeling against Landis ran so high that a meeting was called in Sarasota, Fla., during the spring training period, at which five American League owners and the president of the league were present. It was said to be the sense of this meeting that legal action be taken to restrain Judge Landis from exercising arbitrary power in this respect. But when the showdown came, Ball was the only one ready to shoot.

Several times since then Ball was on the verge of throwing baseball into disorder by attacking the autocracy of Landis and when Landis a year ago intervened to take Fred Bennett away from him, it appeared that the monkey wrench would soon be in the works. Landis won his court case and Ball appealed.

Every owner in the league was uneasy because the case was loaded with dynamite. It was known that one of the three judges hearing the appeal was radical, in the sense that he wanted the O. B. baseball contract junked because it lacked equity, owing to its reserve and 10-day clauses.

There was a tremendous pressure on the old gauge during the December meeting. Owners of both leagues, with millions of dollars worth of property at stake, begged, pleaded and argued with Ball to take off his spurs and quit riding the Bennett case.

Pressure was brought upon Landis, too, and at last, through the good offices of Bob Quinn and Clark Griffith, Ball was induced to withdraw the appeal.

The Bennett case died. And, may we hope, the feud between Ball and Landis went out with it.

In passing it may be noted that the poor "chattels" who caused the trouble, Bennett and Thompson, both turned out to be just bush leaguers.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS AT ST. LOUIS U. ENTER SECOND WEEK

STRIBLING DECIDES TO "CARRY ON" DESPITE DEFEAT BY SCHAAF

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—W. L. "Young" Stribling is going to carry on in the ring, despite his decisive defeat by Ernie Schaaf last night.

"Pa" Stribling, father-manager of the young Georgian, said today that Stribling intended to rest for two months and then resume warfare with the heavyweights. Stribling has no thought of retiring. "He wasn't hurt last night," "Pa" Stribling said. "But he needs to build himself up, if he is to fight those big rough fellows."

Stribling left for his home in Macon, Ga., by automobile early today.

George C. Olcott was the high man of the week in the eighth match in the United States Revolver Association League match. This match consists of 10 consecutive matches over a period of 10 weeks among teams throughout the country.

The scores of the team of five shooters were: G. C. Olcott 219, A. S. Kroeter 211, H. A. Johnston 211, W. G. Roepke 209, F. G. Dana 203.

Smiling Playground Soccer Champions

SEMIFINALS IN "MUNY" SOCCER ARE SCHEDULED AT FAIRGROUND

Semifinal matches in the Municipal Soccer League championship series will be played at Fairground No. 2 this afternoon, starting at 1:15 o'clock. In the opener, the Macks, champions of Sherman Park, oppose the Universals, Forest Park title winners, while in the second the Spick and Spans of Fairground No. 3 oppose the Clearys, Fairground No. 4 representatives.

On past records, the Macks and Spick and Spans appear the favorites. In first round matches, each of these clubs defeated "seeded" teams. The Macks trimmed the Spanish Sport Club, three goals to one, while the Spicks had to play two contests and go three hours and 32 minutes before downing the Andersons.

The Universals in the opening round had to play an extra period to eliminate the Waverlys, junior title winners, 2 to 1, while the Clearys scored a goal in the last minute of play to win from the Park Rats.

An admission charge of 25 cents will be made to the double-header. As an added attraction, a squad of airplanes will fly over the field.

Five officials have been named to handle each game. In the opener, D. Barnard will serve as referee, with John Cradock, Nick Reidy, Ollie Miller and Willie Brady as linesmen. Dick Wall will referee in the closing match with L. Robbins, H. Donovan, Cliff Brady and Harry Ratican as linesmen.

The winners of today's games will start a best two-out-of-three series for the city title, March 6.

WOMEN'S INTERNATIONAL BOWLING MEET EXPECTED TO DRAW RECORD ENTRY

Reports from Mrs. Emma Phaler, secretary of the Women's International Bowling Congress, which will hold its annual tournament at the Rogers Recreation here beginning April 7, show that entries are coming in regularly from all points in the country, and all indications point to a record entry. The latest entries received came from teams in Cincinnati, Columbus, Kansas City and New York.

Approximately $10,000, besides medals, will be awarded the winners in the various events. In addition to the place prizes, Mrs. O. C. Berghaus, president of the local women's association, has announced that a fund of $180 has been set aside for the booster division.

Any local team desiring to enter the event is requested to get in touch with Mrs. Berghaus, 7031 West Park avenue, HIland 0636, or Mrs. H. T. Speck, 5116 Ashland avenue, EVergreen 1298.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., GIRLS DEFEAT CRYSTAL CITY; HOODS BEAT DELUGACHS

The Springfield (Ill.) Elks girls' basketball team defeated the Crystal City girls' quintet, 40 to 15, in a game played at Crystal City last night.

The Delugachs, runnersup in the St. Louis Municipal title series, lost to the Hoods, 31 to 22. Moffett starred for the Hoods and Hope and Covington for the Delugachs.

STEIN TAKES LEAD IN BOWLING CLASSIC

Bowling in fine form, Otto Stein Jr., with a score of 1383, was the individual leader after three squads had bowled last night in the Cinderella Classic on the Cinderella alleys.

Second to Stein was Wooster Lambert, with a mark of 1363. The six next highest scorers after three squads had rolled were: Harry Frederick, 1319; Roy Nelson, 1262; Lee Martin, 1237; Ray Zeigler, 1236; Frank Foss, 1218, and Buddy Rice, 1214.

The Classic will be concluded tonight, when five squads are scheduled to bowl.

BURROUGHS "B" FIVE WINS DIVISION TITLE

John Burroughs "B" basketball team today holds the "B" championship, and Country Day "C" team is second in "C" division in the ABC Basketball League, after games of yesterday afternoon.

Burroughs defeated Country Day, 36 to 27, in the "B" game, and Country Day was victor over Burroughs in the "C" game, 20 to 14.

In the "B" game, Burroughs got out in front and was leading at the half, 12-7, increasing its advantage during the final period. Moser of Burroughs was high scorer with 16 points. Orthwein of Country Day was the leading scorer in the "C" game with 11 points.

Benefit Mat Show.

Promoter and Matchmaker Herbert W. Weege has completed his plans to hold his next wrestling show at Battery A Gymnasium, Grand and Hickory streets, on Thursday, March 10. This card will be given for the benefit of Fred Waser who was severely injured on Weege's last card held at St. James Gymnasium.

SAZERAC WINS DERBY TRIAL HANDICAP AT NEW ORLEANS BY NECK

SURF BOARD IS VICTOR IN MILE RACE AND PAYS $20.40 FOR $2

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 27.—Jockey C. Landolt piloted Sazerac, three-year-old hopeful of A. B. Letellier of New Orleans, to victory over six other nominees for the March 19 Louisiana Derby in the $3000 Derby Trial Handicap today at the Fair Grounds.

A 4-to-1 shot, Sazerac beat E. R. Bradley's Bertjohn, the favorite, to the wire by a nose, paying $10.60 to win, $4.60 to place and $3.60 to show on the $2 mutuels. Bertjohn paid $3 and $2.80, and P. C. Thompson's Crystal Prince, taking the show money, paid $4.60. S. W. Labrot's Springsteel was fourth.

The race, over a mile, was run in 1:39 3-5 on a fast track. The record is 1:37 4-5.

The victory was worth $2540 to Letellier.

Although the Derby trial featured the day, Jockey Gilbert Elston, recently laid up by a leg injury, returned to defend his title of leading Fair Grounds rider by bringing in three straight winners, Worldly Lad in the second, Donna Dear in the third and Chimney Sweep in the fourth.

Surf Board, four-year-old gelding of the Greentree Stable, won the fifth race at one mile and paid his backers $20.40 for a $2 mutuel ticket. Abdel ran second and Angry third.

Jockey H. R. Riley brought Surf Board to victory by a scant head in a driving finish. The payoff on the basis of $2 tickets stood: Surf Board, $20.40, $9.40, $4.80; Abdel, $10.60, $6; Angry, $3.40.

BERGER HAS NEW PLAN FOR NEXT WRESTLING SHOW

John S. Berger, representative of the Paul Bowser wrestling interests, will, at his next wrestling show at the Coliseum, March 11, institute a lower price scale, he announced last night. Top price for tickets under the new scale will be $2.20, and all top balcony seats will be 55 cents each.

Under the new scale of prices, the cut-rate "slip" exchange method will be abolished. This method, widely used by promoters of athletic events in St. Louis, and adopted by Berger when he entered the field here, was to mail out slips, which might be exchanged for tickets at reduced prices.

The new scale of prices for the Coliseum shows promoted by Berger follows: 55 cents for the entire top balcony; $1.10 for the lower balcony, with the exception of seats opposite the ring, and $2.20 for ringside and box seats.

Berger also announced that he had signed Joe Malcewicz for a finish match on his next program.

Two Newcomers Are on Lewis-Kampfer Mat Card.

Two newcomers will be seen in action on the wrestling card at The Arena, Thursday night, which will be featured by a finish match between Strangler Lewis and Hans Kampfer.

The newcomers to St. Louis wrestling rings will be Bob Jassen of Iowa, who will meet Pat O'Shocker in the curtain raiser, and Lou Plummer, former Notre Dame football player, who will oppose Gino Garibaldi in the second event.

Earl McCready and George Zaharias will be the principals in the semifinal match, a one fall to a finish affair.

BOWLING NOTES

A two-man handicap four-game sweepstakes will be bowled on the St. Louis Fruit and Produce alleys March 12 and 13. The event is open to any bowler who has an established league average. Entries can be made by calling GArfield 6363.

Ed Kroner, one of the leading bowlers on the South Side gave a wonderful exhibition of tenpins at the Century alleys during the past seven days, rolling three straight 700 totals. Kroner rolled 735 Friday, Feb. 19 and followed on Monday with 752 and Thursday with 711. Kroner, who is having the best season of his bowling career, has a grand average of 209 for three leagues. He also has seven 700 totals to his credit.

The Dave Brown Oil All-Stars found the Saratoga alleys "tough" and dropped a three-game match to the Saratoga Specials Friday night by 145 pins. The Dave Browns totaled 2507 to 2655 for the Saratogas. Mitzi Weinstein with 559 was high for the Browns. Ray Holmes had 510, Bud Rice 504, Sam Garafola 491 and Hermann 443. Jack Woods paced the winners with 563, which included a high single game of 238.

The Nehis, leaders in the South Side Major League at Heidels alleys, were high in last week's round of play, rolling 2954 and winning two games from the Waysides. Conley, 658, and Hermle, 648, were high for the Nehis, while Paul, with 630, led the Waysides. H. Buchholz led the individuals with a 674 series. His team, the Buchholz Five, dropped two games to the Hellrungs. In the other matches Heidel's Five won three from the Cornwells and the Sturms took three from the Silver Seals. The team leaders were: Heidel, 647; Schuttenberg, 616; Rood, 610; Beckemeyer, 597; Wedel, 639; Sodomka, 603; Sturm, 602; Dreher, 632, and O'Connor, 610.

Mueller paced the bowlers in the Electrical Board of Trade League at the Mid-City alleys, with a three-game total of 627. Mosberger was next with 619. The results were: Board of Trades 2, Adams 1; Moloney 2, Otis 1; Kearneys 2, Westerns 1; Briners 2, Generals 1; Wurdacks 2, Glasscos 1; Bussmans 2, Westinghouse 1.

REVOLVER CLUB SCORES

The St. Louis Colonial Revolver Club team scored a total of 1055 points in its eighth match of the United States Revolver Association League. M. B. Peterson was individual leader with a score of 222.

LON HOCKER WINS MISSISSIPPI VALLEY FENCING TITLE

Lon O. Hocker Jr. of the Fencers' Club of St. Louis captured the Mississippi Valley Fencers' Association open sabre individual championship in a meet held at the North Side "Y." Hocker won every bout in which he participated. Norman Rothenheber of the St. Louis fencers of North Side "Y" placed second, his only loss during the evening being credited to Hocker. Ted Leon, also of the Fencers' Club, took the third place award. W. Vesper and H. Bopes of the Fencers' Club and B. E. Goldman of the St. Louis Fencers of North Side "Y," were the other finalists.

Other participants in the meet were A. Ward of the Fencers' Club, J. Votruba, R. Witte and W. Ahrens of the Imperial Fencers, and Luetge, Wodika and Brookes of Washington University.

Three Men and Five Horses Are Ruled Off Turf

A RESIDENT of the ARCTIC COMES to ST. LOUIS

The Bohemian Waxwing, a Bird Which Has Made Only One Other Recorded Appearance in Missouri, Seen by Ornithologists Among the Augmented Army of Feathered Visitors Brought in by the Mild Winter.

By ROBERT RANDOLPH
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

A STRANGE bird was seen this winter at Creve Coeur Lake—strange, that is, to St. Louis, and strange, too, in its legendary reputation. It was the Bohemian waxwing, which for centuries has been regarded by superstitious European peasants as a bird of ill omen, a harbinger of death and disaster.

The association of this bird with dire events seems as incongruous as a corsage bouquet on a coal heaver. For the Bohemian waxwing is a cheerful little creature, without a sinister element in its appearance. Its cinnamon brown coat is eminently respectable, but relieved from stodginess by trimmings of red, yellow, white and gray. A pert tuft of feathers stands out from its head like a small boy's cowlick. And people who don't remember the girls of the mauve decade would find it hard to imagine anything more demure than the waxwing's soft twitterings.

But there are the legends, with some historical backing. In 1552, says one story, Bohemian waxwings flew along the Rhine in such numbers that they obscured the sun, and in almost no time Emperor Charles V was on the run from Innsbruck, with Henry II of France and Maurice of Saxony after him. And Aldrovandi, Italian ornithologist, has recorded that large flocks of the birds appeared in Italy in 1551 and pretty soon there was a big earthquake.

Again, in 1571, great droves of the waxwings were reported in Northern Italy; they were said to display so little fear of human beings that they could be picked up from the ground. And then along came a big Turkish fleet, backed up by an immense army, and Venice deserted her allies in the struggle with the Porte and sued for peace.

During Napoleon's campaigns in Prussia and Poland in 1807 the waxwings were abundant in Western Europe. And some were seen in England in the notable winter of 1823 when severe cold and fierce storms caused much suffering among the inhabitants.

These things happened long ago, but even now there are peasants in many parts of Europe who dread to see a flight of Bohemian waxwings. Some of these people say there is one consolation about such invasions: the waxwings and the ensuing calamities never come oftener than once in seven years.

One reason for the superstitious attitude toward the pleasant little bird may have been the mystery as to its origin that for so long prevailed. For many years ornithologists tried in vain to find out where it came from—where it mated and reared its young. In 1856 the mystery was solved by an Englishman, who had set out to find a nesting place of Bohemian waxwings, with the announcement that he wouldn't come back unless he did. After searching several months he found some of the nests in Lapland. So it has been accepted that the regions in the vicinity of the Arctic Circle are the natural habitat of the bird. But the Bohemian waxwing spends a good deal of time away from home; in fact, he's a vagabond. Sometimes countless hordes of the feathered itinerants fly down to Central and Southern Europe, and occasional flocks drift into the United States from Alaska and Northern Canada. In America the superstition that the visitor is a forerunner of evil has not found lodgment, and the bird with a bad name is considered an aristocrat of his kind.

Incidentally, this bird is not to be confused with the cedar waxwing, a smaller bird which is plentiful in Illinois.

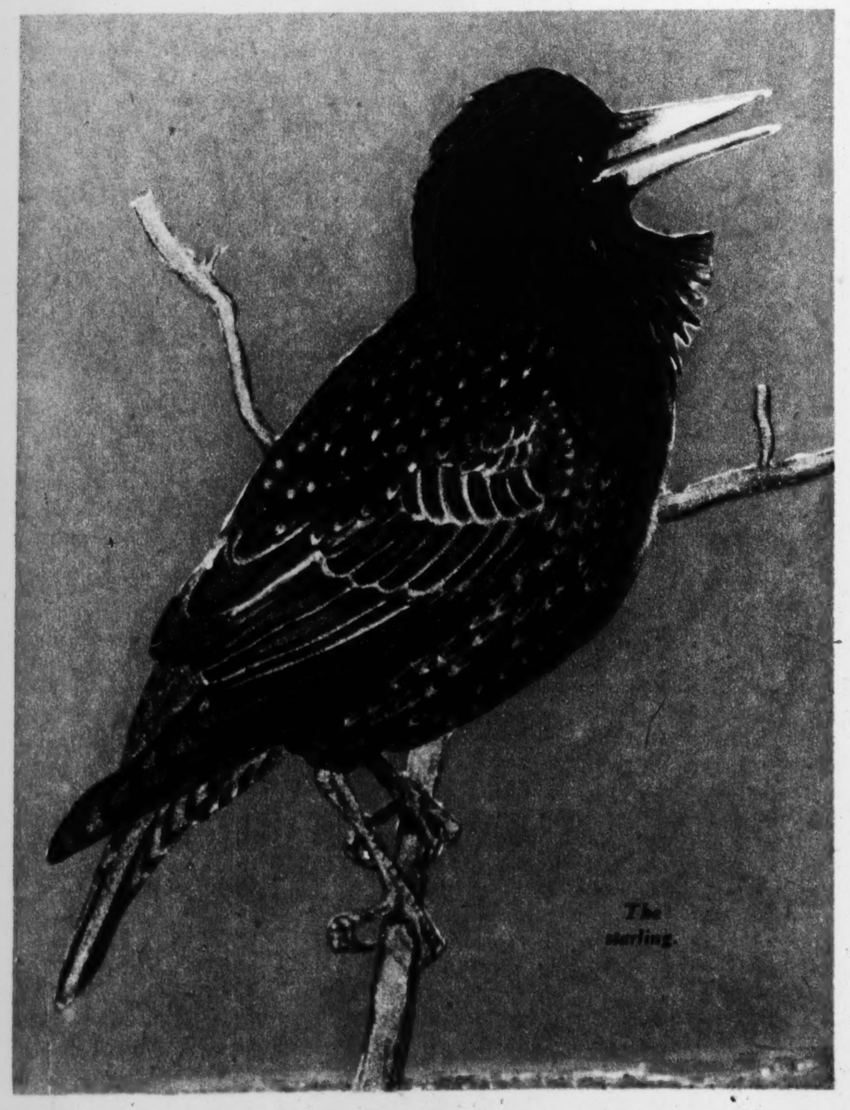
IT was Otto Widmann, 5105 Enright avenue, who saw the Bohemian waxwing—several of them, in fact—at Creve Coeur Lake recently. Widmann, now 90 years old, is known as the dean of American ornithologists. In 1906 he published his "Preliminary Catalog of the Birds of Missouri," in which 353 species were enumerated. The ornithologist says the only time the Bohemian waxwing ever appeared in Missouri, before, so far as known, was in December, 1917, when it was seen near Salem. It occasionally appears in northern states; flocks have been seen in Nebraska.

While, as said before, the sinister reputation of the Bohemian waxwing has found no credence in America, the circumstances of its St. Louis appearance have caused local bird experts to say facetiously that there may be something to the old superstition. For with the waxwings at Creve Coeur Lake were the first large flocks of starlings that appear to be making their home in St. Louis County, and many ornithologists consider starlings a first-class blight on any community.

The starlings, often described by people who do not know them as "blackbirds without tails," are extremely pugnacious and drive other birds from the vicinity of houses, usurping their nests whenever possible. The United States Department of Agriculture states that "the immense flocks that gather after the breeding season may cause harm through overconcentration in crop areas or from their insanitary habits." The bird is exceedingly prolific, raising two and often three broods of three to six birds a year, and, unlike many other birds, being tolerant of its own kind as nesting neighbors and so multiplying in restricted areas.



The starling.

STARLINGS were successfully introduced into this country in 1890 in New York City, 160 being released in Central Park. And within 20 years these birds had become one of the most numerous species about New York City and of local occurrence from Maine to Maryland. They now outnumber the house sparrow in New England and are abundant enough to be of economic importance in states as far west as Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee. The first report for Illinois was of a flock of seven or eight seen several times in a roost with cowbirds and grackles at Urbana during January and February, 1922. In December, 1927, the first large flock was noted at Marion.

The Department of Agriculture reports the first specimen in Missouri was taken at Charleston, January 28, 1928, and had been banded at Columbus, O., in March, 1927. A. E. Mueller of the Webster Groves Nature Study Society believes he saw the first one in this vicinity on January 29, 1929, in his yard at 54 Chestnut street. Several were shot in November, 1930, in East St. Louis. The next reports of starlings in St. Louis County were made in March, 1931, and on December 11, 1931.

The starling, about eight and a half inches long, looks black at a distance, but seen more closely it shows iridescent purple and green. The long pointed bill is yellow during the breeding season but turns almost black during the molting season. The starling walks instead of hopping like robins and other perching birds.

Flocks are easily recognizable since the flight is very characteristic. Their aerial evolutions attracted attention in ancient times and are mentioned by Pliny. Traveling as fast as 50 miles an hour, they can change direction instantly and their maneuvers, carried out with unanimity and exactness, are more brilliant than those of a crack squadron of army planes.

A flock of starlings, while feeding, make a great deal of noise, squeaks and gurgles being interspersed with a few shrill whistles. To quote F. Schuyler Mathews' "Field Book of Wild Birds," "There is the twang of the jew's harp, the squeak of a rusty gate hinge, the cluck of the hen, and the rattle of a wire spring in his tones—one can hardly call them tunes. The fact is the starling is a polyglot—not a mimic."

"The starling already has too many enemies in the United States," Widmann insists. "What little damage it does to crops is more than atoned for by its activity against insects. Of course, it does drive other birds out of their nests, particularly woodpeckers, but if American birds can't defend themselves against foreign birds let them make way for them.

"Newton, the great English ornithologist, says that a more engaging bird scarcely exists and that its character as an insecticide makes it an almost universal favorite."

Norval Barger, Concordia Seminary student, St. Louis Bird Club and Webster Groves Nature Study Society member, tells of seeing starlings drive a woodpecker from its tree.

"As one starling entered the nest and made the woodpecker come out to fight," Barger relates," another flew into the hole and a third brought sticks and twigs to put in the hole. When the first starling got tired of fighting he was relieved by one of the nest builders and in a short time the woodpecker was worn out and his nest ruined for they do not line them with sticks."

Both Widmann and Barger are confident the starling is here to stay and will spread up and down the valleys of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. In support of this they cite the fondness of the species for the vicinity of water as shown by its spread up the Hudson River valley, along the Connecticut River, up the Delaware valley, and along Lake Ontario and Lake Erie.

BARGER and Walter Palmer, 134 Linden avenue, University City, not only broke a record for the number of species of birds seen near Creve Coeur Lake during the taking of the annual winter census for "Bird Lore," bi-monthly publication sponsored by the Audubon Society, but saw many birds unusual for this region in winter. Their observance of eight starlings is the first made here during the taking of the official winter census.

They believe the observance of 2660 birds of 30 species is partly due to the unusually mild weather. When snow and ice covered the ground two years ago, making birds dependant upon feed put out for them by bird lovers, there were only 972 individuals of 27 species seen by five observers who made the winter census in the Creve Coeur Lake region.

During three winter months of 1929-1930, traps of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Satterthwait of Webster Groves, bird banders who collaborate with the United States Biological Survey, demanded constant attention as hungry birds entered them to get food. One junco, Mrs. Satterthwait reports, was trapped 99 times. Last month not a bird entered the traps in their back yard. This is attributed to the ease with which birds can find food in the country this winter.

One of the species Palmer and Barger found that usually is far south at this time of the year was the yellow-bellied sapsucker, which, as its name implies, lives largely on tree sap. Instead of flying away it followed its custom of sidling around the tree, keeping the trunk between Palmer and itself, as though playing hide and seek. Palmer nearly sat upon another bird, the winter wren, as it was searching through tall grass for food. About four inches long, it is the smallest of the wren species. It has a ridiculous little tail that it cocks up in the air and its brilliant and resonant song might well come from a much larger creature.

The white-breasted nuthatch, known as the acrobat of the bird world, was seen traveling restlessly up and down the trunk and limbs of a tree. Unlike other birds it is able to walk down as well as up, and can hang upside down.

To Palmer the most unusual feature of the bird walk was a flock of red-winged blackbirds, estimated at 500,000, that was seen flying overhead from northeast to southwest, about 2500 feet high.

The official list of species seen here this winter is: Red-shouldered hawk, sparrow hawk, hairy woodpecker, downy woodpecker, red-bellied woodpecker, flicker, bluejay, American crow, starling, cowbird, red-winged blackbirds, meadowlark, bronzed grackle, goldfinch, white-throated sparrow, tree sparrow, field sparrow, song sparrow, fox sparrow, junco, cardinal, migrant shrike, myrtle warbler, Carolina wren, brown creeper, white-breasted nuthatch, tufted titmouse, Carolina chickadee, robin, bluebird.

Should exceedingly cold weather still come it would not be fatal to any of the species of birds here as long as food is available for them. Birds, Widmann says, are well able to withstand cold as long as they are not weakened by starvation.

Two Multi-Millionaires —and What They Did With Their Money

Julius Rosenwald Gave $70,000,000 to Charity—While Pennsylvania Attempts to Collect $31,000,000 Taxes From the Estate of Dr. John T. Dorrance.

NEW YORK.

THERE are multi-millionaires and multi-millionaires. Some of them like to give away money and some do not—most emphatically, do not. When two such men are put side by side in the spotlight by the accident of current events, the result is a striking contrast.

At about the time that the will of the late Julius Rosenwald was being probated in Chicago recently—a will which left $11,000,000 to charity and brought the total charitable gifts of the mail order expert to the neighborhood of $70,000,000—the State of Pennsylvania was fighting to collect inheritance taxes of the estate of the late Dr. John T. Dorrance.

Dr. Dorrance, who had been sole owner and president of one of America's biggest soup companies, left an estate estimated at $114,000,000 in New Jersey and at $200,000,000 in Pennsylvania. In his life he had given nothing publicly to charity; in his will he left nothing to charity—nothing, even, to any servants.

Rosenwald was famous for years as one of America's greatest philanthropists. He is said to have given away four times as much money as he finally left to his heirs.

He gave, for instance, $20,000,000 to the Julius Rosenwald Fund, and stipulated that interest as well as principal must be spent within 25 years of the date of his death. He gave $5,000,000 to found an industrial museum in Chicago, $6,000,000 for Jewish colonization work in Russia, $3,000,000 to the University of Chicago, $2,500,000 to build model tenements for Negroes in Chicago, $5,000,000 to the American-Jewish Joint Agricultural Corporation, $5,000,000 to the Jewish Theological Seminary, $500,000 to aid German war orphans and widows—and so on, through a long list that contains almost innumerable items.

Dr. Dorrance—at the time of his death, in the fall of 1930—was rated one of the nation's richest men. Only two American families, the Fords and Rockefellers, had more money than his family; only two individuals outside of those families—Andrew Mellon and Anna R. Harkness—had as much private capital as he.

Yet Dr. Dorrance remained a saver of dollars to the last. In his 35-page will he gave his entire fortune to his immediate family, and stipulated that his estate be kept intact for 16 years, so that state and Federal inheritance taxes might come out of the interest on the principal and leave the body of the fortune untouched for future distribution.

By comparison with that 35-page will there is Rosenwald's will of slightly over a page—with its final $11,000,000 bequest to charity.

NEVER was there a greater contrast between the lives of two rich men.

Rosenwald was born in Springfield, Ill., the son of a small storekeeper. He went to the public schools until he was 16 and then entered business. After operating a clothing store for some years, he entered the mail order field in 1895 and built up a gigantic mail order house. Entering the firm with an investment of $35,000, he saw his holdings increase to a total value—before the 1929 crash—of more than $150,000,000.

Dr. Dorrance was born in Bristol, Pa., attended a private school in Philadelphia, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the University of Gottingen, in Germany, where he won a doctor's degree in science. His family wanted him to take up a profession, but he had a practical turn of mind and business appealed to him.

Returning to the United States, he went to work in the factory of his uncle, who had a canning plant in Camden, New Jersey. A tireless worker and an expert in scientific agriculture, he spent his time improving varieties of fruits and vegetables and developing condensed soups.

Thirty-four years ago he founded a soup company. The company grew by leaps and bounds, and he became sole owner. But he never stopped working, and he never spent his money freely.

The present litigation over inheritance taxes arises from the fact that Pennsylvania and New Jersey could never agree on Dr. Dorrance's place of residence.

At Cinnaminson, New Jersey, he had a farm, and a modest brick house. At Radnor, Pennsylvania, he had a huge estate, with an elaborate and expensive home. His family lived there—and had he lived there, too, Pennsylvania would have collected about $400,000 a year from him in taxes.

But he insisted that his home was in New Jersey, where his real estate and personal property were taxed at a modest $106 a year, and where his $73,000,000 worth of soup company stock was not taxed at all.

At his death New Jersey collected $12,000,000 in inheritance taxes, while the United States took another $9,500,000. Pennsylvania, claiming he was really a Pennsylvania citizen, is trying to collect inheritance taxes of $31,465,200—the largest in the history of the State.

Ellis Ames Ballard, lawyer for the Dorrance estate, declares that Dr. Dorrance always considered Cinnaminson his home and owed nothing to Pennsylvania. William A. Gray, special counsel for Pennsylvania, on the other hand, asserts the Cinnaminson house was merely a blind, maintained to evade Pennsylvania taxes.

Gray, incidentally, called Dr. Dorrance the stingiest man he had ever known. To buttress this assertion, he got testimony concerning the soup king's living expenses over a period of years.

From 1920 to 1925 Dr. Dorrance's income ranged from $3,500,000 to $4,000,000 a year. During that period his living expenses at Cinnaminson ran to not more than $10,000 annually. Add to that an additional $10,000 a year which he spent on trips to Florida and Europe, and it appears that he was saving all but about $20,000 of each year's income.

In 1925 came a change in the Dorrance household. Elinor, the eldest of four daughters, was almost ready to make her debut. Ethel, Charlotte and Peggy were growing up. Little Jack was almost old enough to go to school. And Cinnaminson, at $10,000 a year, was hardly a setting for social affairs.

Thus came Dr. Dorrance's one and only extravagance. He bought a big home at Radnor, Pa., for $350,000, added $80,000 worth of land and spent $450,000 on the furnishings.

From 1925 to 1930 the annual expenses at Radnor were $95,000. Thus, including the complete cost of the house, during those five years he was able to save around $18,000,000 out of his income.

His widow testified that Dr. Dorrance often vehemently objected to the size of the electric light and gas bills at Radnor, telling her once to take the bulbs out of the servants' quarters because the servants burned too much light.

She said that he argued with her about the size of the food bills and was particularly enraged with a butler who had bought the family food at a high-priced store.

Domestics in the soup king's employ received from $12 to $14 a week. Once, when a number of applicants responded to an advertisement for servants, those who were willing to work for $12 were asked to raise their hands—and the others were immediately turned away.

His head gardener said that once Dr. Dorrance looked out of a window and saw an under-gardener resting for a few minutes. Dr. Dorrance called the head gardener, told him that he himself had earned his money by the sweat of his brow, and said the "lazy" gardener must be discharged at once.

When people came to ask him to give money to charity in Pennsylvania, he said that he lived in New Jersey. A citizen of Cinnaminson, on the other hand, said that he had asked Dr. Dorrance to give money for coal for the village church and had been refused.

The four daughters receive a monthly income of $10,000 each; the son and widow receive twice that amount. When the estate is divided in 1946 the son and the mother are to get a quarter each, while the daughters will each get an eighth. Control of the soup company remains entirely with the family. Dr. Dorrance's entire library goes to his son, with the stipulation that it be kept intact until the boy reaches the age of 50.

Rosenwald, in his will, simply directed the payment of his debts, bequeathed $11,000,000 to the Rosenwald Family Association, a charitable organization he had set up, and ordered that the remainder of his fortune be equally divided among his five children.

HIS willingness to be open-handed with his money, exemplified so many times in his gifts to charity, was also shown in his conduct of business affairs during the post-war depression of 1921. Incidentally, that very liberality was ultimately to enrich him greatly.

During that depression sales of his company fell off by $75,000,000 a year. Rosenwald came to the rescue by buying $16,000,000 worth of the company's real estate and giving 50,000 shares of stock to the company's treasury. The stock was valued at $60 a share.

Later he bought this stock back at $100 a share. In 1928, the company issued four new shares of stock for each one of the old, and thus the temporary loss that he took in 1921 turned into a personal profit of $25,000,000.

In striking contrast, too, with Dr. Dorrance's assertion that he had made his money by the sweat of his brow, was Rosenwald's famous declaration that the ingredients which went to the making up of his own fortune were 10 per cent hard work and 90 per cent luck—and he said, with a smile, immediately afterward, that the amount of luck really ought to be figured at 95 per cent instead of 90.

He added:

"I never could understand the popular belief that because a man makes a lot of money he has a lot of brains. Some of the richest men I have met in my life have been the most stupid. There are men in America today, financial failures, who have more real brains than I ever will have. I had the luck to get my opportunity; their opportunity never came."

ONE thing he would never discuss very freely was his own philanthropy. Aside from saying that "like Topsy, it 'just growed,'" he would not talk about it. Associates said that for some time his benefactions amounted to around $6,000,000 a year—not counting the gift in his will.

One of the gifts of which he was proudest was the great industrial museum in Chcago, housed in the old Fine Arts Building of the Chicago World's Fair.

In this museum are being assembled complete working models of almost every industrial and mechanical device in the world, from steam engines down to dish-washing machines.

The Negro owes the philanthropist a good deal, too. He contributed to funds for the erection of more than 4000 schools for Negroes, helped build 16 Y. M. C. A. buildings for them, and helped to supply libraries for 140 Negro rural schools and 11 Negro normal schools and colleges.

His $500,000 gift to German war sufferers was not known publicly in the United States until 1930, when President von Hindenburg of Germany sent him a beautiful vase as a token of Germany's appreciation.

ssued four new shares of stock for each one of the old, and thus the temporary loss that he took in 1921 turnea nto a personal profit of $25,000,000.

In striking contrast, too, with Dr. Dorrance's assertion that he had made his money by the sweat of his brow, was Rosenwald's famous declaration that the ingredients which went to the making up of his own fortune were 10 per cent hard work and 90 per cent luck—and he said, with a smile, immediately afterward, that the amount of luck really ought to be figured at 95 per cent instead of 90.

He added:

"I never could understand the popular belief that because a man makes a lot of money he has a lot of brains. Some of the richest men I have met in my life have been the most stupid. There are men in America today, financial failures, who have more real brains than I ever will have. I had the luck to get my opportunity; their opportunity never came."

ONE thing he would never discuss very freely was his own philanthropy. Aside from saying that "like Topsy, it 'just growed,'" he would not talk about it. Associates said that for some time his benefactions amounted to around $6,000,000 a year—not counting the gift in his will.

One of the gifts of which he was proudest was the great industrial museum in Chcago, housed in the old Fine Arts Building of the Chicago World's Fair.

In this museum are being assembled complete working models of almost every industrial and mechanical device in the world, from steam engines down to dish-washing machines.

The Negro owes the philanthropist a good deal, too. He contributed to funds for the erection of more than 4000 schools for Negroes, helped build 16 Y. M. C. A. buildings for them, and helped to supply libraries for 140 Negro rural schools and 11 Negro normal schools and colleges.

His $500,000 gift to German war sufferers was not known publicly in the United States until 1930, when President von Hindenburg of Germany sent him a beautiful vase as a token of Germany's appreciation.

How Space May Be Conquered With Rockets

David Lasser Envisions Long Distance Projectile-Planes Moving at Incredible Speeds, Describes the Methods of Propelling Them and Says Interplanetary Navigation Is Not Unthinkable.

By GUY FORSHEY

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

LOOKING ahead to the year 1950, declares David Lasser fn his new book, "The Conquest of Space," we may confidently envision long distance rocket planes engaged in regular flights over the far places of the earth. By that time, he is convinced, experimentation now going steadily forward will have made the rocket a safe, reliable and, by all present standards, an incredibly swift vehicle of transportation. Technical problems of controlling rocket fuels will be successfully overcome within the next five years, he believes, and another five years should see the completion of simple rocket projectiles, capable of ascending 50 miles or more into the air. The following eight or 10 years will then provide time enough for the building of rocket planes and for the training of pilots and navigators to man them.

So by 1950, he concludes, world centers of population will be linked by rocket lines. Crafts unhampered by oceans, mountain ranges, jungles, storms or fogs will soar through the thin atmosphere 30 miles or so above the earth's surface and, by thus escaping most of the air's resistance, will achieve unheard-of speeds. Distance will be virtually annihilated. The Atlantic Ocean will be spanned in an hour. San Francisco will be but an hour's ride from New York. Flyers speeding westward will actually outrace the day—so this author believes, at least—and will be treated to the extraordinary experience of seeing the sun sink in the east. Great rocket ports, of the passenger capacity and complexity of metropolitan railway terminals, will be located outside all populous cities.

ALL that accomplished—and this prognosticator entertains no doubt that it will be accomplished—man will be ready to tackle seriously the problem of making one of science's wildest dreams come true. He will be ready to undertake experimentation in the direction of interplanetary travel. He will be able to wrestle intelligently and maybe successfully with the task of projecting a rocket craft out of the earth's gravitational field and guiding it across airless space with expeditions to study the moon or Mars or Venus at close range.

It is to discussion of this extravagant dream and to examination of the technical problems involved that Mr. Lasser devotes the bulk of an absorbing volume. His work, said to be the first book on "astronautics" ever published in English, has just been issued by the Penguin Press of New York, and carries an impressive introduction by Dr. H. H. Sheldon, chairman of the department of physics of New York University. Dr. Sheldon characterizes it as a milestone in the progress of rocket study in this country and reminds the reader, who may be a little skeptical, that Mr. Lasser, as president of the American Interplanetary Society and a pioneer in the field of rocket study, is in a position to know what he is talking about.

The author himself is alert to the skepticism which may greet a serious discussion of interplanetary voyages and carefully refrains from venturing predictions as to the outcome of such attempts. His forecast merely is that civilization will, within a few years, be ready to try. The dream of a voyage to Mars, he points out, is no more preposterous now than that of flying in the air or talking across the ocean would have seemed a century ago.

For some 300 years romancers have built stories around fanciful moon flights, although most of them passed rather lightly over the mechanical difficulties imposed by such flights. Cyrano de Bergerac braved official opinion to publish his "Voyages to the Moon and the Sun" in seventeenth century France. Cyrano even had his space craft propelled by rockets. Daniel Defoe, in 1700, wrote gayly of "a certain engine" which was placed on the backs of two vast bodies with "extended wings" and which carried the explorer to the moon with no trouble at all. Edgar Allen Poe, in his "Adventure of Hans Pfaall," employed a balloon for his flight and took the matter seriously enough to warn the reader against belief in it. Jules Verne, half a century later, had still another idea. He used a gigantic cannon, with a bore 900 feet long, from which the space ship was shot toward the zenith. H. G. Wells used a gravity repelling force emanating from some mysterious substance with which he covered the earth side of his ship. That was supposed to nullify the earth's attraction and leave the moon's force of gravity free to work on the uncovered side of the ship. Indeed, literature is full of fanciful space flights which are always managed easily through some "new discovery."

THE author of this treatise entertains no hopes for startling new discoveries which will make the feat of traveling to the moon an easy one. He confines himself to the materials and principles with which science already is acquainted and reviews some of the problems the astronaut will encounter in making these fit his purpose. The only "new discovery" upon which he depends is the perfection of a rocket fuel which will carry more energy per unit of weight than any so far employed. Scientists already are at work on this problem and, at the new "rocket flying field" established just outside Berlin two years ago, have utilized a combination of liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen with marked success. Find the type of fuel that will provide sufficient power without burdening the craft too greatly by its own weight, says Lasser, and the first great problem of astronautics will be solved. But that is just one problem. There are plenty more.

"To escape from the earth," he writes, "we must construct a vehicle to overcome the relentless gravitational pull; penetrate the 250 miles of air that blankets her and emerge into the vacuum of interplanetary space. To visit the moon requires a journey of 240,000 miles across the void, and to reach Mars or Venus a gulf of 30,000,000 to 50,000,000 miles must be traversed.

"The vehicle must be able not only to lift itself away from the earth, but also have sufficient energy to continue to combat the earth's pull. Otherwise, the ship would crash back to destruction on the earth's surface. For the gravitational sphere of the earth does not, as pleasant romancers of former ages believed, cease once we are beyond her atmosphere. It continues, though diminishing in intensity, to infinity.

"To be free of the earth's pull, the ship must be shot away from it with a velocity of approximately seven miles a second, or 100 times the speed of the fastest airplane.

"This speed, however, must not be attained too quickly, for in passing through the atmosphere in such meteoric fashion the ship would be heated almost to incandescence. It must start slowly from the earth, acquire velocity gradually, and reach its seven-mile-a-second speed only when it emerges in airless space. The continued operation of the ship's motors, even where no air exists is thus a prime necessity.

"The ship must also be capable of guidance and maneuvering in interplanetary space. As will be seen later, the space flight requires complete adherence to a rigidly plotted course through the heavens.

"Since human beings are to guide the craft on its journey, provision must be made within its walls for adequate supplies of food, water and air, and for the maintenance of a comfortable temperature."

Not only must these provisions be made for the period of actual travel through space, the author points out. They must be made also for the period the traveler spends on the moon, if, indeed, he is able to effect a landing at all. The moon has no atmosphere, and consequently no life. Even its surface temperature would preclude the existence of such life as we know. Astronomical computations have shown that during its long night—it rotates on its axis once in 28 days—the temperature on the dark side is as low as 243 degrees below zero Fahrenheit, approaching the extreme cold of space itself. On the bright side, conversely, the sun's rays, unhampered by any atmosphere, beat down with merciless intensity, creating a surface temperature of 216 degrees. Water, if there were any, would speedily vanish as vapor in such a heat.

THE traveler, therefore, if he expected to land and explore the moon's surface, would have to provide himself with a sort of "thermos bottle" suit, which would not only contain oxygen for him to breathe, but provide also some kind of insulation to protect him from the extremes of temperature, and even then it is probable that he would have to restrict his operations to a narrow belt along the border between night and day. Getting about in this heavy armor might be difficult, but probably less difficult than on the earth, for its weight on the moon would be only about one-fourth of its weight on earth.

Even on Mars, Mr. Lasser believes, the visitor from the earth would still need his "space suit." For the atmosphere on Mars, so far as astronomers have been able to determine, is extremely rare—only about half as dense as that at the top of Mount Everest. The Martian temperature also is extremely variable with day and night, principally because the atmospheric blanket is not sufficient to retain the heat after the sun has gone down. Noonday temperatures on Mars, when the planet is closest to the sun, are estimated to be about 72 degrees, a very pleasant temperature even for exacting earth dwellers. But at that time of year when the planet is farthest from the sun these noonday temperatures drop to 40 degrees below zero, and night temperatures the year around are believed to be well below zero.

ON VENUS, however, the visitor might find conditions far more to his liking. The heavy clouds which so completely envelop the planet as to hide all surface markings show that Venus is abundantly supplied with atmosphere. And temperature observations indicate the surface is as warm or warmer than that of the earth. Indeed, many astronomers believe that conditions on Venus now are similar to those which prevailed on the earth in Paleozoic times, when animal life forms were primitive and land areas were covered with swamps and dense vegetation. Taking conditions all around, the chances are that men would be able to get along very well unless swept away by violent storms or devoured by giant reptiles.

The author concedes, however, that worry about what the traveler is going to find on Mars or Venus is a bit premature. He has a great many things to worry about before he is ready for those problems. There is, for example, the problem of meteors. It is estimated that these celestial wanderers, ranging in size from that of dust particles to the dimensions of a battleship, rain upon the earth at the rate of 10,000,000 a day. Of course, very few of them ever reach the earth's surface. They are ignited by friction in the atmosphere and burned up. But what about the fate of a rocket craft that ventures beyond this atmospheric protection? Will it not be pelted incessantly and speedily destroyed? These meteors are traveling at enormous velocities—15 to 45 miles a second. At such a velocity a meteor the size of a pin head would penetrate any armor plate, admitting to the space ship's interior the terrific cold of space and providing an escape for the precious oxygen.

There is also the hazard arising from cosmic rays. As yet, scientists

BARBOURVILLE, Kentucky.

SAM GAMBRELL and Walter Smith met at Andy Smith's store on Stinkin' Creek one recent Saturday night and, having enmity toward each other, they shot it out behind the store stove and killed each other in the summary way that is sanctioned by Stinkin' Creek custom. It was not an important occurrence, as such matters are rated hereabouts. Both men being dead, there was nothing to be done about it. Sam was buried on Stinkin' Creek and Walter was put away in Scratchankle burying ground, and with the buryings the incident was closed.

As a first class double killing according to the mountain mode, however, the affair of Sam and Walter brought to the outside world's attention the fact that Knox County, claiming Stinkin' Creek as part of its domain, is regulated by a little woman sheriff, and although regulating a mountain county is commonly looked upon as a man-sized job, the little woman sheriff seems to be handling the situation very well, barring such impromptu killings as occur from time to time along the creeks of the best regulated of mountain counties.

Mrs. Jennie Lee Mealer Walker is the way she signs her name. Back in the hills they call her "Sherf" Walker. She is the only woman ever elected sheriff in Kentucky. Two or three other women have been appointed sheriff, usually succeeding their husbands, killed in the line of duty. Mrs. Walker ran for the office when her husband was disqualified, following his nomination. Although she is a Democrat and Democrats are powerful scarce in Knox County, she beat the Republican candidate and an independent.

Knox County is not the worst or the best of the mountain counties, just about average one might say, but it has Stinkin' Creek to govern, and there is only one Stinkin' Creek. One, for that matter, is enough. Just about nine-tenths of the county's killings occur along that delectable watershed, which means that the little woman sheriff has plenty of trouble, for the upper reaches of the creek, with its forks and branches, are remote and inaccessible except on horseback.

The creek is more than a creek. It is a region. Its headwaters are up against the divide where the waters flow one way into the Kentucky River and the other way into the Cumberland. On its way to the Cumberland it gathers to itself the waters of numerous branches with identifying names but merging into the larger classification that is called Stinkin' when something untoward happens up that way.

Sam Gambrell, for instance, lived on Spruce Pine branch above where it empties into Goose Creek and Walter Smith lived on Cole branch near its mouth. Distant neighbors but near enough to have engaged, in times past, as partners in a moonshine project, one of the major activities of the region that gives the woman sheriff plenty of trouble. They fell out after a while and went their different ways.

It was remarked, after their falling out, that federal officers came more frequently than before and found their way to stills that had seemed safely hidden. The obvious deduction was that somebody was telling. Suspicion fell upon Sam Gambrell as the one who had turned reformer and informer. It did not increase his popularity, particularly with Walter Smith, who may have felt a sort of humiliation that a former partner of his should do a thing like that. There slowly grew a "feelin' " between them. They met Christmas a year ago and had a little trouble and last Christmas they met and had a little more trouble. Afterward Gambrell was heard to say that if Walter Smith bothered him again he would kill him. Smith was said to have expressed himself to the same general effect. Conditions were propitious for trouble.

That was the situation when Smith drifted into Andy Smith's store at the mouth of Bell fork. Gambrell was there. The men eyed each other narrowly. Andy Smith and the Saturday night loungers shifted their positions.

"Let me see you a minute," said Smith to Gambrell, the formula that leads up to a serious discussion.

THE two men walked toward the back of the store, each passing on opposite sides of the stove. Passing the stove each drew, Smith his Luger pistol and Gambrell his .38 special revolver. Clearing the stove they fired almost simultaneously, almost at arm's length.

When the firing ceased Gambrell lay on the floor dead and Smith lay across him, shot through the body. He might have recovered if help had been near, but he had to be hauled some fifteen miles in a wagon to the nearest paved road. It was hours before he was delivered at Pineville hospital, where he died from loss of blood.

It was the well established custom of mountain men killing each other on slight provocation or no provocation at all.

The story of how Mrs. Walker became Sheriff really begins from the time Reed P. Black, Sheriff of Knox, resigned. B. P. Walker was appointed to fill out the term. He liked it so well that he came out for the office at the ensuing election, but was defeated by James Carnes.

When Carnes' term expired, Walker came out again for the nomination, announcing that if he was elected widows whose taxes were less than $20 would not have to pay any. He got the nomination but S. H. Jones and Ike Taylor, who didn't get it, contested Walker's nomination on the ground that his promises to pay the widows' taxes constituted a violation of the corrupt practices act. Circuit Judge Rose ruled in their favor and Walker carried it up to the Court of Appeals.

It seemed unlikely that the Court of Appeals would decide the case in time for Walker to get on the ticket even if the decision was in his favor. That was where Mrs. Walker came in. Her husband's supporters went to her and told her it was her duty to run in her husband's place. She demurred. She did not want to be sheriff. She about had her hands full keeping house and taking care of her five children. But they insisted. They pointed out that the voters had nominated her husband and she owed it to them to take his place.

Mrs. Walker was not the person to stand back when there was a call to duty. She did what might have been expected of a great-grand-niece of General Robert E. Lee, with a background of fighting ancestors as far as colonial days. She said she would run. Nobody had a better right, for she was born in Knox County, just on yon side of the Cumberland.

Chief Deputy Walker.

A petition was circulated and filed in the time required, 45 days before the election, designating her as an independent candidate. Opposed to her were Ike Taylor, Republican, and Enoch Smith, independent. It was well known, however, that she was a Democrat, such a staunch one that, although she had been married 20 years to a Republican, she had continued to be a Democrat.

She decorated her campaign cards with a portrait of her husband, captioning it "My Device," to take the place of the party device usually placed on campaign cards. She called on the voters to "right the wrong," saying:

> My husband was nominated by the votes of the people and Ike Taylor took his nomination away from him. B. F. Walker is the people's choice by their votes. Will you stand for it? Answer by your vote at the polls.

Fifteen days after Mrs. Walker became a candidate the Court of Appeals sustained the circuit judge in ruling Walker off of the ticket, but the decision only gave stimulus to Mrs. Walker's campaign.

THE woman candidate was handicapped by being quarantined in her home until only ten days of the campaign remained. She made good use of the ten days, traveling over the county, not missing Stinkin' Creek, appealing to the voters.

The men of Knox had not thought that there would ever come a time when a woman would be their sheriff but they liked the determined little woman who wanted the post and they voted for her and when the ballots were counted it was found that she had been elected by an ample margin.

In her electioneering she had made only one promise, which was that only sober, honest and fearless deputies would be employed.

The first thing she did was to appoint her husband as her chief deputy. She needed a good man to do some of the things that a little woman could not do as well as a man. As, for instance, when somebody had to ride up Stinkin' Creek looking for Walter Smith, the same Walter Smith who later shot it out with Sam Gambrell and was killed. He was wanted then for a little thing like forgery, but he was a bad man and it would not be easy to get him. He had been "scouting," which is what they call it on Stinkin' Creek when a man hides out from the law.

Walker went up there and did a little scouting of his own, waiting for Smith to sneak home. When he did, Walker walked in on him. He tried to make a getaway through the back door but was caught. It was night and hardly advisable to make the long ride back to Barbourville in the darkness, so he took his man to the house of a neighbor, Tom Carnes. Walker did not fancy sitting up all night to guard his prisoner. He handcuffed Smith's right wrist to his own right, being a left-handed man and wanting to keep his good left free. He parked his gun at the far side of the room and they went to bed. Next morning Walker brought his man to jail. He was convicted and went to prison. It was after he came out that the trouble with Gambrell began.

FREQUENTLY there were occasions when the woman sheriff needed a capable man deputy to look after affairs. As when Dan Grace, the jailer, was killed. Grace had appointed Ike Taylor as his deputy jailer. Jim Mat Taylor, son of Ike, came around the jail one day making trouble and Grace tried to pacify him. Jim Mat shot and killed Grace and was sent up for life for it. And just the other day Deputy Sheriff Stewart was killed. He had some trouble at Artemus with Peg Kinder and was trying to shoot Kinder when a bystander struck down his pistol and the bullet lodged in his own leg. There was the usual delay in getting him to the hospital and he died from loss of blood.

The Knox county coal field has been involved in the recent coal strike and there has been a bit of bloodshed growing out of that.

From one cause and another killings are rather frequent in the woman sheriff's realm, causing a Laurel county newspaper to group the week's casualties somewhat facetiously under the heading, "Still Killing 'Em in Knox." Not that Laurel county is in a position to throw stones at Knox, having its own fair share of killings as the days go by, but it goes to show the kind of life that is cut out for the woman sheriff of Knox. Attending to killings are all in the day's work for her and she does not shrink from the hard duties that she has to face. With it all she finds time to do her housekeeping and look after her children. When she is about her home duties her car stands on the lawn at her front door ready for a quick getaway when the telephone rings and she is informed that there is trouble somewhere.

As might be expected from a woman whose ancestors were Knox County pioneers, who was born in the county and has lived here all her life, Mrs. Walker has nothing but high praise for the citizens of Knox. That goes, too, for the generality of dwellers up Stinkin' Creek. "There are some mighty good citizens on Stinkin'," she says. "They will share with a stranger

Hard times, depression, talking pictures, the stock market and the total loss of perspective as to the value of gold, has been sending the little actresses scurrying into bankruptcy courts and dodging process servers who stalk them on the streets. With $3000-a-week and $4000-a-week salaries disappearing from payrolls under the cut-the-cost orders from bankers, the picture girls are almost in panic.

The Madge Bellamy quarter-million-dollar home has been sold under the auctioneer's hammer for $10,000, which was less than the cost of the foundation. The $50,000 residence of the Duncan sisters in White Plains, New York, was seized by the Prudential Insurance Company because of default in taxes and interest on a $25,000 mortgage. The beautiful Harry Langdon residence in Beverly Hills has been surrendered to James F. Dickason, from whom it was purchased, because of the comedian's failure to pay $11,129 in notes. The Colleen Moore palace is on the market, not because Colleen is broke but because her half-million-a-year income from the "movies" has stopped and it's too costly a place to maintain. Clara Bow is trying to get $17,000 for her residence in Beverly Hills, as her income likewise has been lopped.

Harry Langdon.

More than a score of young women whose names have flickered in electric lights over the theaters are in for personal appearances in the courts to defend suits filed against them by creditors, and not a few frankly admit they have nothing with which to pay.

Missing are the usual shiny new automobiles of 12 cylinders. Without jobs are countless well-trained personal maids and chauffeurs. "For Rent," say signs on many luxurious triple apartments. On the road in vaudeville are picture actresses, ostensibly "between engagements." Modes of living are undergoing a change.

Outstanding among all the financial crashes is the plight of the Duncan sisters, producers of the world famed play, "Topsy and Eva." Vivian and Rosetta are broke. Three years ago they had a million dollars and the money was rolling in faster than they could count. In fact, they stopped counting and employed their father at a salary of approximately $12,000 a year to harvest the crop and place it in a bin.

Today they are in the hands of receivers, with a trustee trying to salvage something from the wreck. In a voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed in Federal Court, they list their liabilities at $405,097 and their assets as $22,500.

"We bought two goldless gold mines, one in Arizona and one in Mexico," says Vivian. "We played margins in Wall street. Everyone with something to sell was plying us with propositions backstage while we were doing our act. We signed up for almost anything they had to offer, most of the time without reading what we were signing. We listened to everyone. Now, we are penniless.

To which Rosetta added:

"I lost my bank account in New York just a few months ago. (There was only $53 left in it.) Then they seized my car, which I'd only had a month and on which I hadn't completed the first payment."

"YEAH!" chimed in Vivian again. "We pawned our jewelry in London—got $5000 on it. We used that to live on. We lost our insurance policies because we couldn't keep up the payments. Then they served notice of foreclosure proceedings under the mortgage on our New York home. We backed our brother Harold in the restaurant business and lost a lot. We asked for an income tax refund and the Government came back with another bill. We have only worked 20 weeks in the last two years. Now, we don't have any car or any bank account, and about the only things left to remind us of those other days are our fur coats. I have three and Rosetta two."

Creditors who gathered at the hearings before Referee Rupert Turnbull began developing "long faces" as the famous pair told of their losses and present plight. G. C. Reid, who had acted as their business agent, promptly gave notice that a suit he had brought against them for $250,000 would be dismissed.

Vivian now is the wife of Nils Asther, motion picture actor. Rosetta is unmarried and facing the world alone. But the sisters are preparing to "team up" again and start anew.

Next outstanding, perhaps, is the case of Mary Nolan, originally known as Imogene Wilson, the beautiful blonde whom Frank Tinney once belabored with his fists. Two years ago, Miss Nolan was reputed to be earning $250,000 a year from her picture work. Now she's bankrupt. According to her petition, filed in court a few months ago, she was $52,000 "in the hole," with assets "nothing." She became the wife of Wallace T. Macrery, now a Hollywood shop owner, and creditors have been annoying him for debts.

"They won't give me a chance to get on my feet!" Miss Nolan complained.

She was sued by her cook and by her chauffeur; sued by her nurse and sued by her maid. She was sued for $695 for clothing purchased in Munich, Germany, two years ago, and sued for house furnishings, bought locally, for $1850. Included in the latter was "one chaise lounge in silk, with special velvet cover, $300, silk canopy in bedroom, $100, and one statue of French bronze and enamel, $275," according to the records. Her greatest grief came in facing wage claims filed by models, tailors and other employes of the gown shop which she and her husband opened on fashionable Wilshire boulevard. An angry crowd of 13 men and women stormed the City Prosecutor's office one day recently, when she was scheduled to appear.

"She tore my veil," cried another.

Miss Nolan was working in a picture and did not arrive, so 13 warrants were issued for her arrest.

"She will clear up everything when she gets her pay," Attorney Keith Carlin insisted.

Perhaps the most annoying revelation was made by Louis Eist, a violinist.

"I played, in her home, 'to sooth her nerves,' " he said to Justice of the Peace Billings in Beverly Hills. "Five hours I played, at $10 an hour. I want my money!"

IT JUST so happened that Justice Billings was an old fiddler, himself. Thirty years ago he used to play "The Irish Washerwoman," "Gerry Owen" and other old-time melodies, and he thought $5 a night was mighty good pay.

"That was when music was music and not just a lot of noise," he said. "I fiddled the whole night through just to entertain folks—and I didn't get any such fee. How about splitting the difference here—compromising at $25?"

After a little dickering he consented to a reduction of $13, and Miss Nolan agreed to pay $37 within a week.

But still Miss Nolan's financial troubles continue. It seems that every time she goes out on the street some mean old process server hands her a paper. Once the deputies heard that she was having luncheon in a fashionable Hollywood cafe and hurried there, to find she had just left. But they got her at one of the busiest street intersections and hustled her to a Justice court. Regarding which indignity she delivered an oration.

One of the strangest features of the actresses' bankruptcy petitions is that they often list unpaid income taxes due the Government on their previous enormous earnings. When Molly O'Day and Sally O'Neill, sisters, threw up their hands and declared they were broke, they listed their liabilities at $43,820 and their assets as $3500. Molly said she was $12,798.78 "in the red" and the only thing in the world she had was $200 worth of personal clothing. And she owed the Government $109.70 unpaid income taxes. Sally fixed her liabilities at $31,021.56, in which was an item of $3007 due the Federal Government. The Duncan sisters sluffed $13,000 in taxes they owed the United States when they went the bankruptcy route.

SALLY O'NEILL and Molly O'Day, once earning thousands, have found the days of depression tough. With their mother, they were sued for a $500 bill assertedly due a Hollywood apartment house. Molly was sued for $145 for limousine and taxi service. Sally and her mother were sued for $140.19 for a grocery bill. A furniture company brought action against Sally for a $3300 furniture bill, asserting that it stocked her home on North Rossmore avenue with everything from a bread box to a grand piano, and then she failed to make payments. Sally's reply was that the company had perpetrated fraud by selling the furniture to her during her minority.

Yet, a few years ago, Sally and Molly had the most glittering motor car in all Hollywood, chauffeur and servants!

Then there is Lola Lane, who became the bride of Lew Ayres last September. A short time prior to their wedding, Lola bought hats and gowns in beautiful array from a Hollywood shop and was splendidly outfitted when she and Lew headed for Las Vegas, Nevada, to take their vows. Judge William E. Orr was hearing a murder case when they arrived, but he recessed court to help Miss Lane become Mrs. Ayres. Shortly after their return to the City of Films the gown shop demanded $962.50 from Lola. Not receiving the money it attached the salary of Ayres at Universal Studios to cover the amount. Whereupon, Lola promptly fled to the bankruptcy court, declaring that she owed $4470.10 for bills contracted prior to her marriage and she had assets of only $1836.05 with which to pay them. Included in these assets was the $962.50 held by Universal under the attachment on Ayres' salary. She insisted, however, that it was not her property and that the money really belonged to her husband. She said he had advanced her $600 prior to their marriage.

The picture girls now say, "anything to cut expenses!" Exquisite dresses, some of them imported from France, are being sold by Hollywood shops without giving the names of their former owners. Jewelry has gone into pawn or been sold. Contracts are being dropped by studio executives in rapid succession.

Not so long ago, Mary Carr, famous "mother of the screen," was

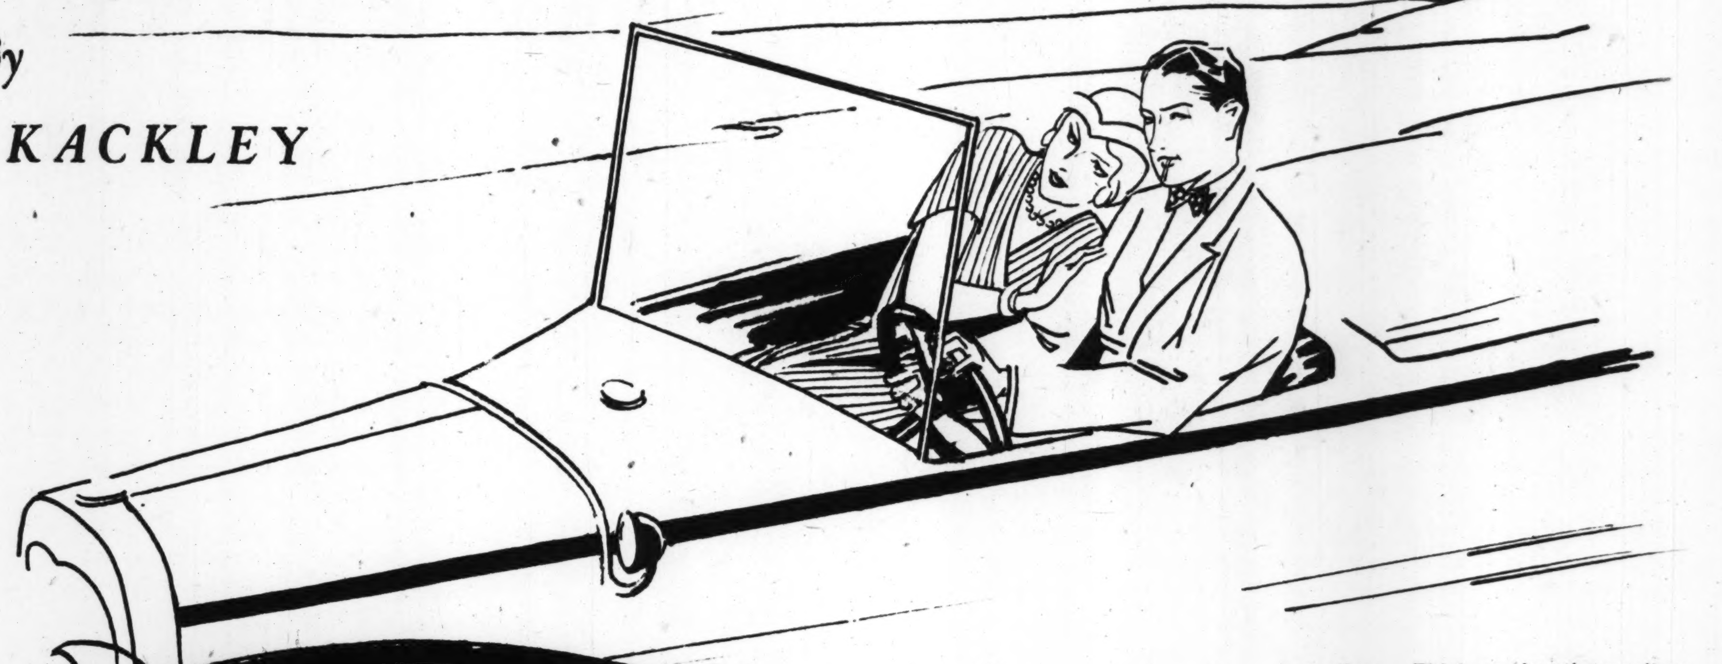
HONEYMOON

By

VERA D. KACKLEY



"LOVE me, Baby?"

"Uh-huh," the blond girl with too red lips smiled up through lashes mascaraed into stiff, black poles. She snuggled closer. "Sure, I do."

His cap was in the back seat. His hair was tousled in the wind. His shirt was open at the throat. His hands, with their blunt mechanic's fingernails, were careless on the steering wheel.

The road stretched ahead gray and dusty. To the left, a rolling country brown and barren, sweeping into the burning stretches of Imperial Valley. To the right, the broad expanse of Pacific Ocean glittering and shifting under the September sun.

"Swell." But Marie did not look at the ocean. She looked at the man beside her.

Did she love him? he had asked her. She smiled to herself. She had loved him since that morning early last April when he had first come into the Los Angeles five and dime store where she worked.

She hadn't known him then. She had only known that he was tall and curly-haired and had an ingratiating grin, and she had fallen for him hard. And now they were married and on their honeymoon.

"I remember the first time I ever saw you, Bill," she began hesitatingly.

"Aw, you don't, do you?"

"I do, too." She stirred half resentfully in the seat. "I was weighin' out chocolate creams—they were kind of mashed—for an old girl in a checked dress. You came in the door and I guess I must of just stood there with the scoop of chocolate creams on the scales, lookin' at you.

"All of a sudden the old girl said, real cross, 'Will you hurry, please? I am trying to catch a car!' "

Bill grinned at her, sympathetically.

"I guess I must have been pretty rattled," Marie went on, after a reflective pause. "Anyway, I gave her the wrong change and I had to make it up that night when my cash register was short."

"Poor baby!"

"Oh, I didn't care—very much," she added quickly. "I had a date with you that night."

"So you hooked me right then?" indulgently.

"Not right then, I didn't," Marie admitted truthfully. "I didn't hook you until you came back"——

Oh, I came back, did I?"

"Sure you did," Marie said. "While I was waitin' on the woman you were in the back of the store, back there where they keep wrenches and bathroom plugs and things. I leaned down behind the counter and put on some powder and more lipstick"——

She chuckled.

"Makin' up was against the rules, too, in workin' hours. You stopped at the candy counter when you went out and said, 'Kid, where you been all my life?' an' I said, 'Right here, Big Boy, waitin' for you.' I'd heard the other girls say that, but after I said it I was scared you'd think I was fresh or would know that I really meant it.

"You ast me for a date and then you took me to Santa Monica to a dance. Don't you remember, Bill, the dance hall with the porch all splashed with salty spray from the waves? The orchestra was playin' 'Sundown' and the dance room lights were changin' from mulberry to violet when we went in. That was the first time you ever danced with me.

"The next day Jessie—that was the girl who had the gum counter nex' to my candy counter, Bill—the next day Jessie said, 'What's the matter, honey? Seein' yourself in a vine-covered cottage?'

"An' I said, 'With furniture!' An' I really was, Bill. I knew right away I wanted you and a home of my own and furniture."

"Oh, that's where the furniture idea came from?" Bill was enjoying himself. Expertly, he turned the car out to avoid a lumbering truck. "Nutty driver!" he muttered under his breath.

"Sure," Marie went on, as if there had been no interruption, "I always had wanted furniture, Bill!" She grabbed him frenziedly by the arm. "Bill, where is it?"

"Where's what, Baby?"

"You know, honey—the money for the furniture?" She was panicky.

"Right here." He nonchalantly slapped his pocket.

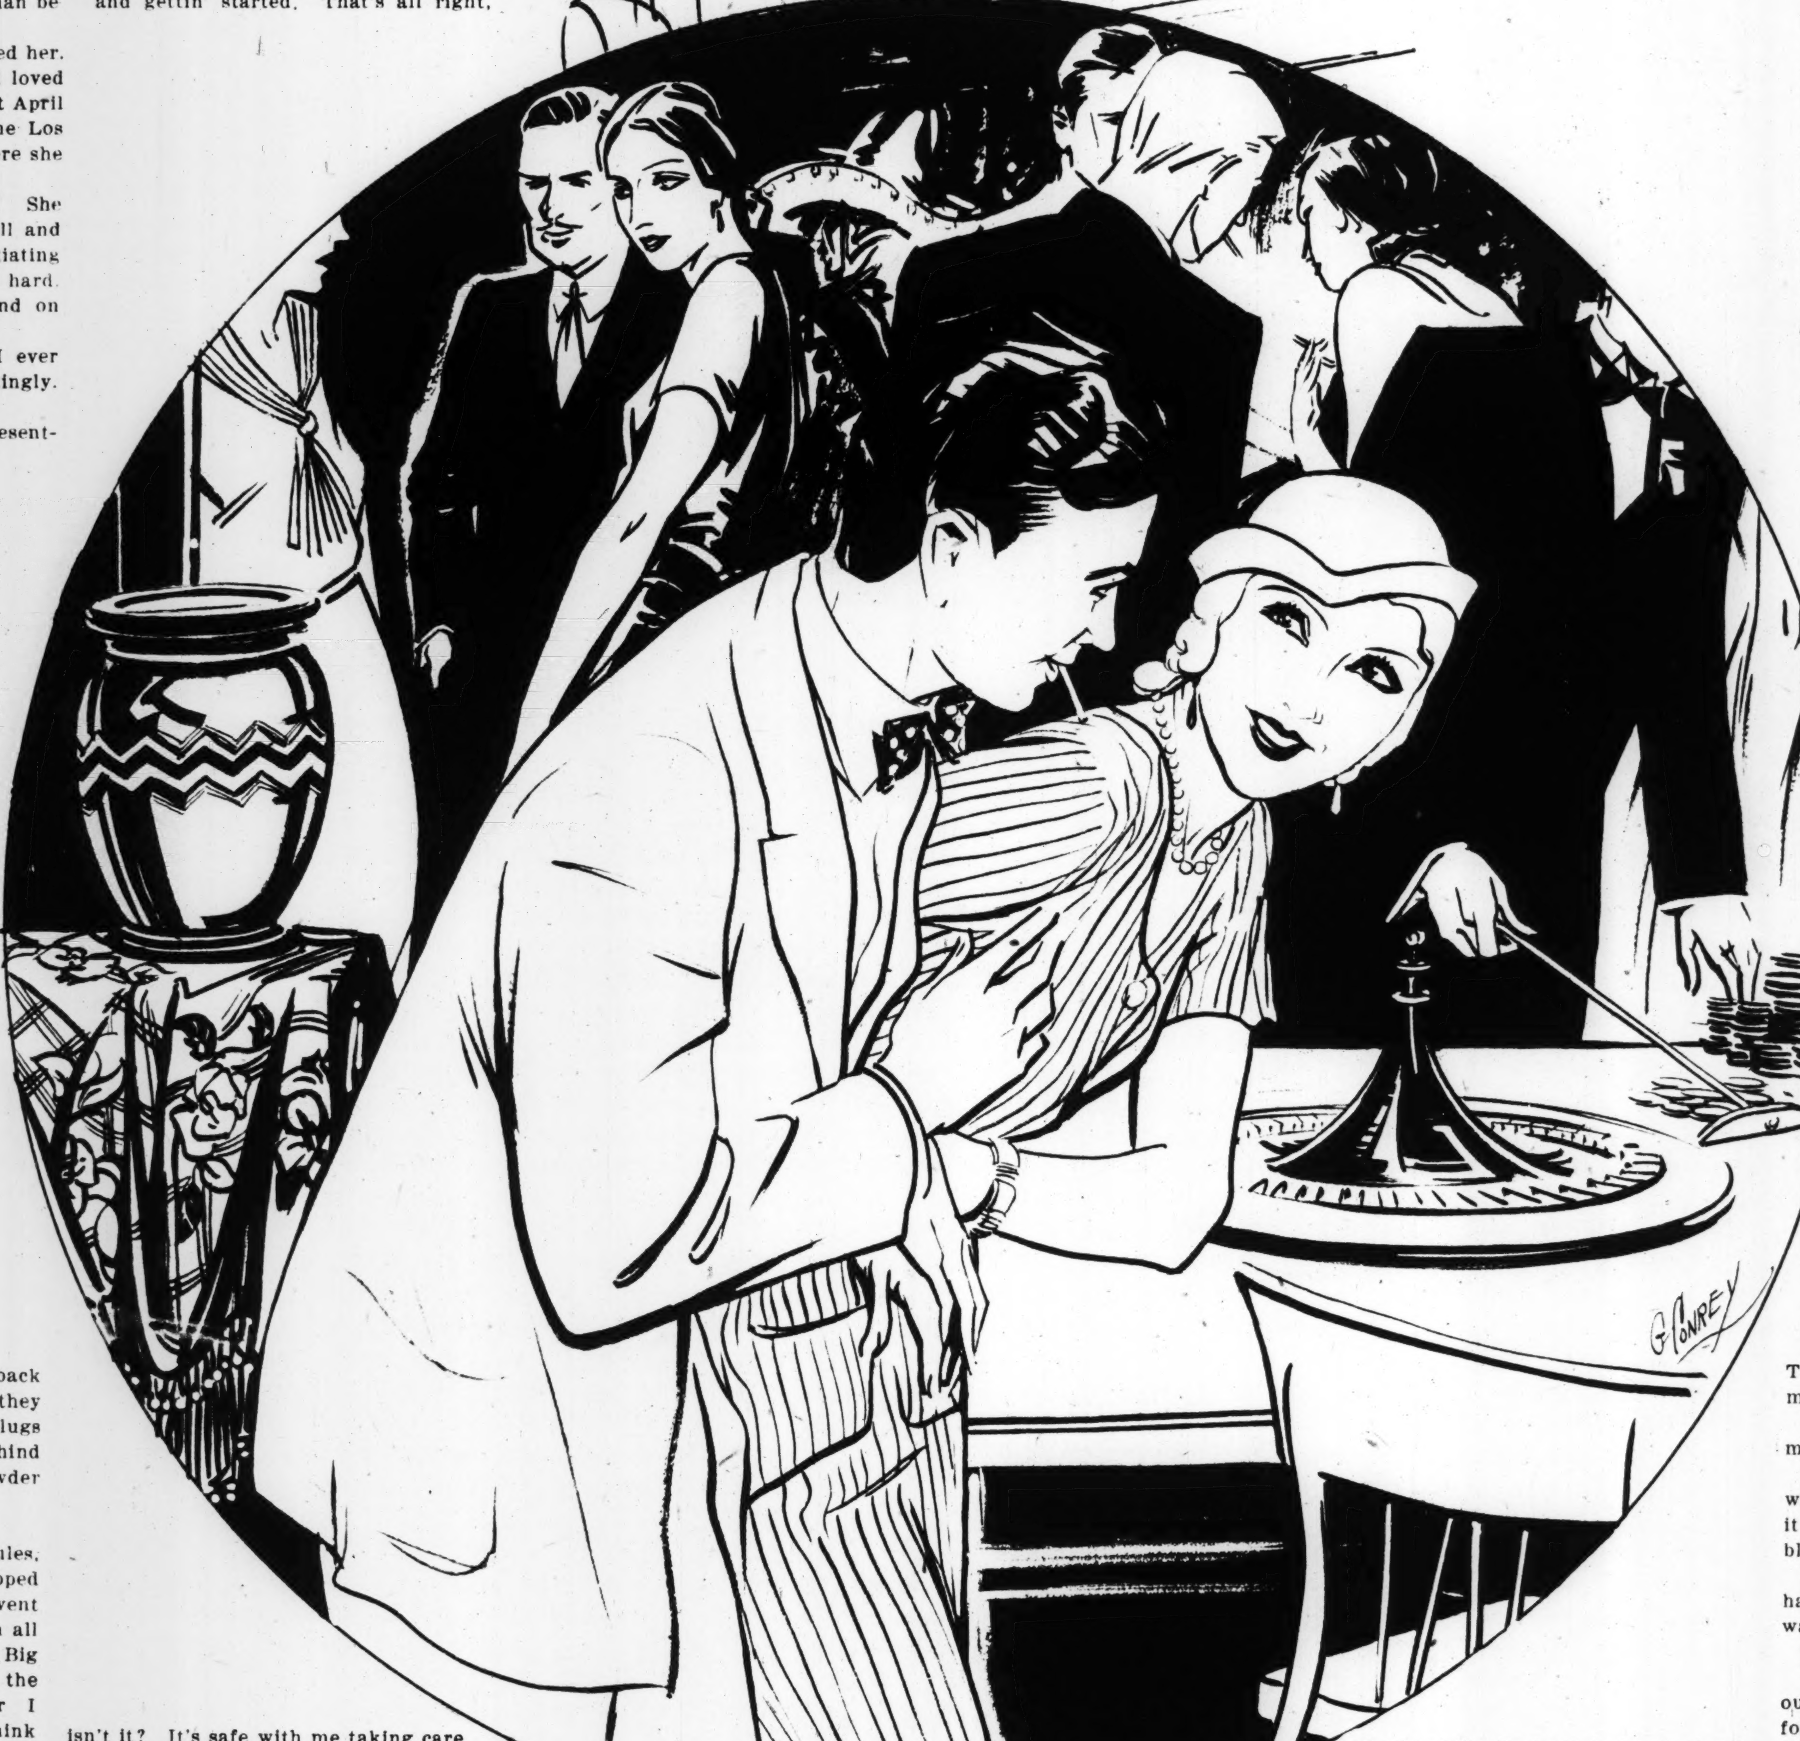
"But Bill," she gasped, "I thought you was goin' to put it in the bank yesterday!"

"I was, Baby," he admitted, "but just then a guy came in with a car to fix up and by the time I was through the bank was closed. This morning, of course, with getting married and all, there wasn't time. It'll be all right."

"But something might happen to it! We might be robbed!"

"Say!" he turned to her, the masterful man and head of his household. "Do you mean to sit there and tell me I'm not able to take care of $530? That's what it is, right here in the black billfold—the $425 we plank down for furniture the minute we get back to L. A., $40 for our first month's rent, and the rest for our honeymoon and gettin' started. That's all right, isn't it? It's safe with me taking care of it!"

"Oh, sure, of course it is," she added quickly. "I was just thinkin', though, what we would do if somebody came upon us here in the road and tried to take it away from us. It's all right, though, honey. I know you'll take care of it."



"Watch, baby," said Bill, "and I'll show you how to play it."

THE furniture had come up in a funny way. She and Bill had been walking down Los Angeles' Fifth street talking about buying her a diamond engagement ring.

"I know a fellow who'll let me have a swell diamond, a big one, for $150, and I've got the $150." Bill was boasting.

She had stopped him short. "Bill, look, please, look!" It was "Four Rooms, Complete" — complete furniture for four rooms—displayed in one of the ornate store windows. All the pieces for a modern flat were there.

The cherry bed exactly matched the cherry bedroom vanity, the cherry bedroom vanity exactly matched the cherry bedroom chairs and the cherry bedroom chairs exactly matched each other.

The kitchen things looked a great deal like the shining dining room table and chairs, and they in turn bore a resemblance that might have been startling—to anyone except Marie—to the living room pieces. The big davenport of the living room suite was upholstered in a design of gorgeous chrysanthemums.

"Bill, isn't that the grandest davenport you ever saw!" she breathed. "Oh, they're all just beautiful!"

She feasted her eyes, and then she pulled him into the store after her. "Let's get the man to show us," she coaxed.

The man had been accommodating. He let them sit on the prized davenport and test out the chairs. He showed them the good points of the furniture, stressed that the pieces were new and matched, and pointed out that the price of the whole set was $425.

Marie had flown about, opening drawers, running her hands over the glossy surface of the varnished wood and thumping the pillows. "It's the prettiest furniture I ever saw in my whole life!" she gloated.

That night, over their dinner of chow mein at the edge of Chinatown, Marie pleaded: "Bill, listen, I don't need a di'mond ring."

"You don't need a diamond ring?" His tone indicated he thought she had said she didn't need to wear clothes.

"No, I don't." Her voice was desperate. "Honey, I won't forget I'm engaged to you, even if I don't have a di'mond ring to remind me."

"What do you want, then, if you don't want a ring?"

Her face, with its childish mouth, was close to his.

"Honey, I've always lived at home with mamma and papa and the kids, you know. The folks always have had furnished places. I'm so sick of it—old, broken-down stuff that's shabby and worn out and nobody else wants. Sofas with springs stickin' out and chairs with splintery rockers." She made a grimace of distaste.

"And not a thing that matches anything else. I always thought if I ever got married I maybe could have some nice new furniture that goes together and nobody ever had before me."

"ALL right," he said briefly, "have it your way." She was a funny little kid, he thought, but she never had had much. If she wanted four rooms of furniture instead of a diamond ring, he guessed it didn't make much difference to him.

When the summer had rolled around and their September wedding day had come, they had the cash for the furniture saved, and enough for the rent, the incidentals of starting housekeeping, and the honeymoon.

Marie had been the custodian of the money as they saved it. She had turned it over to him yesterday to put the furniture money in the bank. She wished uneasily that he had put it in the bank instead of bringing it along. But it would be all right.

Soon all the cars halted. Men in dark uniforms and with thick black mustaches came over and stared inside the car. They crossed the border and entered Mexico.

They were upon a town, a curious sort of town. It seemed to have only one main street, with low, two-storied buildings along each side, and arcades casting shadows on the sidewalk at the edge of the street.

"Tijuana! Look, Baby, it's Tijuana!" Bill exulted.

They parked the Ford and stepped into the street. Then they went through doors that swung into the street. She had tight hold of his arm.

Men and women, some of them expensively dressed, sat at tables and languidly blew suds from glasses. They were slumming and enjoying it.

Marie and Bill sat down at a table, and when a waiter appeared, Bill ordered a drink in a business-like way.

Marie drank hers in little sips, trying to keep Bill from knowing that she didn't like it. Bill ordered again.

The orchestra was playing "Sundown." She heard it, muffled as from a great distance. What was it she remembered about "Sundown"?—Oh, yes, "Sundown" and mulberry lights turning to violet. And furniture.

"Too slow over here," Bill grunted at last. "Let's go to the Foreign Club. That's where the real people are."

The Foreign Club turned out to be a bedlam. Thick smoke, the smell of liquor, the hoarse calls of the dealers, the occasional protests of the losers, the slap-slap of cards, the rattle of dice.

House poker players were backing their skill against all comers. "Hit 'er . . . Hit 'er . . . Stand!" came from the black-jack tables. The three big dice in the bird cage jolted and turned.

THEY watched roulette. "That's funny, that checkerboard and that ball that keeps goin' around. What does it do that for?"

"Watch, Baby," said Bill, "and I'll show you how to play it."

He got $5 worth of halves and began to bet. The wheel spun, stopped, spun again. Sometimes he won, sometimes he lost. Now he was $2 ahead; now he was $8 behind. He doubled his bet, explaining to Marie that that was the way to win at roulette — always double your bets when you lose—and bet again.

His $16 was lost. Doubling his bet, he slid out $32.

"Bill!" Marie screamed. She had just remembered. It had come through the fog of smoke, the fog of voices, the fog of beer. The darling, shining furniture, the furniture that was to be hers and Bill's and that they were to begin housekeeping with.

"You can't do it!" Marie shrieked. "You can't do it! That's the money for our furniture! You can't do it! I won't let you! It's mine!"

Men shoved her back. She fought and clawed a bit. The tears streamed down her face. She made no effort to wipe them away.

"Bill, give me that money. You mustn't lose it!" she begged.

Bill didn't have time to think. The wheel was spinning and he couldn't let it go by. He laid down the $64 on black just in time.

Marie was silent now, and her tears had stopped. Chalky white, she stood watching the spinning ball.

"Red 20 pays," said the dealer.

"Honey!" Bill choked that one word out in a voice she had never heard before. His head sank into his hands.

BETS were coming out. The dealer's hand was reaching to spin the wheel. "Are you betting? Are you betting? It's $128 now. Are you betting $128 on the black?"

Marie was shaken by the gambler's cold voice. It was the thing that roused her from her husband's choked "Honey!" and his agonized face. Nothing mattered now, but to make Bill feel that he wasn't the only one to blame. She ran to Bill and put her arms around him.

"Yes, he is," she answered. "One hundred and twenty-eight on black."

It was the four rooms of shining furniture that she laid there on the board. But it was balanced against Bill and the look she had seen in his eyes. The wheel was spinning. The murmur of voice died out of hearing.

She had saved Bill from blaming himself.

The road stretched ahead gray and dusty. Tijuana was far behind, the lights of Los Angeles just ahead.

"Look, honey, ain't it pretty?"

"Love me, Baby?"

"Uh-huh," the blond girl with the too-red lips smiled up through lashes mascaraed into stiff black poles. She snuggled closer. "Sure I do."

Son of a St.

By a Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

NEW YORK audiences were stirred for a year and a half by the superb acting of Richard B. Harrison in "The Green Pastures," Pulitzer prize play of 1930. This play, scheduled to open tomorrow night at the American Theater here, will have a special interest for St. Louisans. For Harrison plays "de Lawd" in Marc Connelly's rich dramatic fable, and Harrison's mother was a St. Louis slave. She fled from this city and slavery 78 years before her son comes here in triumph, hailed as one of the finest actors of his day and race, holder of the coveted Springarn Medal, an award for achievement by Negroes.

Harrison's mother was owned by one of the Chouteaus, that pioneer St. Louis family. A mulatto, light in color and pretty, she served as ladies' maid for the young women of the household. As a favored servitor, she attended them at parties, the theater and church—even at their lessons—and thus acquired an education and cultural interests far beyond those of most slaves. She spoke French. But one day she was whipped. Her son, who pieces together the narrative of her life from the stories she told him, doesn't remember whether she ever mentioned what caused the whipping. At any rate, she resented it so deeply that she ran away. That was in 1854.

The young colored girl—she was only 19—crossed the Mississippi to East St. Louis, then worked her way to Springfield, Chicago, Detroit and, finally, London, Ontario. During the flight she passed as white.

In the Canadian town there was a colony of escaped slaves, and there she met and married Tom Harrison, who had run away from a master in Kentucky. She was married as Isa Bella Chouteau, having no other surname than that of her former owner.

don't know much about cosmic rays, but they do know that these extremely penetrating raditions of energy are shot out from distant aggregations of solar bodies and fly with the speed of light through all space. They are 10,000 times shorter in wave length than X-rays and are so penetrating that eight feet of solid lead is necessary to block them. On the earth's surface we are protected from these rays by a 250-mile blanket of air, but what is there to protect the traveler in the space ship? The gamma rays of radium are only one-hundredth as powerful as cosmic rays, and yet they are powerful enough to destroy animal tissue. It is possible that in free space all living things would be destroyed unless encased behind thick walls.

QUITE obviously, the author concludes, science is not yet ready to undertake anything so ambitious as a space voyage. That can come only after years of patient experimentation and perhaps the sacrifice of many lives. But he is confident that it will come some day. The first step, necessarily, is the perfecting of rocket planes that can take off at speeds low enough to prevent occupants from being crushed by their own weight and that can make a descent without crashing to the earth.

Once these are perfected, he believes, science will seriously turn its attention to the space flight question, and he thinks the first step in this direction probably will be the building of a rocket craft that will travel some 500 miles from the earth and there swing into an orbit about the earth as a satellite. Such an artificial satellite, he points out, would be invaluable as an observation post, a sort of weather station in outer space. Once fixed in an orbit of its own, it would need no power to propel it and would swing on and on indefinitely. Smaller rocket crafts might be sent up to it from time to time with relief crews and supplies.

The crux of the whole rocket problem, in this author's opinion, lies in the fuel. The liquid oxygen-hydrogen compound is the best so far devised, but it is too heavy. Theoretically, six pounds of this provides enough energy to send one pound of rocket ship on its lunar journey if it could all be bedlam. Thick smoke, the smell of uor, the hoarse calls of the dealers, e occasional protests of the losers, e slap-slap of cards, the rattle of ce.

Son of a St. Louis Slave Becomes the Most Talked-of Actor of His Race

At any rate, she resented it so deeply that she ran away. That was in 1854.

The young colored girl—she was only 19—crossed the Mississippi to East St. Louis, then worked her way to Springfield, Chicago, Detroit and, finally, London, Ontario. During the flight she passed as white.

In the Canadian town there was a colony of escaped slaves, and there she met and married Tom Harrison, who had run away from a master in Kentucky. She was married as Isa Bella Chouteau, having no other surname than that of her former owner.

Tom Harrison had escaped from the plantation of a General Bullock, near Lexington, Kentucky. His flight also took place in 1854. He had been well treated by his master, but when his two brothers, on a neighboring plantation, were sold "down the river," he feared that might happen to him, too, some day, so one night he slipped away, managed to get across the Ohio River into Ohio, and eventually reached Canada by means of the "underground railway" of the abolitionists.

TOM HARRISON and his wife went to Haiti on hearing rumors that runaways who had come to Canada might be sent back to their former masters. They returned to America during the Civil War, and stopped in New York on their way to Canada. In New York Isa Bella saw Edwin Booth play "Richard III." Back in London, Ontario, a few weeks later, her son was born. She gave the baby the names Richard and Booth.

But it was a long road Richard Booth Harrison had to take to reach "The Green Pastures." His parents were poor and his boyhood years were filled with hard work and as much study as he could find time for. He was naturally studious, intensely interested in histrionics. As a child he was in demand to "speak pieces" at entertainments.

When he was 17 years old, Richard, whose family then lived in Windsor, crossed the river to Detroit, to make his way alone. He got a job as bellboy in a hotel, and later as waiter in a club. In his spare time he went to night school, read Shakspeare, practiced the art of dramatic expression. He was engaged in such practice, declaiming a Shakspearean passage for his own ears alone, when waiting on a club member one day. The member overheard him and was interested; he happened to be Edward Weitzel, a dramatic critic. In a more suitable place Weitzel had Harrison go through his repertoire, and was sufficiently impressed to introduce him to the best expression teachers in the city and to encourage him.

MANY years were to elapse, however, before he could depend on his art for his living. In 1891 he made his first professional tour, giving dramatic readings. It wasn't successful financially, and ended in Dayton, where he took a job as elevator operator. There he met Paul Lawrence Dunbar, the Negro poet, who also had found it expedient to neglect art temporarily and run an elevator. Dunbar and Harrison became friends and went to Chicag together. Often the two joined forces in barn-storming trips.

In Chicago Harrison got a job as waiter on a train. Later he worked in the auditing department of the Pullman Company. Then came work as telephone operator in Chicago police stations.

At last Harrison broke into Chautauqua and lyceum work, giving readings in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

YEARS of teaching followed. He became head of the dramatic department of the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical College. He lectured frequently for religious causes.

It was while giving a series of lectures in Harlem under auspices of the Greater New York Federation of Churches, two years ago, that Harrison attracted the notice of Marc Connelly, then on the lookout for someone who could play "the Lord" in his new drama. He heard Harrison lecture, and realized this elderly, dignified Negro was the man he wanted.

At the age of 66, then, the father of two grown children, Harrison made his Broadway debut. His instantaneous, sensational success is an old story now.

Harrison has to "black up" for his role, as his color is light. In rehearsing for the part he was coachced in the Southern Negro dialect by a white man.

His present appearance here will not be his first in St. Louis. In 1916 he played here with a Negro high school group in connection with the Shakspeare tercentenary celebration.

But Mary Carr found fame fleeting and fortune a will o' the wisp. She recently went into court to file her petition in bankruptcy, listing her liabilities at $12,669. Total assets, $165.

Buck Jones, hero of many Western films, found himself "in the hole" when he appealed for relief to the United States.

Merna Kennedy, leading lady for Charlie Chaplin in "The Circus," later one of the principal actresses at Universal, is another who found the going rough when depression set in. So she, too, turned to the Federal courts. Her liabilities, she said, had grown to $4868.56. She had no assets.

J. Stuart Blackton, pioneer producer and director, owed $903,204.68, he declared, when he filed his petition.

Time was, in Hollywood—and only a few years ago—when Harry Langdon, comedian, virtually was an autocrat at the studios which employed him. He refused admittance to all outsiders, even barring newspaper men from his sets. A large sign demanded "QUIET" from all who came near. In time, his wife divorced him and asked for $70,000 in settlement. Then his contract went "blooey!" He married Mrs. Helen Walton O'Brien, who had been the wife of Thomas J. O'Brien. Thomas J. accused Harry of alienating his wife's affections.

TO HEAD off a court suit, Mr. Langdon gave him $15,000 in cash and notes aggregating $11,500 and called the deal closed. But Langdon repudiated the notes and the courts refused to give him judgment. Judgment was denied, apparently, because there was no legal justification for the notes.

Now, Harry and the former Mrs. O'Brien have separated and she is suing for divorce—and alimony. But Mr. Langdon is broke. He owes $62,637, he said in his bankruptcy petition recently filed, and all he possessed at the time of its filing was $700.

And so it goes in a Hollywood that slowly gets down to bedrock.

How Space May Be Conquered by Rockets

don't know much about cosmic rays, but they do know that these extremely penetrating raditions of energy are shot out from distant aggregations of solar bodies and fly with the speed of light through all space. They are 10,000 times shorter in wave length than X-rays and are so penetrating that eight feet of solid lead is necessary to block them. On the earth's surface we are protected from these rays by a 250-mile blanket of air, but what is there to protect the traveler in the space ship? The gamma rays of radium are only one-hundredth as powerful as cosmic rays, and yet they are powerful enough to destroy animal tissue. It is possible that in free space all living things would be destroyed unless encased behind thick walls.

QUITE obviously, the author concludes, science is not yet ready to undertake anything so ambitious as a space voyage. That can come only after years of patient experimentation and perhaps the sacrifice of many lives. But he is confident that it will come some day. The first step, necessarily, is the perfecting of rocket planes that can take off at speeds low enough to prevent occupants from being crushed by their own weight and that can make a descent without crashing to the earth.

Once these are perfected, he believes, science will seriously turn its attention to the space flight question, and he thinks the first step in this direction probably will be the building of a rocket craft that will travel some 500 miles from the earth and there swing into an orbit about the earth as a satellite. Such an artificial satellite, he points out, would be invaluable as an observation post, a sort of weather station in outer space. Once fixed in an orbit of its own, it would need no power to propel it and would swing on and on indefinitely. Smaller rocket crafts might be sent up to it from time to time with relief crews and supplies.

The crux of the whole rocket problem, in this author's opinion, lies in the fuel. The liquid oxygen-hydrogen compound is the best so far devised, but it is too heavy. Theoretically, six pounds of this provides enough energy to send one pound of rocket ship on its lunar journey if it could all be exploded at once. But that can't be done. The ship must be accelerated gradually. It must carry along its fuel and use it little by little.

As a possible solution, he suggests what he calls the "step rocket," an ingenious device proposed by Dr. Hermann Oberth, Austrian scientist and pioneer in rocket research. This design contemplates a rocket of three sections, or "steps." The first step, or base of the rocket, would contain fuel enough to lift the projectile from the ground and give it a speed of two and a half miles a second. The hull, or fuel container constituting this first step, would then be detached and blown to bits or allowed to float back to earth by a parachute and the fuel contained in the second step used to increase the ship's speed to seven miles a second. This accomplished, the second hull would be dropped.

Unless a landing on the moon were contemplated, no fuel for actual propulsion would be needed after a speed of seven miles a second had been attained.

STEERING would be provided for by placing rocket chambers on all sides of the projectile. Deflection of the ship's course to the right or left could then be accomplished—in theory at least—by firing a rocket on the opposite side. The recoil from the charge would move the ship right or left, just as the recoil from heavier charges would start it on its way in the first place and keep it moving. To check the projectile's speed and ease it gently down to the moon, or to earth on its return, plans contemplate turning it end for end and firing rockets in the direction of its course.

Dr. Oberth's rocket ship is regarded by Mr. Lasser as the best design proposed so far, but even it is found to be ridiculously impracticable. His craft, designed to weigh 5120 tons at the start, calls for 4380 tons of fuel to free a pay load of 20 tons from the earth's gravitation. Addition of another step to provide fuel for circling the moon and returning to earth, Lasser points out, would necessitate increasing the gross weight of the ship to about 40,000 tons, and even then spare fuel for human errors and unforeseen contingencies would not be provided. In other word, it would require a ship about as large as the Leviathan to take four passengers to the moon and back. The author, however, does not discourage himself.

"DESPITE these staggering figures," he observes, "the problem is no more incapable of solution than was the problem of Orville and Wilbur Wright to find a machine that would give them powered flight in the air for a few hundred feet. Only perennial doubters will assert that we face insuperable difficulties."

Kentucky's Woman Sheriff

the best that they have and treat you fine, but they wont have you mess in their affairs."

She wants to be a good sheriff and they say, up and down through Knox County, that she is that, but down deep she is more interested in her children than in the affairs of the county. She brings out a picture of her eldest daughter, Lanien, 18 years old, a student at Bethel Women's College, at Hopkinsville, and speaks proudly of her, and fondly of the others, Vivian, 14, in high school; Dorris, 11; Nina Belle, 8, and James Mealer, 5, who has an ambition to grow up and be a sheriff, like his mother and his father and his great-grandfather, who filled the office seven successive terms when the county was three times as big as it is now.

No situation has arisen during Mrs. Walker's term of office that she was not able to meet, with the help of her sober, honest and fearless deputies. She was a stenographer and bookkeeper before her marriage and her experience qualified her for the clerical duties of the office. Under the Kentucky law she cannot succeed herself and she would not if she could. Four years is all that she wants of it. It may be that when election time comes around again her chief deputy will run for the office and if he does he will have her support, even if he is a Republican.

FRENCH CABINET

THIS walnut cabinet is the twenty-second exhibit in a series of masterpieces which are being prominently displayed at the City Art Museum by Director Meyric Rogers. Each week one of the museum's rarest treasures is placed in the alcove to the left of the entrance. Each masterpiece will be reproduced in the Sunday Magazine of the Post-Dispatch, with an account by museum authorities of its history. The complete series will serve as an excellent guide to the most precious possessions of the city's museum. The story of this cabinet follows:

The sixteenth century French walnut cabinet on exhibition for this week was acquired by the Museum in 1919 from the collection of T. Foster Shattock, who for many years exhibited the piece on loan at South Kensington Museum in England.

French furniture has for many centuries been distinguished for its workmanship and expression of national character. In spite of the almost overwhelming influence of Italian baroque design which is evident in this carved cabinet, there is, nevertheless, a wholesome leaven of French taste in the use and combination of motives. This two-section walnut piece is in the style of the high Renaissance as it was introduced to France by Ducerceau in his designs from Italian models. Jacques Androuet, called Ducerceau (1510-1585), was a French architect who studied in Italy and later published a series of designs for furniture. These designs, too elaborate for literal execution, were simplified by the French cabinet makers, who, nevertheless, found in these publications a wealth of new and popular material.

Ducerceau's Burgundian contemporary, Hugues de Sambin, was robust and strong in his designs; the Lyonese school, on the other hand, achieved sometimes—along with many superb pieces—an over-elegance of design that may be likened to overripe fruit, too lately and literally imported from Italy. Ducerceau was born in Paris, and it is supposed that this very cabinet was made in that city or its neighborhood, though it is almost impossible to localize these pieces with any certainty.

The outer portions of the cabinet are entirely of carved walnut. It is built in two sections, the upper half separated from, and somewhat smaller than the lower. The upper section opens with three small doors separated by "termes," the lower with a pair of double doors, one wing carrying a terminal figure to conceal their meeting.

THE decoration of the lower panel with a niche motif shows a characteristic tendency of baroque design to convert architectural motives to a purely decorative use. The contrast between the low relief treatment of panels and the bold full relief of the enframing members serves to accentuate the architectural structure of the whole design and to secure a rich texture and a play of light and shade. This desire for richness is characteristic of the entire period, but, in the case of its best creations, is always subordinated to a logic of design characteristically French. The cabinet's sides are carved with strapwork panels, showing the influence of Low Country design.

In addition to the fine proportions and the skilful use of elaborate detail, the beauty of the piece is greatly enhanced by the rich color and patina brought by age. Pieces of this type were made only for people of wealth and consequence and were used principally for the safe keeping of documents, fine linens and other valuables.

THE SANDMAN'S TROUBLES

This is a game that can be played by any child. All that is needed are scissors, paste and some cardboard. The directions for playing "Toy Talkies" are given at the bottom of the game.

THE PLAYERS

THE SANDMAN—He makes folks go to sleep.
HOWLER WOOF—A gay old dog.
SCAT MOUSER—He loves to serenade.
TIM TOWSER—He was going to take a music lesson.

THE PLAY BEGINS.

(Scat Mouser comes on stage, walking rapidly.)

SCAT MOUSER—Oh, boy! I'm going to serenade Clara Cat. I hope no one starts throwing shoes. (He leaves stage and Howler Woof enters.)

HOWLER WOOF—I hope I have better luck tonight. Last night someone threw rocks at me when I was singing for Dora Dog. (He leaves and the Sandman enters.)

THE SANDMAN—My work keeps getting harder all the time. No matter how much sand I throw into folks' eyes to make them sleep, Howler Woof and Scat Mouser keep them awake with their terrible noises. (Tim Towser enters.)

TIM TOWSER—Hello, Mr. Sandman.

THE SANDMAN—Hello, Tim, where are you going so late?

TIM TOWSER—I'm going to take a music lesson from Bow-wow Bowser.

THE SANDMAN—My, what a pity! You shouldn't take lessons from that fellow—he teaches you to howl.

TIM TOWSER—All dogs learn to howl.

THE SANDMAN—That's just the trouble. Years and years ago I didn't have to throw sand into folks' eyes. Dogs and cats used to go around and sing people to sleep. They sang very sweetly in those days. They took singing lessons from Joe Nightingale. But that was too much trouble, so they stopped taking lessons and now, instead of singing, they howl and disturb folks. (Scat Mouser enters.)

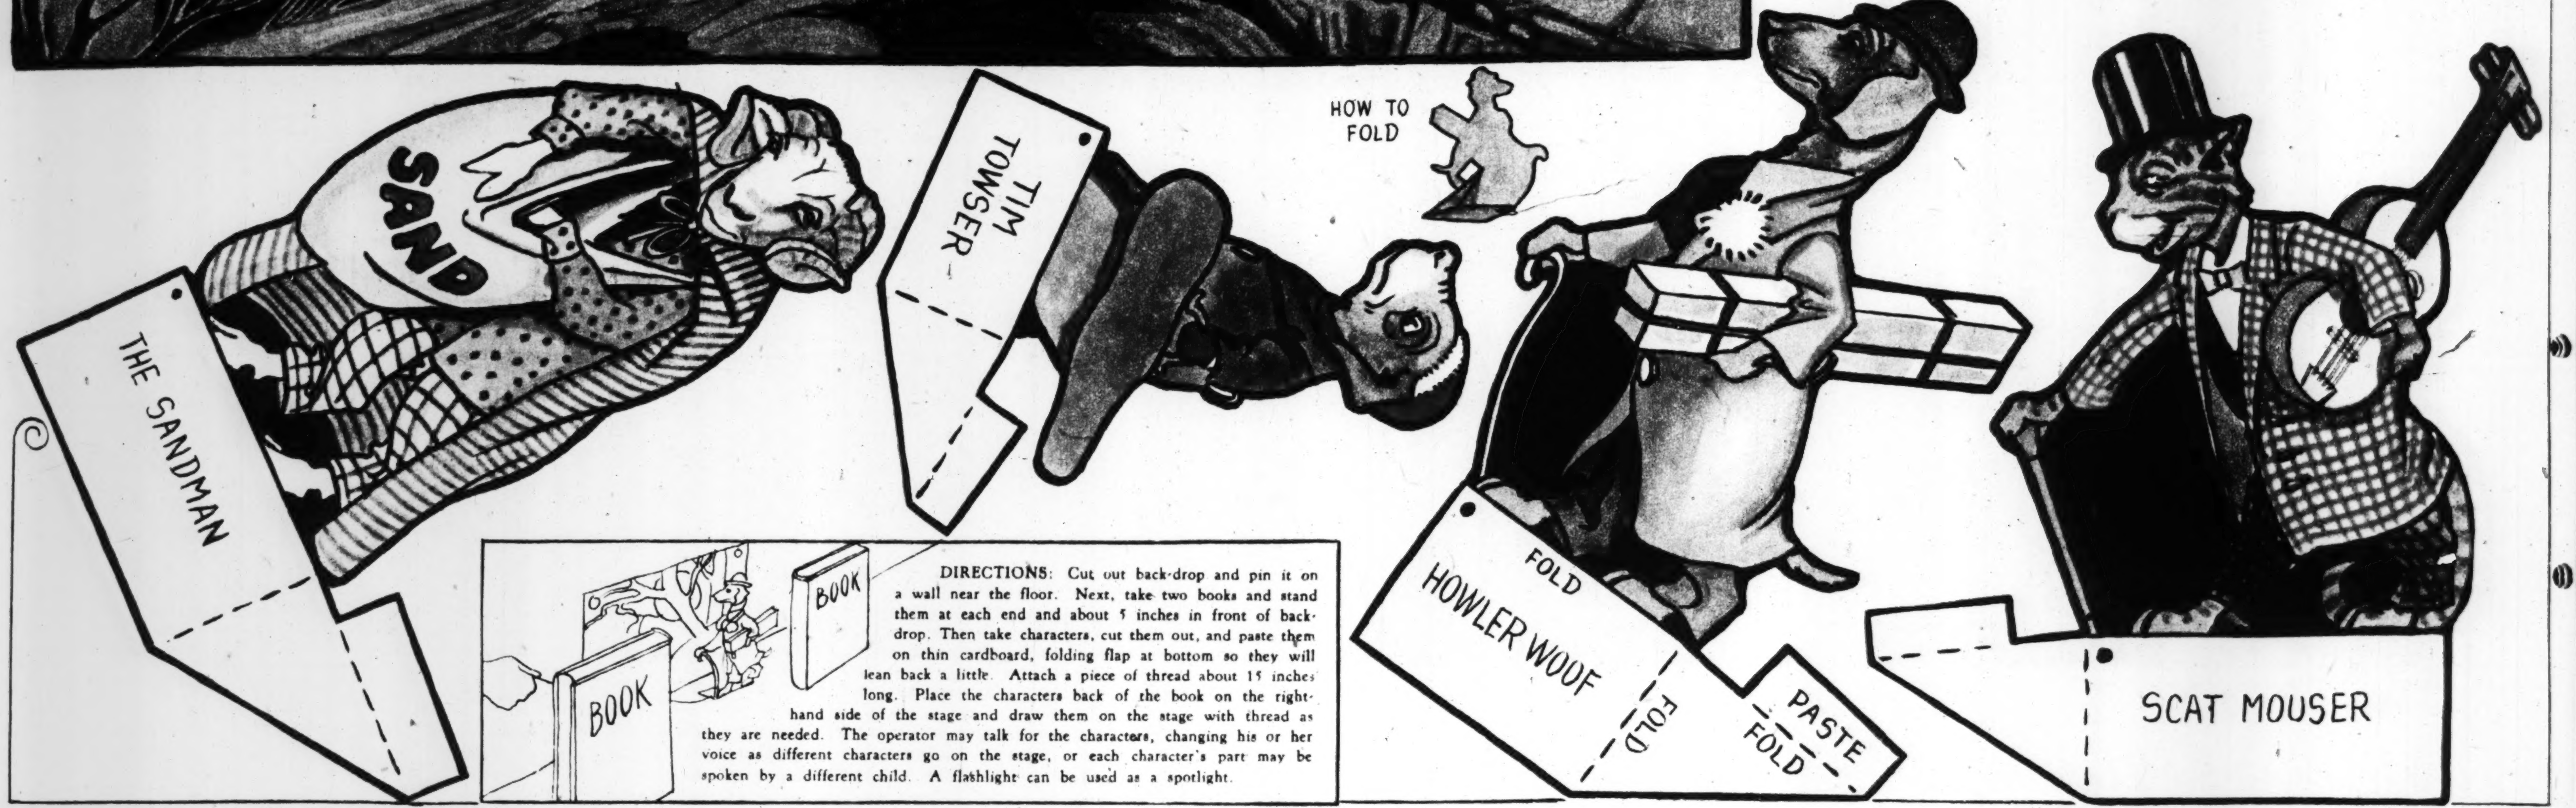
SCAT MOUSER—Gosh, I'm lucky I got nine lives. They threw shoes, frying pans and everything at me. (He leaves stage and Howler Woof enters.)

HOWLER WOOF—I'm lucky that fellow couldn't throw straight. He would have killed me if he had hit me with one of those rocks.

TIM TOWSER—As for me, I'm going to take music lessons from Joe Nightingale, so I can make folks go to sleep instead of throwing things at me.

THE SANDMAN—You are a good boy, Tim. I wish there were more like you.

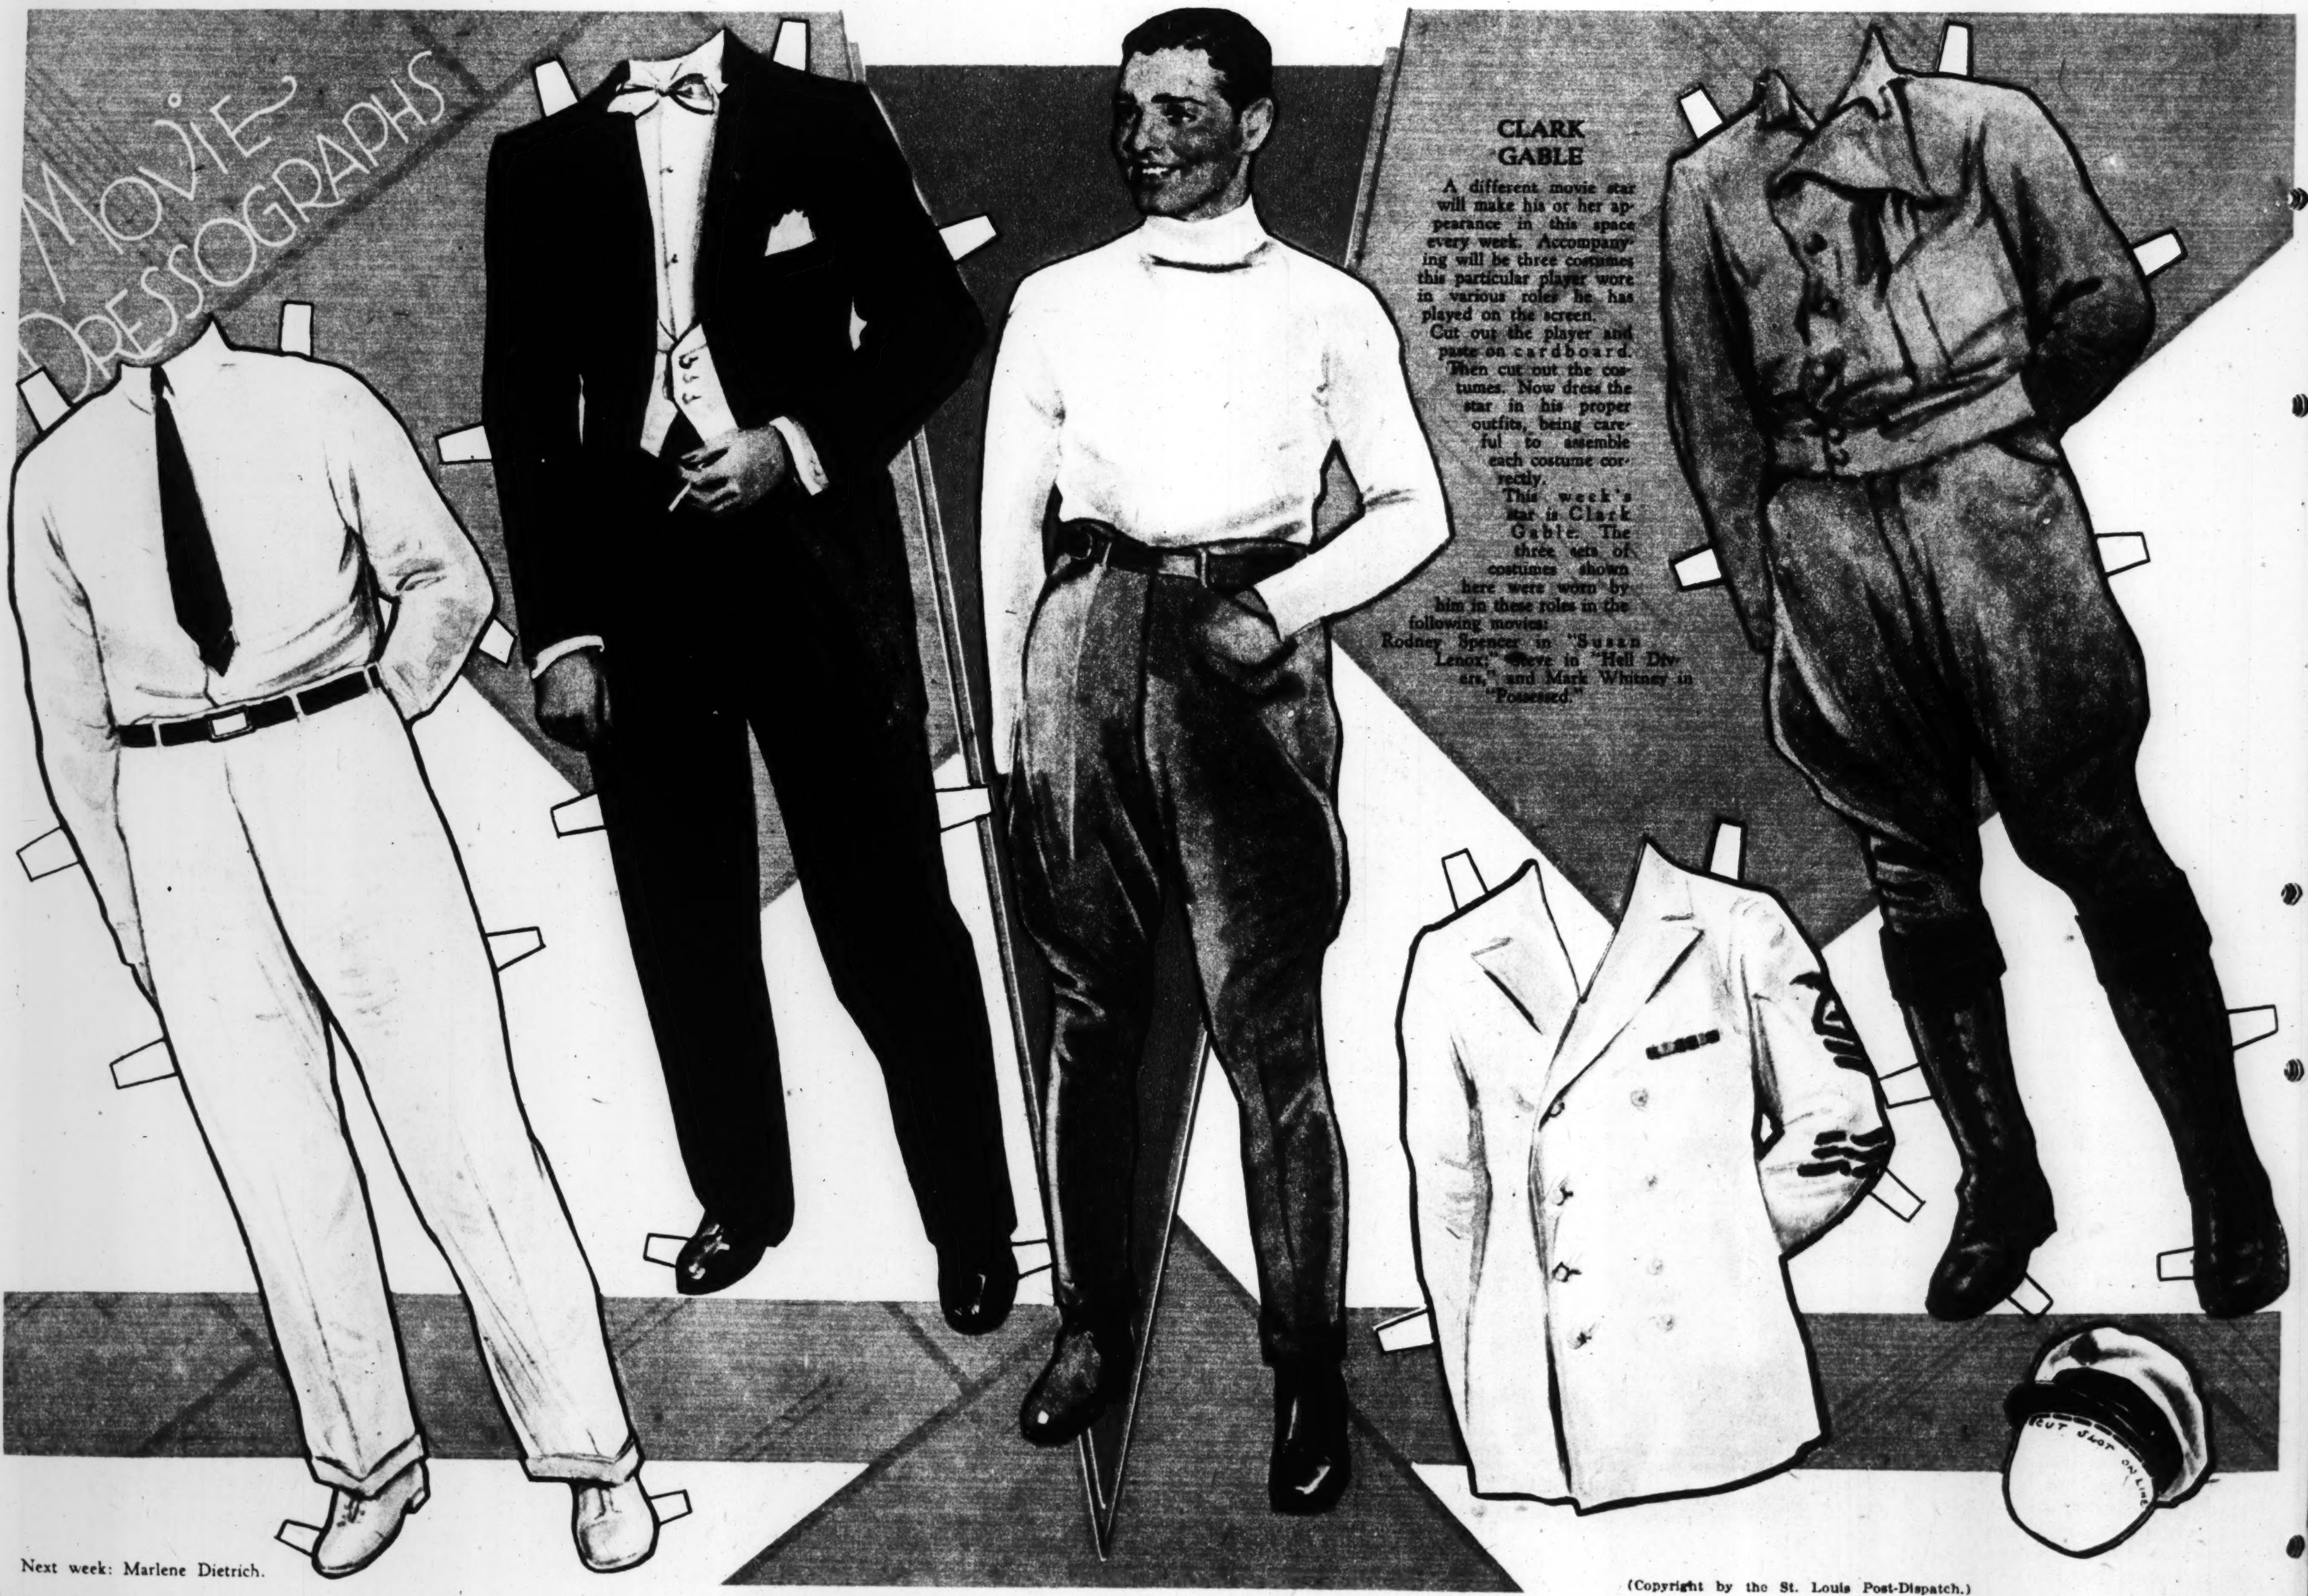
CURTAIN.



DIRECTIONS: Cut out back-drop and pin it on a wall near the floor. Next, take two books and stand them at each end and about 5 inches in front of back-drop. Then take characters, cut them out, and paste them on thin cardboard, folding flap at bottom so they will lean back a little. Attach a piece of thread about 15 inches long. Place the characters back of the book on the right-hand side of the stage and draw them on the stage with thread as they are needed. The operator may talk for the characters, changing his or her voice as different characters go on the stage, or each character's part may be spoken by a different child. A flashlight can be used as a spotlight.

Next week: The Haunted House.

(Copyright by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)



CLARK GABLE

A different movie star will make his or her appearance in this space every week. Accompanying will be three costumes this particular player wore in various roles he has played on the screen.

Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in his proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

This week's star is Clark Gable. The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by him in these roles in the following movies: Rodney Spencer in "Susan Lenox;" Steve in "Hell Divers," and Mark Whitney in "Possessed."

Next week: Marlene Dietrich.

Let's count the frocks in your closet...

Even without looking over your shoulder, we'll guess that you have a bright print dress, a town ensemble, and a few quite devastating dancing frocks. Right now, too, you're probably planning new tweedy suits and other things for Spring.

But you can't buy a new face, no matter how weary it grows. That deserves some thought, doesn't it? You have to take care what you put on your one and only face.

No wonder, then, that so many girls with clear, lovely complexions prefer Coty Face Powder. They love its gossamer-fine texture, its twelve perfect tones, its fragrances subtle as France. At all good shops—$1.

UNEXPECTED company comes. The children bring their little playmates—and big appetites—home from school. Something must be done, quickly! And you Modern Mother Hubbards find your well-stocked pantry is a friend indeed, at any time of need.

Say that the guests who "just dropped in" stay until five. You can say it and mean it—"Do stay for tea." For your pantry will back you up, if you've stocked it up. Here's a can of mixed fruit or chicken, for salad; a can of deviled ham; marmalade; olives and wafers. And, if you don't like tea for tea, there's grape-juice and ginger-ale. Serve!

Or, suppose the youngsters ask for an "after-school party." It's so easy to say "yes" when it's merely a matter of opening the pantry door. Just take down a box of crackers, a jar of sandwich spread or peanut butter, a tin of cocoa or a malted drink preparation, ready to mix and serve. Then serve!

Now think of the days when you are "extra late" getting home, and there isn't time to prepare the dinner you had planned. Then you'll find that the shortest cut to the dining-room is through the pantry. A can of cream or clear soup. A jar of frankfurters or a can of salmon. Spaghetti and tomatoes and vegetable salad—all fresh from the can, of course. Add apricots and cookies for dessert. In twenty minutes by the clock, dinner's on the table. And even the hungriest husband will be satisfied!

Right now, with this list of "Pantry Needfuls" to guide you, why not check up your shelves to see what you have and what you have to get?

THERE'S NO HANDLE BUT OTHERWISE IT'S PERFECT.
IT'S BENT A LITTLE BUT THERE'S NO LEAKS... OR IS THERE?
THAT SPOT LOOKS LIKE A SMALL LEAK....OR IS IT MERELY SOLDER? I'LL HAVE TO GET A CLOSER LOOK AT IT.
SURE ENOUGH. NO LEAKS.
WELL'..
MY WORD! I'M HAVING A LITTLE TROUBLE GETTING THIS OFF MY HEAD.
SUCH LUCK!
IT WON'T COME OFF!
WELL THE FIRST THING TO DO IS GET OUT OF THIS BASEMENT AND....
WHOO!
CLANG
WHAT A SOCK!
ANYHOW I'VE HAD ENOUGH OF WALKING AROUND WITH THIS ON MY HEAD.
HELP! HELP! HELP!
YES, STUCK ON MY HEAD. IT DOESN'T DO ANY GOOD TO WIGGLE IT. WHO ARE YOU? I CAN'T SEE...
CAN'T SEE A THING, EH? WELL I'LL TAKE CARE OF THAT. JUST FOLLOW ME.
...OF. LET ME LEAD YOU OVER TO THE LIGHTER SIDE OF THE BASEMENT.
STRAIGHT AHEAD!
OOSH!
BAM!
LISTEN, NO MORE OF THAT STUFF. I'LL STAND RIGHT HERE UNTIL.....
ONE MOMENT. I'LL GET YOU OUT OF THAT THING. I HAVE AN IDEA. A BIG IDEA. ONE SECOND.
WELL.... BACK SO SOON. WHAT-?
DON'T ASK ANY QUESTIONS. ALL YOU WANT IS TO GET THAT CAN OFF YOUR HEAD, EH? STEADY....SHUT YOUR EYES.....WHILE I BLOW.... THUS!
LISTEN, WHAT DID YOU.....? AH KA CHOO!
I BLOWED SNUFF IN THAT CAN SO YOU'D LOOSEN IT BY SNEEZING...NOW ONCE MORE! IT MOVED!
LISTEN YOU..... AH KA CHOO!
FINE! GREAT! IT MOVED AGAIN! ATTA BOY!
YOU..... AH CHOO!
VERY GOOD! NOW ONCE MORE.....PUT ALL THE STUFF YOU'VE GOT INTO ONE MORE GREAT BIG SNEEZE!
LISTEN, IF I EVER GET MY HEAD OUT OF THIS CAN I'LL..... AH KA CHOO!
IT'S LOOSE! COMING OFF! NOW ONE MORE BIG SNEEZE!
YES, A FAT MAN! HE RAN AROUND THIS CORNER A MINUTE AGO. I'LL PAY ONE BIG DOLLAR...... TWO DOLLARS, IF YOU'LL SHOW ME WHERE HE WENT AND.....
AH, NEVER MIND, I SEE HIM!

Rosie's BEAU
BY
GEO. McMANUS
Registered U. S. Patent Office.
THERE GOES THE FELLOW WHO IS ALWAYS CALLING ON ROSIE - HE'S GOING IN THE DRUG-STORE TO PHONE TO ROSIE - I'LL BET -
I KNOW IT -
OH! IS THAT YOU - ROSIE? HOW ARE YOU?
OH - I'M SORRY - BUT DADDY IS NOT HOME YET - IS THERE ANYTHING I CAN DO TO HELP - MR - MARGIN?
WHAT?
WELL - TELL HIM ABOUT OUR ENGAGEMENT - I'LL CALL UP LATER -
OH - DADDY! MR - MARGIN CALLED AND WANTED ME TO REMIND YOU OF YOUR ENGAGEMENT FOR LUNCH - WITH HIM - HE'S PERSISTENT - HE CALLED FOUR TIMES -
BY JOVE! THAT'S RIGHT - I'LL CALL HIM UP RIGHT NOW.
SO SHE IS ENGAGED TO HIM! AND HE HAS THE NERVE TO ASK HER TO TELL HER FATHER

AH! I HOPE WE ARE NOT LATE?
THE BARON IS SO PROMPT - HE IS ALL UPSET - HE THOUGHT WE WERE LATE -
NOT AT ALL - YOU ARE JUST IN TIME -
HOW DO YOU DO?
THEM GUYS WUZ NEVER LATE TO A FEED IN ALL THEIR LIVES -
I SUPPOSE YOU TRAVEL QUITE A BIT?
WHEN YOU WERE IN PARIS I SUPPOSE YOU SAW THE SEINE?
YES - AN' A LOT THAT WUZN'T -
PARDON - SIR - MRS - JIGGS - WOULD LIKE TO SPEAK TO YOU -
MY NECKLACE IS GONE - I'M SURE I HAD IT ON JUST A FEW MINUTES AGO -
AND ONE OF MY EAR-RINGS IS GONE -
NOW - JUST KEEP CALM - I THINK I KNOW WHERE THEY ARE - I DIDN'T LIKE THOSE GUYS WHEN WE FIRST MET 'EM!
NOW LISTEN! I DON'T WANT TO EMBARRASS ANY ONE - BUT THERE'S A NECK-LACE AN' AN EAR-RING MISSIN' -
YOU DON'T MEAN IT!?
HOW PECULIAR!
NOW - I'M GONNA TURN OFF THE LIGHTS AN' COUNT FIFTEEN AN' I WANT TO SEE THAT JEWELRY IN THIS SILVER PLATE WHEN THE LIGHTS ARE ON AGIN' -
1-2-3-4-5-6- 7-8-9-10-11-12- 13-14-15 —
SUFFERIN CATS! THE PLATE'S GONE?
MARVELOUS!
QUITE SO!
SAY - LISTEN! I'LL GIVE YOU GUYS JUST ONE MORE CHANCE - THIS HAS GONE FAR ENOUGH -
DO YOU SUPPOSE HE IS TRYING TO ACCUSE US?
NOW - HERE GOES - IT'S YOUR LAST CHANCE -
YOU MUST BE CRAZY -
WHY - THIS IS ABSURD
1-2-3-4-5-6- 7-8-9-10-11-12 13-14-15 —

NAW—HE'S A PUSHOVER! ONCE MY BROTHER AND ME AND TWO OTHER GUYS LICKED HIM, OVER ON THE EAST SIDE! HE'S A CINCH!
SO LONG, KID—KEEP ON PUNCHIN' THE BAG, AND WORK ON THE WEIGHTS! I'M GOING OVER AND SEE MAURY!
LISTEN, JERRY—THIS CRUSTY KID IS ONLY SUPPOSED TO BE A BUILD-UP FOR THE MASKED MARVEL—THE MARVEL IS SUPPOSED TO LICK HIM IN THE SECOND ROUND!
NIX ON THAT STUFF, MAURY! MAKE IT THE EIGHTH OR NINTH ROUND—WE GOTTA PLAY FAIR WITH THE PUBLIC!

IT WAS NICE OF YOU, WAITE, TO ASK ME TO GO WITH YOU TO IDYLLWILD!
WELL, YOU SAID YOU'D LIKE TO LEARN TO SKI-JUMP, SO I THOUGHT I'D GIVE YOU THE OPPORTUNITY!
AREN'T YOU GOING TO SKI, WAITE?
NOPE--- I'M GONNA ENTER THAT SNOW SCULPTURE CONTEST! THEY'RE GIVING PRIZES, YOU KNOW!
TELL ME ABOUT IT, WAITE!
WELL, ANTONIO BOSCOVITCH, THE FAMOUS ARTIST IS GONNA JUDGE THE CONTEST--- HE'S NOTED FOR HIS FUTURISTIC SCULPTURE!
I'VE HEARD OF HIM, AND I HEAR HE'S KIND OF NUTTY ON ART! HE HAS FUNNY IDEAS AND MAKES EQUALLY FUNNY SCULPTURE!
I'LL GIVE YOU A TIP, WAITE-- IF YOU WANT TO WIN FIRST PRIZE, MAKE YOUR SCULPTURE LOOK AS GOOFY AS POSSIBLE, AND THEN GIVE IT A CRAZY TITLE! HE'LL BE HORRIBLY IMPRESSED! SEE YOU LATER!
LATER
JUST A LITTLE SHOVE WILL START YOU!
HEY--- HOLD ME, SOMEBODY-- I DIDN'T WANT TO JUMP-- I'M JUST LOOKING!
I FEEL LIKE THE STOCK MARKET--- G-GOING UP IS SWELL!
YES, MR BOSCOVITCH, THAT, IS MY WORK--- I'VE CALLED IT "THE MOTORCYCLE RIDER IN A MUD PUDDLE."
SUPERB--TREMENDOUS! IT SYMBOLIZES THE MACHINE AGE AND THE FEELING IS INSPIRING! EXQUISITE!
? ? ! ! ?
HORREEBLE! IT IS A SACRILEGE! THIS IS NOT ART! THE ARMS ARE TOO LONG--- ONE EAR IS OUT OF PLACE! AND THAT MOUTH---UGH!
IT DOES LOOK KIND OF FUNNY, NOW THAT YOU MENTION IT!
I COULD CRITICIZE IT BY THE HOUR! NOTHING HUMAN EVER LOOKED LIKE THAT! IT IS THE POOREST EXHIBITION IN OUR SHOW! WHO, IN HEAVEN'S NAME IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THIS?
WELL, IF YOU MUST KNOW---- MR AND MRS CINDERS!

Boy! CAST MY VOTE FOR THIS CEREAL, WHAT IS IT?
IT'S GRAPE-NUTS SERVED AS A HOT COOKED CEREAL. IT TAKES NO TIME AT ALL TO PREPARE

YES SIR GRAPE-NUTS COOKED AND SERVED HOT IS A GLORIOUS WINTER CEREAL— HERE'S HOW TO MAKE IT:——

1 cup Grape-Nuts
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water

Add Grape-Nuts and salt to briskly boiling water in top of double boiler. Place over hot water, cook uncovered, 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Or, cook, uncovered, over direct heat 5 minutes, stir frequently to prevent scorching. Serves 3 or 4.

YES, BUT THE CITY IS SO INTERESTING!
FOR INSTANCE, THE NEXT PERSON YOU BUMP INTO MIGHT BE A ROUND-THE WORLD-FLIER OR A RADIO ANNOUNCER--
THE LAST PERSON YOU BUMPED INTO IS PICKING UP HIS HAT!
QUICK, ROD! DONT ASK ANY QUESTIONS ---JUST GRAB THAT MAN WITH THE BABY CARRIAGE!! HE'S A KIDNAPER !!
HELP! POLICE!
OKAY, SUGAR! I GOT 'IM! WHAT NEXT!!
YOU HAVE MY ADDRESS NOW, IN CASE YOU NEED US, CAPTAIN?
I HAVE THAT, MISS BELL = AND THANKS AGAIN FOR YOUR SERVICE!
DIS IS ALL A ERROR!
--BUT TELL ME= HOW DID YOU RECOGNIZE THAT KIDNAPER?
OH, I DIDN'T RECOGNIZE HIM = I RECOGNIZED THE BABY AS A KIDNAPED CHILD!
THAT POOR, INNOCENT BABY'S PICTURE WAS IN THE PAPER THIS MORNING = TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO TODAY IT WAS KIDNAPED AND HASN'T BEEN SEEN SINCE!
OWAH!
TWENTY-SEVEN YEARS AGO?! THAT'S NOT THE SAME CHILD! EVEN YOU MIGHT HAVE FIGURED THAT OUT!!
OH, ROD! AND I HAD THAT MAN ARRESTED!
RING RING
THERE'S BEEN A MISTAKE, MISS BELL-- THAT MAN WASN'T A KIDNAPER
IT'S ALL MY FAULT--- I'LL GO QUIETLY
OH, DEAR!
--AND THE "BABY" IS "MIDGET MOE" THE ACCOMPLICE WHO HELPED HIM ROB DOTING WOMEN! GOOD DAY!
AFTER ALL, WHAT'S THE USE OF HAVING A BRAIN?!!
